Lion Shrine Model Gets Trustees' OK

Two Classes Make Fund Appropriations

Six major actions clearing standing campus problems and routine business matters were taken by the College Board of Trustees over the weekend.

1. The College will provide a plot of ground and $1,000 of the estimated $2,500 cost of the Penn State Riding Club's proposed stable and paddock. (See story below).

2. A model for the proposed Lion Shrine submitted by Heinz Warneke, noted sculptor, was approved by the committee on architecture. Actual carving of the 1940 class gift will begin at the Water Tower site next fall.

3. The executive committee approved two class memorial gifts. Balance of the 1932 fund devoted to murals will assist in securing more books for the College library. Memorial fund of the class of 1922 will establish a new scholarship fund.

4. Eight College employees and faculty members will be retired in July and September.

5. Seven campus cottages are to be known officially under the sorority names of the groups occupying them.

6. Two sabbatical leaves and five leaves for military service were approved by the executive committee.

The committee on architecture with the advice and approval of Paul Philippe Cret, College architect, stipulated that Warneke shall work on the Lion Shrine in view of the students. This was the same reservation applied to

Riding Club Gets Land And $1,000

A plot of ground and $1,000 for the Riding Club's proposed stable and paddock was voted by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees in its weekend meeting. The final cost of the project is estimated at $2,500.

The site will be at the rear of the barn on College Farm No. 6, at the Evergreens east of town. The structure will become the property of the College. Club membership will be restricted to students and College employees, and its policies will be controlled by the Board of Trustees.

In addition to providing horses, feed, and equipment, and raising funds for its share of the building cost, the club must pay the College $150 a year for maintenance and repair of the building. The club will be responsible for accidents and liability insurance for members, but the College will provide fire insurance, electricity, and water.

Funds of the club will be supervised through the office of student activities, Neil M. Fleming, treasurer. An advisory group to set up stable and riding regulations will be composed of one member of the animal husbandry department and the Physical Education School, the superintendent of College Farms, and three members of the Riding club.

Athletic Board Advocates Buses

Brought to a head by last week's Greyhound bus strike, a long-considered recommendation to have the Athletic Association buy its own buses to transport athletic teams unanimously passed the Athletic Advisory Board Saturday morning.

The Board also:

1. Reduced the admission on this fall's Dad's Day football game with Lehigh from the standard $2.20 to $1.10.

2. Voted to join the Eastern Collegian Swimming Association with Pittsburgh, Rutgers, New York University, Lehigh, Franklin and Marshall, Brooklyn, City College of New York, Carnegie Tech, Delaware and Lafayette.

3. Okayed the first night football game in Penn State history with NYU on Friday, October 31, at the Polo Grounds in New York. (See page 3)

Two buses, one seating 20 and the other 30 passengers, will be bought from Athletic Association funds if the College approves and will be available for use by other schools when not in use by athletic teams. Arrangements are to be made to keep them downtown.

Collegian Candidates Invited To Smoker

All freshman Collegian candidates for both the business and editorial staffs are invited to the annual smoker to be held at Delta Chi, 412 E. Fairmount avenue, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

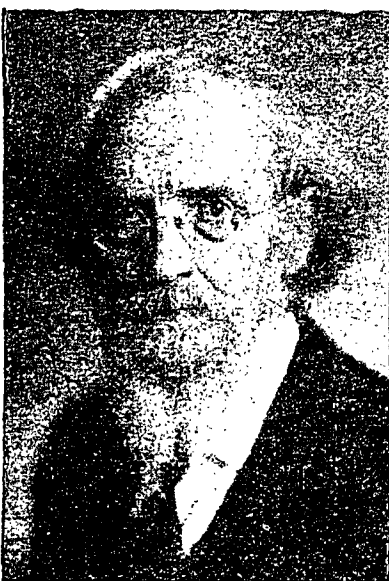

Although meetings for the freshmen candidates have been under way for some time, all freshmen who are interested in making the Collegian are invited this evening.

Dancing and refreshments are on the bill along with some short talks by members of the journalism department about the opportunities open to freshmen on the Collegian.

Deadline Extended

The deadline for senior cap and gown orders has been extended to 5 p. m. Wednesday. Orders may be placed either today or tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Student Union.

Burial Today

Garver Services Set For 2 p.m.

