

Harrisburg Holds Keys To Funds For Financing College

By ADAM A. SMYSER

The state legislature, tied up by political division, still hasn't come around to providing the usual Penn State appropriations, but the bars are down now that the soil erosion probe has ended. The Senate has considered quite a few Penn State bills and is further advanced than the House but will have to rush to make a June adjournment date.

The delay hasn't kept bills from coming in for the College. Some of these it has sponsored itself. Others have been submitted by interested outsiders. The latest

$7,444,666 Pending

Penn State appropriation bills now pending before the State Legislature for the biennium beginning June 1 are:

Maintenance	$5,509,545
Aeronautical Eng.	300,000
Ag. Research	321,000
Ag. Research Buildings	110,000
Flax Research	200,000
Tobacco Research	25,000
Coal and Oil Research	125,000
Coal Research	75,000
Child Nutrition Research	20,000
GSA Building Rentals	759,121
Total	$7,444,666

tally shows that if all were passed, Penn State would receive some $7,444,666 in the next two years. Confidentially, that is more than it expects.

The $5,509,545 maintenance bill will probably pass but it may be pared closer to the $4,375,000 figure requested by the Governor. His figure is the same as the pre-

ADS Campaign Best In Nation

National recognition came to the local chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity, when it won the first place award in a national interchapter advertising campaign competition, according to an announcement received yesterday by Prof. Donald W. Davis, faculty advisor.

The local chapter will receive the President's Cup for one year, $100 in cash from Printer's Ink Publishing Co., and gold honor keys for the following chapter members: Robert Bachman '41, Robert K. Coplon '41, Murray D. Druck '41, Fred R. Nale '42, Ralph C. Routsong '41, David E. Wagenseller, Jr. '41, and Don C. West '41.

New York University won the second place award, while Northwestern University and the University of California received honorable mention.

PS Club Will Hold Annual Picnic Sunday

The Penn State Club will hold its annual spring picnic at Greenwood Furnace, Sunday afternoon, President Arthur Peskoe '42, has announced.

Club members may come with or without dates. The cost is 25 cents per person, with the club providing the transportation and food. Those wishing to attend must sign up in the clubroom today.

This Is All—See You In September!

With this issue The Daily Collegian bids its readers goodbye until September, while members of the staff open some badly neglected textbooks in a frantic attempt to catch up on their studies.

Collegian hopes it has served the College well during its first year as a daily and promises to work even harder next year toward realization of its platform, "For a Better Penn State."

The Summer Collegian will appear weekly starting June 30 and continuing throughout Summer Session. The annual freshman issue will be sent out September 4.

Senior Hot Dog To Reign Sunday

Sunday is the day when the seniors will gather on Jordan Fertility Plots at 5:30 p. m. to eat hot dogs, choose the "Hot Dog" of the day, and have fun. If rain halts the fun, the roast will be held at the same place and time Monday.

Lions coats decorations will be judged and prizes awarded to both a male and female with the most original.

Candidates for Senior Hot Dog are Edward B. Harris, William E. LaPorte, and Roy P. Rogers. Chosen at the hot dog roast, the king of the day will reign over the festivities.

Co-chairmen George L. Parrish and W. Lewis Corbin have announced that plenty of entertainment will be provided and that all seniors will be admitted free. Faculty and administrative members are invited.

7-Semester Seniors Must Pay La Vie Dues

All seniors who have spent less than eight semesters on campus and wish to obtain the 1941 La Vie should make arrangements with Miss Bottorf, Room 102 Old Main.

Each semester $1.25 is taken from class dues to pay for the yearbook, which is priced at $10. Transfer students, two-year ags, or students who have resided at Mont Alto or at an undergraduate center prior to coming here must pay the difference between the amount deducted from their class dues here and the total price of the annual.

La Vie will be distributed at the Athletic Association ticket windows beginning Monday morning.

In The First World War 'All-Out' Program Influenced Downfall Of Collegiate Sports

By GORDON COY
Penn State's "all-out" program during the first World War met with tremendous success in every department except sports, as over 2,000 students, alumni, and administrative officers offered direct and indirect services to their country.

Football, the king of college sports in America, was hardest hit, especially during the autumn of 1918. The first hint of football's downfall came in the 1917 season, when Grid Captain Conover joined the army along with most of his teammates.

