

Penn State's Alumni Association.

The Beginning Of A Very Interesting Story Of Very Great Importance . . . If You're The Type To Read It

What are the pictures on these pages?

They are the Alumni Association of the College.

What do you mean by that? I see a football team, Old Main, an elephant in India, a boxer, and a commencement group. Do you mean to tell me that is an alumni association?

That is exactly what I mean to tell you. An alumni association is not a desk in Old Main and a set of files. Alumni are people, aren't they? Would you suggest that they should mean nothing more than a desk and a set of files? Not by a long shot, they don't.

The files are merely the record of the people, the best way we humans know how to keep track of all that they represent so that we can grasp it easily. No, when you join an alumni association, you don't join a file. You join people who are doing things. Writing today's headlines just as you will write tomorrow's. Adventuring. Making laws. Helping to rush America's defense. Teaching. Studying. Working. Playing.

You have started out in the same mold with the people who are shown here. You don't want to lose it ever . . . that's why you want to join an Alumni Association. If your college doesn't mean anything to you . . . well, you wouldn't have read this.

Boxing

Sports of all kinds are Penn State's, boxing among them. Above is Nestor Kociubinsky, 175-pound star of 1937, a teammate of Billy Soose, who will fight for the middleweight title of the world May 7.

Football Is Part Of Penn State, Too

Just as important a part of Penn State as any other is Penn State's football, a major attraction for the alumni back on campus each fall and a great opportunity for the old boys who can't make it to do their fireside cheering. Penn State's football is getting better and better and it has a stiff schedule ahead of it. But don't forget, it has a great record and six All-Americans behind it.

All Alumni—The World Over

From Old Main to India, it doesn't matter where, Penn State men are the same, cast in the same mold, dedicated to the same ideals. The Alumni Association keeps them that way. Riding the elephant above is R. A. McQuade '27. The gentlemen conversing in front of Old Main are Razz Ridgers '95 and Frank Orbin '93.

50 Sign Up On New Life Memberships Offered By Association

Over 50 life memberships in the Alumni Association have been received since special rates went into effect after the Alumni Council meeting February 1.

The rates:
$40 from 1 to 19 years after graduation.

$30 from 20 to 39 years out.
$20 from 40 to 49 years out.
50 years out, honorary.

A joint membership, 25 per cent above the cost for the husband, is offered if both husband and wife are alumni.

The $8 paid by undergraduates will be considered applicable toward a life membership, and the rest may be paid in installments at any time. Regular annual memberships in the Association do not enjoy this privilege.

READ THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

WHY JOIN THE ALUMNI ?

1. Through it you will develop a continuing relation with the College which will hold some of your happiest memories.
2. The copies of the Alumni News, the football letter, Alumni Homecoming, the class reunions will all help keep Penn State with you.
2. Through membership you will be able to make valuable contacts with Penn States in any town you may enter.
4. Your alumni contacts may mean job and business opportunities.
5. In a city with a Penn State Club you will never be without friends. Each club has an organized social program to which you will be welcomed.
6. Wherever you may go, the Alumni News and the regular letters from the Association will always keep Penn State with you.
7. Through the Association you can continue your present College acquaintances and gain the acquaintances of the older alumni.
8. Whenever you want to return to the College, the Association will gladly make such arrangements as securing sports tickets for you.
9. If you are sincerely interested in helping the College and students after you graduate, the Alumni Association is the best possible medium to help you do this.

Graduation—And After

We wouldn't miss this for the world, and it hardly needs any explanation. Graduation, very formal, and . . . well . . . a reunion. Fun and formal.

WHAT IT OFFERS

1. Five-year membership in the Alumni Association effective on graduation.
2. The Alumni News from the time you sign up next week until five years after you graduate.
3. Eligibility to serve on the Alumni Council and the Athletic Advisory Board and the privilege of voting for both bodies.
4. Eligibility to elect College trustees beginning three years after graduation. (Nine of 32 are elected by the alumni.)
5. The Football News Letter issued after each game.
6. Access to all Alumni Association records on all Penn State alumni. Privilege of using the Association's materials and services to make contacts with Penn Staters.
7. Privilege of using the Alumni Office as a headquarters on all return visits to the campus.
8. Representation on the executive board of the Alumni Association through the All-College president, and on the Alumni Council through the All-College president, senior class president and junior class president.