Hershey Asks Draft Delay For College Men

See Editorial, Page Two
WASHINGTON, April 17.—Acting Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey announced today that local draft boards will be asked to postpone the induction of college students into the Army "until the end of the scholastic period in which they are called."

A scholastic period was unofficially interpreted as meaning a semester. It was pointed out that under this plan the interruption of classroom study will be prevented.

The announcement emphasized that local boards will not be instructed to postpone student inductions automatically and that full authority still lies with the individual boards.

The 6,500 local boards will receive the recommendation next week. It reads in part:

"The following amendment to Selective Service Regulations has been approved by national headquarters: The time specified for reporting, (when called) shall be 10 days, provided, where unusual individual hardship will result, the local board may postpone the time when such registrant shall report for a period not to exceed 60 days, subject, however, to further postponement upon good cause."

Hershey said, "The induction of a college student at the normal time may result in unusual hardship if the student requires additional time to complete a course or take an examination after completing a course."

It is believed by Hershey and other draft officials that temporary postponement for students will be granted by local boards in the majority of cases. The American Council on Education, representing nearly 500 colleges, concurred in this opinion.

Late News

Fire A Fizzle But Crowd's Big

A thousand students and about 100 student cars raced four pieces of Alpha-Fire Company apparatus to a fraternity section fire call at 7 o'clock last night, only to find a brush pile burning on Fairmount Avenue just west of Lambda Chi Alpha. The fire company allowed the blaze to burn itself out.

Math Prof Killed In Auto Plunge

Miss Ethel I. Moody, popular mathematics instructor, was killed last Friday when her car plunged down a 25-foot embankment near her home in Rushville, N. Y.

No one witnessed the tragedy, but it is believed that in trying to close a door accidentally opened, Miss Moody swerved the car toward a culvert, the door being ripped off as it hit a guard post, and the car forced down the bank. Miss Moody was thrown clear of the car and is believed to have died instantly.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Wagner and Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Owens attended her funeral in Rushville Monday.

Miss Moody taught here since the fall of 1933. She held a B.A. degree from Wells College and M. A. and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell University. Before accepting her position here she was connected with the College Entrance Examination Board and was an instructor at Wells College and at Sweet Briar College.

Final Exam Period Set For May 27 To June 5

Second semester final exams will be given from 8 a.m. May 27 to 5 p.m. June 5, including Saturday afternoon May 31, scheduling officer R. V. Watkins announced yesterday.

There will be no special days set apart for the seniors this year but the prospective graduates will be given preference in the first days of the eight-day exam period.

Watkins also announced that grades for the seniors must be turned in from the professors by 5 p.m. June 3. The individual exam schedule and explicit details of commencement, to be held on June 9 this year, are being completed and will be released soon.

Trustees Guarantee Jobs To Drafted Faculty Men

The Board of Trustees has decided to grant leaves of absence to faculty members who are called by Selective Service, it was announced Wednesday.

It was explained that the policy was adopted in order to assure faculty members that their positions will be held open. The leaves will be for one year only but may be renewed.

Federal Money Is Sought To Supplement $300,000 From State

A proposed $400,000 training airport comparable to those at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and Purdue is being sought for the College, officials here announced yesterday.

The first move to secure state and federal funds for its erection was made Wednesday with the introduction in the Legislature of bills appropriating $300,000 by Sen. Joseph Ziesenheim (R., Erie) and Rep. Carleton E. Woodring (D., Northampton).

The bills would provide $200,000 to construct the airport and $100,000 for instruction and research in aeronautical engineering.

A joint Washington committee of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Army and Navy is considering the possibility of federal aid to complete the airport.

If the airport is established, the College would be able to offer advanced CAA pilot training as well as the elementary training it has provided ever since the civilian training program was started two years ago. Arrangements would also be made to expand other aeronautical instruction.

As proposed, the airport would have two 2,800-foot paved runways, capable of handling planes up to 300 horsepower, including smaller transports. (The VPI airport has paved runways but Purdue's does not.)

It would be a Class 3 airport. (Class 1 fields have 6,000-foot runways while the smallest group, Class 4, have 2,000-foot runways.)

New Coed Dorm To Open Sunday For Fire Victims

A completely remodelled, newly-furnished rooming house at 238 West College Avenue will be opened Sunday to 26 coeds who were burned out in the $25,000 Anchorage fire Monday night, according to Mrs. Jessie B. Hughes, proprietress of the Anchorage who has leased this new building from Charles Charles Schlow.

Although the structure was undergoing construction into five apartments, a few alterations are being made to fit it for occupancy as quickly as possible. Anchorage residents, all home for Easter vacation, were wired to remain until the house could be completed.

Workmen yesterday removed salvaged furniture, mattresses, kitchen equipment and other articles which escaped damage and cleaned up debris on the upper stories.

Much of the clothing and belongings of the residents was saved with only a few of the occupants losing heavily.

Cause of the fire remains unknown according to Irven M. Mohnkern, owner, but insurance company adjusters have begun investigation of the remains.

Those made homeless by the fire were Margaret E. Allen, Gladys C. Beck, Marian M. Bietel, G. Alice Burwell, Dorothy A. Churan, Dora E. Colver, Ailene M. Gibbs, Doris Glahn, Doris S. Hammel, Lillian M. Hesejtine, N. Loreen Hughes, Evelyn H. Jackson, Marilyn K. Kindl, Dasie J. Kranich, Rosalind E. Marks, Marilyn L. Miles, Miss Lillian Myers, chaperon; Betty J. Ostermayer, M. Lenore Reeder, Romayne Rosenzweig, Terry E. Smotkin, Gloria E. Tarlowe, Jane C. Taylor, Jeanne M. Traub, Dolores M. Wargo, Lois H. Weaver.

Moul And Light At Odds On Probe; McDowell Is Called

Rep. Clayton E. Moul's probe of the Soil Erosion Board and the agricultural extension of the College for alleged non-cooperation with the federal government forged through its sixth week this week with a verbal battle between Moul (D., York) and John Light, Republican secretary of agriculture, as its principal feature.

Next Tuesday the legislative investigating committee will call Milton S. McDowell, director of the agricultural extension, to testify. McDowell was to have appeared this week but, through a misunderstanding, he was not notified.

At one point in the testimony, Moul asked Light: "Well, why don't you admit that you didn't do anything and get it over with?"

This was after Light said he had performed his duty under the 1937 Soil Erosion Act by answering all correspondence. "No inquiries have come in that have not been answered," Light said.

Froth Honors Collegian

Laying aside its standard features, Froth devotes the majority of its Parody Issue to honoring the Daily Collegian in the April publication of "Penn State's Best Humor Magazine" which appears today.
