

WSGA Announces Candidates For Women's Elections March 5

Men Refuse Vote For Annual May Queen; Change Proposed

A joint committee of men and women decided last night that men should not vote for this year's May Queen and proposed a plan for having future May Queens selected by a committee composed of 15 representative men and women students to make the affair an All-College one.

Chief among the reasons that men would not vote for the queen this year were that it would involve a change in the WSGA constitution, her selection would become a political issue, more women than men attend the celebration, and having men vote would place the most important queen of the year on a status with all other queens.

The plan for choosing next year's May Queen recommends that Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, A. R. Warnock, dean of men, All-College president, and WSGA president choose a group of representative men and women students who are unbiased in their opinions.

The proposal would not allow the entire student body to vote but would eliminate politics from the election.

Doctor To Discuss Social Diseases

Continuing the theme of National Social Hygiene Week observed earlier this month, Dr. Millard C. Hanson, director of the Pittsburgh venereal disease program, will speak on "Social Diseases" in Schwab Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in the fourth of five lectures on preventive medicine.

Dr. Hanson replaces Dr. Alfred F. Doyle, assistant director of the Division of Syphilis and Genito-infectious Diseases of the State Department of Health, who was unable to appear last week.

The talk will be supplemented with the sound motion picture, "With These Weapons." Sixteen campus and town organizations are sponsoring the meetings in conjunction with the State Department of Health.

At The Movies

CATHAUM—

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith"

STATE—

"You're The One"

WITTANY—

"Four Mothers"

Bus Terminal

(Continued from Page One)

ple. If you give them the whole square, they won't come back down town," Leitzell testified.

Referring to his own stand on the matter, Leitzell said, "I have nothing to feel sorry about. Everybody had enough time to snake up their minds, and I won't retreat from my present position."

It was pointed out that Greyhound has made certain commitments which would make it unprofitable for them to return to their downtown location. When the first Greyhound bus drove across the line of the new depot the contract went into effect, Leitzell said.

According to College authorities the buses will be allowed to discharge coeds at the women's dormitories on campus. The College will also make plans for a well-lighted sidewalk and provide for the campus patrolmen to escort the girl students to the dormitories.

Babcock, Taylor Vie For Top Post; Mass Meeting Made Compulsory

Jean Babcock and Mildred M. Taylor will vie for WSGA president in women's elections Wednesday, March 5 to lead the slate of nominations for women's offices and May Queen, announced by the government nominating committee and members of the dean of women's staff.

Elinor L. Weaver '41, WSGA president, has announced that attendance at the mass meeting to introduce candidates in Schwab Auditorium from 7 to 8 p. m. Tuesday will be compulsory. Roll will be taken and a possible penalty imposed on absentees.

Additional nominations may be made from the floor at the mass meeting. Coeds adding to the slate must present their choice and state qualifications of the new nominee.

May Queen contenders are Betty A. Albright, Josephine E. Condrin, Helen B. Cramer, Eleanor L. Fagans, and Arita L. Heferan.

Other WSGA nominations are—vice-president: Margaret K. Sherman, Mildred B. Schmidt, and Marjorie L. Sykes, sophomores; treasurer: Betty R. Broderick, Mary L. Keith, Priscilla C. MacLellan, and Betty W. Story, freshmen.

Senatorial nominations include—senior: Anne M. Borton, Marion M. Eberts, and Marion E. Sperling; junior: Nancy E. Gosser, Jean E. Hershberger, and Louise M. Fuoss; sophomore: H. Ann Carruthers, Dorothy L. Jones, and Ruth M. Storer; town: E. Miriam Jones and Kathryn M. Popp.

Freshman attendants will be chosen from Margaret L. Campsey, Betty H. Christman, Jane M. Henninger, Jane C. Taylor, and Phyllis R. Watkins.

