We, The Women— Opportunity Knocks— Why Not Respond?

At 9 a.m. today, polls will open for WSGA and WRA primary elections.

The importance of primary elections has never been fully impressed upon coeds. As a result, we do not realize primaries are the most important part of any election, WSGA, WRA, municipal, or national.

For it is through primaries that candidates appearing on the final ballot are chosen.

If only a handful of women vote today, nominees remaining on the final ballot will be determined by a few. This might lead to dissatisfaction among women and leave them unable to act.

With whole-hearted support of the women's student body at primaries, we may be assured that candidates remaining on the ballot are the selection of all, not of a few.

Responsibility also falls on us to select officers whose policies we will support next year and whom we will respect. Therefore, if we are to follow student government leaders, we should, and rightfully, have a voice in who will lead.

Voting is more than choosing a name to check, for it is essential to select women we feel will serve the school best, lead students well, and be efficient. To do this, we must choose officers objectively rather than subjectively.

This opportunity is offered us in both primary and final elections. Let's show our interest and thought by casting votes in both elections.

Nutrition Class Exhibits Foods

One-hundred calorie portions of fruits and vegetables are being exhibited in Room 209 Home Economics Building from 8 a. m. to noon all this week by members of the junior nutrition course under the direction of Ina Padgett, associate professor of home economics and Mrs. Tim H. Welch, instructor in home economics.

Next week the class will emphasize various food values which will be followed by two exhibits showing the sources of minerals and vitamins in daily food supplies. Rats, fed on deficient diets, will be shown in connection with the series.

Nutrition exhibits have recently been emphasized because of the importance of foods in national defense.

Women Debaters Oppose Pittsburgh, Bucknell

"That the nations of the western hemisphere should join into a permanent union," was debated with women from the University of Pittsburgh, at Gallitzin yesterday with Lois J. Hunter '43 and Sara L. Lipser '42 representing Penn State.

Tuesday Penn State women debated the same question with Bucknell men at Lewisburg. Harriet Block and Helen E. Dodd participated in freshman contests, with Sara M. Bailey '43 and Sara R. Lipser '42 in varsity competition.

With Other Women— Men Can Walk 'Inside' At Utah

Men no longer need walk on the "outside" at the University of Utah. Since the advent of paved roads and smooth rolling automobiles, females do not need the chivalrous protection of their escorts, and so it is permissible for a man to do his window shopping next to the store.

Contrary to tradition, freshman women at the University of Utah prefer their men—tall, handsome, and blond.

Women who let their hair grow, cultivate a pale, pasty face, haggard look, bored expression, and a mouth like a red persimmon have been wasting their time, according to Mrs. Bettina Gunezy, council secretary for the national board of review of motion pictures. She claims that men still like naturalness and yearn for a "girl just like the girl that married dear old Dad."

To eliminate classroom cheating, the Board of Standards of Indiana University has enlisted the cooperation of professors in the preparation and proctoring of examinations, in addition to a campaign to educate the students in responsibilities and benefits of cheating control.

Models representing Greek-letter sororities were featured in a style show recently at the University of Texas in connection with a musical comedy "Time Stagers On." The comedy is produced annually by a journalism honorary.

Jean C. Esh '43 has been named to replace Doris J. Snow '42 on the publicity committee for women's elections.

Five Sororities Name New Pledge Presidents

Presidents elected by sorority pledge groups this week are—Alpha Epsilon Phi, Elaine D. Gilbert '44; Alpha Omicron Pi, Ruth M. Storer '44; Chi Omega, Frances M. Burke '44; Zeta Tau Alpha, Mary W. Houghton '42; and Kappa Alpha Theta, Peggy V. Colvin '44.

When the remaining houses hold elections, pledge officers will meet with the Panhellenic Rushing Committee to begin revision of the code.

Kelly, Curie Lecturer, Speaks On Chemistry

"The Chemist at Work" will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Louise Kelly, chemistry professor at Goucher College, in Room 119 New Physics Building at 8 p. m., March 19.

Dr. Kelly's talk will be the second of the Marie Curie lectures sponsored by Iota Sigma Pi, women's national chemistry honorary.