Penn State's Prof. Emeritus Madison M. Garver, who until his death early Sunday morning was Cornell's oldest living alumnus, will be buried this afternoon following funeral services that will be held from Koch's Funeral Home at 2 o'clock.

Professor Garver, who was 93 years old at the time of his death, had been ill since August, 1937, when he suffered a broken hip in a fall on the porch stairs of his home.

He was a retired associate professor of physics, and librarian of the School of Chemistry and Physics at the College. He came to the College in 1893, after working a number of years with electric companies throughout the East.

Born in Scotland, Pa., November 12, 1847, Professor Garver moved with his parents to Illinois when he was 15. He served four months in the Civil War before he became ill with typhoid fever. After teaching school two years, he enrolled at Cornell University in 1872 and became a brilliant oarsman on the Big Red crew.

Following graduation, he served as a member of Cornell's faculty and later taught natural sciences at Mercersburg Academy. Prior to going into the industrial field, he worked for two years with Van de Poole, inventor of the trolley car.

Cabinet To Meet

Installation of new officers and members will be held at All-College Cabinet meeting in Room 305 Old Main at 9 o'clock tonight, President Arnold C. Laich '41 announced.

Two Found Dead In Wrecked Plane

Definite identification was made last night of the two bodies found in a badly crashed plane discovered 20 miles from Lewis-town.

Benjamin Brewster, New York investment banker, and his wife, missing since Friday afternoon, were identified by Brewster's brother-in-law, who rushed to the scene of the crash.

An American Airlines pilot traveling from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh and slightly off his course was the first one to sight the charred wreckage of the plane yesterday afternoon. Later two other flyers confirmed his report.

The plane crashed on Shade Mountain, one of the wildest mountains in the state and part of what is known as the "Aviator's Graveyard" because of its reputation as an airman's hazard.

Brewster and his wife left Roosevelt Field, Long Island, N. Y., at 2:10 p. m. on a flight to Warren, O. In two and one-half hours, none-stop flight they would have reached their destination.

Earliest reports on the possible location of the plane came this morning when the CAA Weather Station at Bellefonte reported that a farmer had heard a plane motor go dead about 7:30 p. m. Friday. However, planes and searching parties were not successful in that area.

Brewster was 35, and had more than 1000 flying hours to his credit.

Artists' Course Tickets On Sale Only Two Days

Only two days will be allotted to the May sale of Artists' Course tickets, Dr. Carl E. Marquardt, committee chairman, announced last night.

Faculty members and townspeople may purchase their tickets tomorrow. After the sale of student seats on Thursday no tickets will be available until the main sale in the fall.

Ticket buyers at the preliminary sale will not receive the actual series ticket but will obtain a receipt indicating the location of their seats for the 1941-42, course. Seats cannot be exchanged and there will be no cash refunds.

Students Approve Two Amendments

Robert P. Brooks '42 and James W. Ritter '42 will vie for the presidency of the Athletic Association and Elmer A. Gross '42 and C. Homer Hoffman '42 will run for the secretaryship in run-off elections today as the result of the failure of any candidate to poll a majority vote in yesterday's balloting.

Amendments restoring the four-year eligibility rule and changing the numeral award were passed by substantial majorities.

Baird Will Act On Manager Problem

Proposing that "athletic teams should have more voice in choosing their managers," Robert D. Baird '42, newly inaugurated All-College president, said last night that he intends to start an immediate and forceful investigation to "get the facts" on Penn State's managership controversy.

The altercation, which has arisen on several occasions at recent All-College Cabinet meetings, was brought to head Tuesday in Baird's inaugural speech when he claimed that "he would attempt to get an investigation to find if managerships are being used as political footballs."

Another issue, which Baird intends to give extensive support, concerns the co-operative movement. Through recommendations made by Cabinet, such a movement would be instrumental in saving both time and money for students, Baird said.

"Too, fraternity co-ops would be a good thing, since numerous Penn State fraternities are becoming pinched financially because of rising prices and an indefinite future," Baird added.

In becoming the third All-College president, Baird said, "I really intend to do more than what I say, if I only have time to do it before I get called by the draft board." As the situation stands now, it is highly probable that neither Baird nor the All-College vice-president, Gerald F. Doherty '42, will be able to complete their term because of the draft.
