New Team Stars In Players Farce

Introducing a new comedy team, the Penn State Players will raise the curtain on "The Merchant of Yonkers" in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The team, James J. Ambandos '43 as Cornelius Hackel, and O. William Vanderlin '42 as Barnaby Tucker will be featured in the Thornton Wilder farce, the fourth show to be presented by the Players this year.

Norman A. Shandelman '43 will portray Horace Vandergelder, the merchant of Yonkers, a grumpy old man who wants to marry a second time so he'll have a good housekeeper.

Eugene N. Scheffel '41 plays Melchior Stack, a general stooge whose chief vice is whiskey.

Feminine leads are Joanne M. Palmer '43, who will play Mrs. Levi, an ambitious "fixer" with a sense of humor, and Elinor F. Herman '42, who takes the part of Mrs. Molly, a smart milliner who is something of a flirt.

Technicians Role In War Work Is Talk Subject

Col. Glen F. Jenks, chief of the technical staff of the United States Army Ordnance Department of Washington, will lecture on "The Role of the Technically Trained Man in National Defense," in Room 121 Sparks at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

His appearance here, will be sponsored by four student societies in the School of Mineral Industries.

On his visit here Colonel Jenks will inspect research laboratories and other facilities for national defense on the campus.

Annual Collegian Party Scheduled Tuesday

The Collegian smoker, held every year to show freshman candidates the opportunities open to them, is scheduled for the Delta Chi house, 412 East Fairmount avenue, at 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

Candidates for both the editorial staff and the business staff are urged to attend. Although freshman meetings have already started, it is not too late for new candidates to report.

There will be dancing and refreshments. Members of the department of journalism will give short speeches. Members of the junior and senior boards of the Collegian will be introduced.

Alumni Drive Ends With 382

As the first Alumni student membership drive in College history came to an official close last night, 382 new members were reported as having joined the association.

Edward K. Hibshman, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, expressed disappointment last night that the campaign had failed to reach the 500 mark in subscriptions, but said he was pleased with the drive's success from an educational standpoint.

"Never before in the history of the Alumni Association has there existed among students such a complete understanding of the association and its work," Mr. Hibshman said.

He added that late returns from the 21 division leaders yet unheard from might cause a significant increase in the final total members.

The members already signed, 193 women and 189 men, include 173 sophomores, 161 juniors, and 48 seniors.

Collegian Calls Time Out May 24

The Daily Collegian will cease publication for the year with its issue of Saturday, May 24.

All announcements concerning final examination and commencement week activities must be turned in to the Collegian office no later than Friday, May 23.

Six Seniors Selected For Marine Training

Six seniors have been selected by Lieut. Robert T. Raby of the United States Marine Corps to attend the Marine Reserve Officers Training School, it was announced yesterday.

The students, Frank E. Horpel Jr., Edwin S. Jones, Robert R. Logan, John E. McHugh Jr., Frank M. Platt Jr. and Lawrence Tate, were selected from a group of approximately 25 who were interviewed and examined by Lieut. Raby upon his visit to the campus this week.

These students will report to Philadelphia early in July for active duty. Upon completion of their training period, they will be commissioned Second Lieutenants in the USMC Reserve.

Strike Truce Relieves Bus Tie-Up At Noon

Special to the Collegian

Greyhound bus employees are back at their jobs today following a truce called last night between the autobus company and the AFL-Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees Union.

Union officials agreed to call upon the Secretary of Labor to act as arbitrator in an attempt to definitely decide the strike controversy.

The strike which began Sunday at 5 a. m. with stoppage of service over a 10-state area will end for State College with the arrival of the 12:31 p. m. (EST) Harrisburg bus traveling west.

The Pittsburgh bus traveling east will arrive at 12:44 p. m. (EST). The regular schedule will be in force over the week-end with auto-bus transportation available for Mother's Day activities.

Demands for a driver's increase of one-half cent a mile, a closed shop, and a 40-hour week for terminal employes precipitated the strike.

Lodging Group Supports Survey

Pledging complete cooperation with the lodging house inspection and rating program released by the College Monday, Mrs. Charles C. Pearce, president of the Student Placement Bureau, yesterday endorsed the survey as a "very fine thing which will help everyone."

