Senior Ball Nets $1200 Profit; Best In Three Years

This year's Senior Ball earned four times more than last year's, and more than any Senior Ball in three years, a tentative report released yesterday by Neil M. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, indicates.

With 1167 paid admissions, 50 booth rentals, and 1106 checking fees, the dance cleared an estimated profit of $1,288.97, in comparison with last year's $326.97 profit. This year's gross income is estimated at $4,878.40.

Total expenditures are estimated at $3,589.73, with $2,000 for Tommy Dorsey's band being the largest item. Last year, with Jan Savitt playing, Senior Ball music cost $1,350.

A summary of the report follows:

Income—

Admissions, 1167 at $3.50—$4,084.50; tax on admissions $433.30; booth rental 50 at $5—$250; checking—$110.60.

Music—$2,000; decorations—$450; tax on admissions—$433.30; programs—$182; advertising—$120; compensations—$50; checking (labor)—$77; telephone and telegraph—$6.52; ticket seller—$15; doormen—$32.50; piano tuning and rental—$15; women's attendant—$5; ticket printing—$28.91; labor—$100; catering—$50; flowers—$10; invitations—$4.50; and miscellaneous—$10.

Seven Colleges Meet In Debate

The fourth annual Freshman Debating Convention, representing seven Pennsylvania colleges and sponsored by the freshman debate squad, will be held here tomorrow and Saturday, Harold P. Zelko, freshman debate coach, announced yesterday.

The convention will proceed as a legislative body, first in committees and then as a general assembly discussing the United States foreign policy. The questions to be debated are "What should the foreign policy of U. S. be in relation to the present war, and especially in regard to England?" and "What should be the policy of U. S. in relation to the Western Hemisphere?"

The varsity debating squad engaged in two intersquad extension meets yesterday when they appeared in Clearfield and Howard.

Robert W. Miller '43 and Mark A. Richards '43 opposed Bernard M. Weinberg '43 and Donald S. Williams '42 before the Clearfield Rotary Club on the "Hemisphere Question."

Discussing the same question before students of Howard High School yesterday were Michael N. Aronson '43 and Morris Beck '43 who met teammates Coleman Bender '43 and Frank L. Newton '43.

To Interview Students

Lieut. Robert T. Raby will be on the campus today to interview students who applied for a three months after-graduation training course in the Marine Corps Reserve.

389 Coeds Penalized Weekend Of March 14

One o'clock permissions will be removed from 389 women who failed to present excuses for absence from compulsory mass meeting last week, L. Eleanor Benfer 41, WSGA Judicial Committee chairman announced yesterday.

The penalty will be imposed the weekend of March 14, either Friday or Saturday night. No exceptions to the time will be made.

Satan Will Present Awards To BMOC's At Gridiron Banquet

While big shots of all varieties get a general roasting at Sigma Delta Chi's annual Gridiron Banquet Monday, Satan himself will present six awards to the six most heinous of the BMOC's.

The awards, on display at the Corner Room, include a chisel, a brown derby, a knife, a powder puff, a package of sandpaper, and an apple. Besides these awards, Satan will present two surprise awards to the BMOC's deserving the special distinction he wishes to confer.

The chisel will be given to the BMOC, who, in the opinion of the mad-cap journalists sponsoring the banquet, knows how to use it best.

Hero And Heroine

Donald R. Taylor '42, left, is the hero and Elinor F. Herrman '42, right, is the heroine in "The Streets of New York," which plays in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow and Saturday.

Players Show Follows Old Style

Theater-goers who attend "The Streets of New York" in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow and Saturday will see a play vastly different from the ordinary run of Players' shows—a play enacted in the melodramatic style of the 1860's.

The plot of the play concerns an old sea captain, Edwin I. Carson '41, who wants to ensure safety for his family and deposits $100,000 in the villain's bank. When the captain tries to regain the money, he dramatically falls dead of apoplexy.

The rest of the play centers about the use the banker, Malcolm Weinstein '41, makes of the $100,000 while the captain's family suffers.

Donald R. Taylor '42 plays the part of the hero, Mark Livingston, and Elinor F. Herrman '42 is cast as the heroine, Lucy Fairweather. Catharine E. Coleman '42 is Alida Bloodgood, the villainess.

"The Streets of New York," is being staged as a showboat revival. A root beer bar, tended by Leon Rabinowitz '43, will be installed in the lobby. Between acts members of the cast will sell candy, pop corn and peanuts and Miss Herrman, the heroine, will sell autographed pictures of herself.

Group Officially Named To Plan For Lion Shrine

The Lion Shrine committee, informally appointed by David E. Pergrin, president of the Class of 1940, became official yesterday when Chairman Adrian O. Morse, assistant to the president, revealed that he was given authority by Pergrin to proceed with the shrine plans.

To plan immediately for construction, Morse has called a committee meeting at 3 o'clock today. Other members of the committee are Russell E. Clark, bursar; George L. Donovan, assistant manager of Student Union; and Francis E. Hyslop, instructor of fine arts.

Three noted sculptors, John B. Flannagan, Heinz Warneke, and Carl Milles were consulted by Mr. Hyslop. Flannagan and Warneke have sent Hyslop photos of their proposed shrine figures.

With $5,340 on hand for the Lion Shrine, perhaps a two or three times life-sized figure would be available. Size and cost of the lion figure will depend on the type of lion used. It is probable that a mountain lion figure will be chosen.

Henry Varnum Poor suggested that an uncut stone be purchased for the project to be worked on the campus.

Police Question Taylor Suspect

NEW YORK, March 6—Pennsylvania Police today continued their questioning of George Joseph Cvek, 23-year-old Bronx slayer, to find out if the former reformatory inmate was involved in the Rachel Taylor murder on March 28 last year.

Cvek was arrested by New York police for the murder of a Bronx woman and the assault of a 19-year-old Philadelphia housewife.

Cvek is a powerfully built man and a sex delinquent, as the slayer of Rachel Taylor is believed to have been. Cvek's criminal career dates back to July 1940, only a few months after the local tragedy. He was at liberty and his whereabouts unknown from April, 1939, when he was given final release from the State Industrial School for Boys at Huntingdon.

His home is at Bressler near Harrisburg and since he plied his criminal career along main highways, pretending to be a hitchhiker, he might have easily reached the vicinity of State College.