CLASSIFIED SECTION

IMPORTANT 6,000 students may attend the Drydock this Saturday, Feb. 22. Make your reservations early at Student Union. 4tch19,20,21,22D

LOST—8-10 a. m. Wednesday. Man's wallet, lavatory Burrow's building. Please return or mail. 237 W. Beaver. Phone 3283. Reward: half money. 3tch2-15-41L

FOR RENT—Comfortable double room, well-heated clean house. Good location. $2.50 single, $5.00 double. Telephone 2687. 3tpd19,21,25GS

LOST—Pair glasses in red case. Between Hort Building and Corner. Return to Student Union. Reward. 1t-21-pdAAS

RECORDINGS by Bonnie Baker singing, "You're the One," "Strawberry Lane," "I Could Kiss You For That," with Orrin Tucker's Orchestra, from "You're The One," now playing at the State Theatre, can be purchased at the Music Room. 1tchC

RIDES Wanted and Offered

R.W. to Pittsburgh. L—Fri. afternoon. C—Bill, 4856. P.W. Union City and Erie. L—Sat. noon. C—Weed. Phone 693.

Formal Clothes
22.50 Up

Charles'

FELLOW SHOP
Headquarters for Adam Hats
S. Allen St. State College

We, The Women—'May Queens Lousy' Campus Men Say

Since the first May Queen marched with her retinue of beauties onto the campus her successors have been accompanied on their promenade to the throne with criticisms from the men students of the campus. "The choices of the coeds stink," they bluntly commented. For years they have yearned to vote for the queen—or so we surmised from their criticisms.

Women students were loath to have men vote for the May Queen because:

1. They felt May Day to be a coed tradition.
2. Men would select the prettiest coed who very often would not make a regal queen.

When women's organizations joined with men's groups to form the All-College student-government set-up, coeds discussed the feasibility of inviting men to have a choice in electing the queen, for the following reasons:

1. While May Day had been a coed tradition, it was now a College institution.
2. As many, or more, mothers of men students as coeds' mothers journeyed to the campus each Mother's Day to witness the crowning of the senior beauty.
3. With a portion of women's funds going to the All-College government, the May Day budget had to be cut, while if May Day should become an All-College affair, the budget could be increased to provide an even more spectacular ceremony.
4. It would eliminate adverse comments from male students on the coeds choice of a beauty sovereign.

After heatedly discussing the proposition, women's student government decided to offer to the men that May Day become an All-College affair—the May Queen to be chosen in All-College elections.

But last night, surprisingly, the men rejected the offer.

But May Queens will continue to stroll onto front campus with their courts. And each year men students will think they could have done better and will say, "The choice of the coeds stinks!"

Read The Collegian Classifieds

Swimmers Begin Practice For Telegraphic Meet

Thirty Penn State mermaids have plunged into White Hall's pool to try out for the National Intercollegiate Swimming Meet scheduled for the first week in March.

A two-and-a-half week training period, with two practices a week, is required of all entrants; but Swimming Club or Aquatics periods may be counted for one. The remaining hour must be completed in plunge hours from 4 to 5 p.m. on Monday or Wednesday, chairman L. Barbara Clark '41 announced yesterday.

Those women who qualify in the tryouts will compete in the final swimming meet. Winning swimmer's time will be recorded and forwarded to Skidmore College where the results from a group of eastern colleges will be tabulated. Eastern division winners will be announced sometime in April.

Entries for the tryouts may still be made at the WRA office, but applicants must have had two hours practice this week. Officiating at the meet requires no previous experience, and any coed may apply for one of these positions.

Pledge Heads Named

Sorority pledge class presidents elected this week are Alpha Chi Omega, Elinor F. Hejman '42; Gamma Phi Beta, Betty R. Broderick '44; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Ruth A. Shanes '44.

Pledge List Reaches 165

Emanon has pledged Muriel N. Ball '44 raising Sunday's total to 165 and its own to 17.

HEY! RUTHIE BEERS

YOU'RE the ONE

There's A Free Ticket waiting for you at the STATE THEATRE box office.

We know you'll want to see Bonnie Baker Today in "YOU'RE THE ONE"

For Highest Quality Meats

CHOICE CUTS

- ROASTS
- STEAKS
- CHOPS
- SAUSAGE

Prompt and Courteous Delivery

MILLER'S MARKET

104 W. Beaver Ave. DIAL 775

TONIGHT !!

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BALL

Music by the Campus Owls

"WE THREE"
Rabinowitz
Taylor
Disney

Admission—75c per couple

FREE TO SECOND SEMESTER COLLEGIAN SUBSCRIBERS

Rec Hall

9-12