Council And Board Are The Elected, Representative Bodies Governing Penn State's Association

The Alumni Association is going to be very much in the student eye next week. What about it?

It was created in 1870 to be of service to each alumnus as an individual, to all alumni as a group, and to the college it represents. For more than 70 years it has continued to do that duty.

The governing body of the alumni association is the alumni council. This council is composed of men and women elected by designated alumni districts, with one representative for the first 50 and one for each additional 100 alumni in the district. There are separate districts for men and women, guaranteeing that both shall have their proportionate representation.

Each alumni district has the privilege of making nominations for the council, keeping in mind that only paid-up members of the association are eligible to hold office. A central nominating committee is authorized to act for those districts which fail to send in nominations. The election is held in April by means of a ballot sent out by mail. The annual business meeting of the council is held in June.

Alumni Life Starts Here

It's the student life that makes the alumni life important. That is the whole philosophy of any alumni association and it's the reason why Penn State students next week are going to be given a chance to join up with the Alumni Association now.

WHAT IT COSTS

1. The cost is $8 for five years.
2. The same five years on an annual basis would cost $10. (For the first two years $2, all after that $3.)
3. Additional value because the $8 after five years is still applicable toward a $40 life membership while the annual memberships are not.
4. It costs nothing at all immediately because the money is to be paid with the student fees. Sophomores can divide the $8 over four semesters, juniors over two. Seniors wishing to sign up can pay any time between now and graduation.
5. Students dropping out of college before their full membership will receive membership for a proportionate period.

THESE, TOO, ARE PENN STATE

Yes, these too are Penn State. Talking it over in that threesome are some very important alumni — Col. J. Franklin Shields who is president of the Board of Trustees and elected to the board by the alumni; Windy Wear, football star of a year the seniors can remember; and Football Coach Bob Higgins. Old Main speaks for itself . . . wordlessly but well. At the bottom is an alumni golf match — all part of the busy, busy routine of a reunion.