The Student Placement Bureau an organization of 42 lodging houses, has its own rules and standards of maintenance. Members are requested to uphold these requirements but no pressure is exerted on non-members.

At its monthly meeting Monday a movement will begin immediately to cooperate with the College, according to Mrs. Pearce who stated, "If there is anyone in town who would like to join us or has a suggestion to make on the survey, we should be glad to hear from him."

"We have always invited inspection of our houses and, with the cooperation of the student, would like to make it as pleasant as possible for him," she added.

Complex 'Brain Wave' Machine Records Grey Matter At Work

If you feel like hearing a record of your brain in action or want to see just what "gives out" in an electrical way when your heart pounds, take a run up to the psychology experimental laboratories where Dr. William M. Lepley is in charge of "brain wave" machine.

Technically known as the Electroencephalograph the machine is specially designed to study electric potentials from brain tissue. Of course, the instrument does not magnify the sound of millions of little gray cells grinding away but records electrical brain waves which are transposed into sound and released through a loudspeaker panel.

Pictures of electrical emanations from the heart may be recorded by cathode ray tubes which enables one to see how the

Twenty Seniors Named For Outstanding Merit

Announces Course

Dean Harry P. Hammond, head of the Engineering School, disclosed yesterday that a 14-week, tuition-free defense course in Materials Testing and Inspection will be offered by the College beginning June 23.

College Extends Defense Training

Already recognized as one of the country's leaders in defense training and education, the College took another step toward intensifying its program with the announcement that a 12-week tuition-free course in Materials Testing and Inspection will be offered on the campus beginning June 23.

Applicants for the course should be recent graduates from a regular four-year college curriculum or should have completed two years of an engineering curriculum. Industrial experience and mechanical interest are highly desirable in all applicants, Harry P. Hammond, dean of the School of Engineering, emphasized.

No tuition or fees will be charged, although students will have to provide their own books and living expenses. The course, which will be conducted by the regular College faculty, is designed to qualify students as materials and ordinance inspectors. It is highly essential that the course be following by a month of practical training in an arsenal or navy yard, Hammond said.

Krouse Announces Shingle Recipients

Four women and sixteen men were chosen to receive certificates of merit as the twenty outstanding seniors of the 1940-41 collegiate year by the senior awards committee, H. Leonard Krouse, chairman, announced last night.

The committee of juniors in releasing the names cited the student leaders for "work done over and above the requirements of their offices" and for "major contributions to the welfare of the College."

Shingles as certificates of merit will be presented to the twenty seniors during Class Day exercises.

Graduating women named for honors are L. Elinor Benfer, retiring head of Women's Judicial; Jean C. Craighead, Portfolio editor; Marjory A. Harwick, retiring WRA president; and Elinor L. Weaver, retiring WSGA president.

Awards will be presented to the following men: Thomas C. Backenstose, 1940-41 president of Pennsylvania Student Government Association; Robert N. Baker, All-College vice-president; John Barr, Penn State's outstanding athlete of the year; William B. Bartholomew, senior class president; Jack W. Brand, AA president; W. Lewis Corbin, retiring Tribunal head.

Samuel A. Dum, Agriculture School Council president; Peter G. Fetzko, Education School Council president; David I. Finkle, chairman of the exam file committee; Leon J. Gajewski, All-American center; Arnold C. Laich, retiring All-College president; Richard C. Peters, Collegian sports editor; Theodore Rice, chairman of Interclass Finance Board; Paul J. Scally, EIBA 175-pound champion; Adam A. Smyser, Collegian editor; and H. Edward Wagner, IFC president.

Hillel Announces Plans For Weekend

In honor of Mother's Day, the Hillel Foundation is sponsoring a program of activities this weekend, Harold Berger '42, newly re-elected president, announced yesterday.

A special service conducted by students and assisted by the Hillel Choir will be held at 7 o'clock tonight and tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 3:15 p.m. The Hillel Theatre Group will present the comedy, "The Education of Hyman Kaplan" in the auditorium of the Hillel Foundation.

The Hillel Foundation will also hold a night-club dance tomorrow evening at 8 p.m., and an open house on Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m.
