

New Molestations Appear On Anniversary Of Taylor Murder

Club Offers Two Plans For Stables

Two plans have been proposed to enable the new Penn State Riding Club, sub-division of the Penn State Outing Club, to become a permanent organization. One proposes that the College provide land, stable, and ring, and the other that the College only designate location for the stable on College land. In both plans the land not to be more than three-fourths of a mile from the center of campus.

Money for the stable in the latter plan would be obtained from College sources and organizations not associated with the College rather than solely from the College as in the first one.

In three weeks, the club has developed from a vague objective into a reality. Thirty-five students have already paid the $15 membership fee and 12 are planning to join by April 1.

Recreation Coordinated, an All-College committee, is encouraging the Riding Club band has appointed Dr. Henry L. Yeagley, associate professor of physics, sponsor, and Ray M. Conger, instructor in physical education, executive secretary.

Three horses have been purchased from the Four Horsemen Stable in Media with the condition that another will be bought when the additional members join.

An hour before the horses arrived in State College, club members completed five stalls made of rough lumber at the Campus Saddle School.

The first plan for stables includes that on the land provided by the College, they finance a stable and a ring, the stable to house 12 horses in box stalls which can be reduced in size when additional space is needed to provide for 24 horses.

Six stalls would be used at present by the club; the other six rented to staff members and students owning horses. With increased membership, and the stables would be used for club horses. The stable would also include space for a club and tack room and for a feeding storage.

Under this plan, the club would provide horses, tack, stable equipment, hired man, volunteer riding instructors, and membership cards.

The club in the alternative plan, would provide the stable, 12 horses, and other provisions.

Membership privileges entitle members to three weekly instruction periods, Monday and Tuesday at 7 p. m. and Saturday at 2 p. m. Six experienced town and College riders have volunteered to instruct members.

Thief Robs Library Desk Funds In Circulation Room

Fines and lost book charges amounting to $8.67 were stolen from the circulation desk in the Library on Tuesday evening. It was officially announced yesterday by Librarian Willard P. Lewis.

Though several persons were seen in the Library illegally after 10 p. m., the thief left no evidence and has not been apprehended. The Campus Patrol discovered the robbery when they checked Library receipts about 11 p. m.

The cash drawer in the circulation desk was forced open by the thief. All receipts were checked and found in order at 10 p. m. by Library assistants.

Students Approve College Emphasis

AUSTIN, Tex.—Last year the National Education Association had Dr. George Gallup conduct a survey that revealed only 17 per cent of the adults in this country feel too much importance is being placed on education these days.

What about college training? It is the advisability of higher education that often causes debate — "The colleges are overcrowded . . . we are grinding out bachelors of art as if by machinery . . . look at men like Ford and Knudsen who never went to college." Student Opinion Surveys of America has taken the question directly to that group of nearly a million and a half young Americans now going through the process of higher education.

Do they feel that the idea of going to college is being emphasized too much, about right, or too little?

Every fourth student that the interviewers contacted answered "yes, there is too much emphasis." A slight majority of 51 per cent declared "just about right," and the rest said "too little."

Although three-fourths of the students believe higher education is not being pushed too much in this country—which already has in its colleges and universities a greater proportion of its youth than any other nation—a surprising set of answers was obtained from this question:

"Without mentioning names, do you know any students personally who would be better off at work than in college?"
YES, said 88%
NO, said 12%

Washington Inquiry Trip Stated For April 7-9

Fifty-five students have signed up for the three-day social inquiry trip to Washington, D. C., April 7-9, sponsored by the PSCA and the political science department, D. Ned Linegar, PSCA secretary, announced yesterday.

All other interested students should get in touch with Mr. Linegar or Prof. John A. Ferguson, professor of political science. The quota is fixed at 75. Minimum expenses will be $8.50.

Among the places to be visited will be the White House, British Embassy, and Congress. Plans are underway to get Senators Robert LaFollette and Burton K. Wheeler for after-dinner speakers and to arrange personal interviews with Pennsylvania Representatives.

Delta Sigma Phi and Phi Kappa Psi held an exchange dinner last night. Juniors and seniors dined at the Phi Psi house, while freshmen and sophomores ate at Delta Sigma Phi.

Slayer Of Coed Still Unknown

By GEORGE SCHENKEIN See Editorial, Page 2

A year has passed and new molestations accentuate the gruesome murder of Rachel Hutchinson Taylor whose slaying remains unsolved despite the questioning of three definite suspects among many others.

On the eve of the anniversary of Miss Taylor's death, two women were accosted on town streets. Last Thursday, an unknown man molested Mrs. Lena P. Kaite on E. Beaver Avenue and on Monday night Grace Gray, a high school senior, suffered a similar experience. Police are under orders from Burgess Wilbur F. Leitzell to "shoot if necessary" and are checking clues and suspects.

To track down the Taylor murderer, two State Motor policemen have been stationed here since the crime occurred and their latest activity has been a rechecking of all student automobiles.

Miss Taylor, an 18-year-old freshman from Wildwood, N. J., was cruelly slain on a misty night following her return to school at the end of Easter vacation, March 23, 1940.

She disembarked at 1:21 a. m. from a bus at the town depot, walked towards Atherton Hall, and was either abducted or run down before being murdered. She was discovered at 6:21 a. m. by Harold Leightley, janitor of the Lemont Consolidated School, as he drove up the winding school approach. Rachel's clothing was ripped from her ravished body and she suffered bruises by a still unidentified weapon.

A few weeks ago policemen conducting routine investigations here left hurriedly for New York City to determine whether George Cvek, confessed murderer of a Bronx housewife, was implicated in the crime. Later, Col. Lynn G. Adams, commissioner of State Police, said that Cvek, despite his nearness to the murder scene on March 28, was not involved. Cvek is a former inmate of Huntingdon reformatory, 35 miles from here.

On the day of the Taylor murder, a local suspect was arrested in Philadelphia when blood was found on his trousers. Police transported him to Rockview Barracks where he was thoroughly questioned and released after proving a satisfactory alibi.

When Richard Millinder, convicted slayer of Fay Gates now serving a life sentence in Western Penitentiary, was apprehended, it was believed that he had also committed the Taylor slaying. However, he was exonerated by Colonel Adams.

Finger and tire prints left at the scene of the Taylor crime were examined but were too muddy to prove of any value. A traveling bag, containing the coed's belongings, was discovered three miles from Lemont, at Shiloh Church.

Rewards totaling $1,000 out of $2,500 posted soon after the coed's death were withdrawn today by donors. They include The Daily Collegian, and All-College Cabinet.

Trustee Committee Will Meet Tonight

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees will meet in President Ralph D. Hetzel's office at 7:30 tonight.

According to information from the president's office, the proposed $1.20 increase in student fees will not be acted upon because no official recommendation has been made by All-College Cabinet.

It is probable that the fee increase will be considered at the May meeting of the board.

Ring Grads Turn To Varied Fields

"Doctors, lawyers, merchants, and teachers"—this seems to be the most popular line-up of jobs for Penn State's boxing graduates. At least this is the situation according to Coach Leo Houck, who is often referred to as "the honorable doctor" himself.

However, there is one former ringman, 155-pound Hank Schwietzer '39, who has not been satisfied to turn to these "everyday" jobs, but has chosen to put himself in the precarious position of actively fighting with England's Royal Air Force.

The list of physicians who have boxed for State in the past is headed by "Rags" Madera, 126-pound intercollegiate heavyweight champ, now a doctor at the Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh. Tommy Costello, manager in '28, is a physician at Bryn Mawr, and his brother Pat, manager in '39, is studying to be a doctor.

Tom Zerbe, 145-pounder in '25 is a lawyer in Harrisburg along with Bud Dunbar, boxing manager in '26. Dunbar recently managed Arthur H. James' campaign for governor.