The following season, Penn State played only four games on the gridiron. During the campaign, Captain Robb also answered the call to service and was replaced by Unger. In fact, most of the team

81st Commencement Plans Announced; Hetzel Advises Draftees On Crisis

Trained Men Needed, President Points Out

A letter from President Ralph D. Hetzel will be sent tomorrow to every Penn State student who has registered for Selective Service. It will summarize the present uncertain situation as it applies to this college.

"Because your country finds itself in a situation of great seriousness, it has called upon you to serve. In the armed forces, there is need of young men possessing superior intelligence and the qualities of leadership; in the defense industries, there is need of technically trained young men with similar qualifications," writes President Hetzel.

"It is a matter of national policy, as expressed by the Selective Service organization itself, that young men having particular qualifications should serve where they are most needed."

President Hetzel points out that present conditions should not dim a student's desire for a college diploma. He says, "Those who do not go into military service have an obligation to put their best efforts into their education. The need for well educated men has never been more urgent."

The national government is advising all young men to continue in college until they are actually called, he reveals. The Selective Service director has announced that local draft boards may postpone induction for sixty days or even longer in the case of students who are in the midst of a semester.

"By the same token," says President Hetzel, "students who have not finished their course

Summer Session Offers Vocational Ed Course

An advanced course dealing with problems arising in vocational education for national defense will be conducted by two experts in vocational education during Summer Session, June 30 to August 8.

The visiting instructors will be the executive secretary of the American Vocational Association and Dr. B. H. Van Ott, state director of vocational education in Virginia. The course will be open to high school teachers and to instructors in the current defense training program.

"THE NEED FOR well educated men has never been more urgent," says President Ralph D. Hetzel, counselling draft enrollees not going into military service to continue their college education.

Sizoo To Speak At Baccalaureate

This year's baccalaureate address, scheduled for Rec Hall at 11 a. m. June 8, will be delivered by Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas in New York City, the Public Occasions committee announced last night.

Dr. Sizoo, born in The Netherlands, was a missionary in India for two years and was a minister of the American Church at The Hague in the summer of 1923.

The baccalaureate speaker, who was engaged as minister at William Jennings Bryan's funeral, has also become a noted author. He held the post of army chaplain of the Y. M. C. A. service in the World War.

Dr. Sizoo authored the books "Abraham Lincoln—A Heritage and a Hope," "William Jennings Bryan," "Where Abraham Lincoln Went To Church," "The Faiths of the World and Our Faith," and "The Kingdom Cometh."

Spring Houseparty Weekend To Climax 'Final' Exam Period

When finals and "cram sessions" are over for the year, the professors will whisper "Thank God" and students will relax at the annual spring houseparty weekend starting June 6.

The Penn State Players will begin the weekend festivities with their presentation of "Goodbye Again," in the Schwab Auditorium on Friday and Saturday, June 6 and 7.

On Saturday afternoon, the varsity baseball team will meet its perennial rival, Pittsburgh, in the final tilt of the season on New Beaver Field.

Fraternalities will climax the spring houseparty with special house dances featuring popular state and national dance bands.

Candidates To Meet

Freshman men and women candidates for the Collegian business staff will meet in Room 318 Old Main at 8 p. m. Sunday. All candidates who have not reported yet are requested to be present at this meeting.

Outdoor Program Set For Monday, June 9

Following a custom established by the two previous graduating classes, the 81st annual College commencement will be staged outdoors on New Beaver Field at 10:30 a. m. Monday, June 9, the College Committee on Public Occasions announced yesterday.

Graduates will be seated on chairs to be arranged on the football field and the entire west stands will be available for parents and friends. Tickets of admission will not be required.

The commencement procession will form behind the east stands on the outfield of the baseball field at 10 a. m. Letters posted on the back of the stands will direct the respective graduates. Graduate students should gather at area "J"; Physical Education "K"; Mineral Industries "L"; Engineering "M"; Chemistry and Physics "N"; Agriculture "O"; Education "P"; and Liberal Arts "Q."

In case of inclement weather the committee has arranged to have Rec Hall immediately available. Since seating facilities in Rec Hall are limited, admission for parents and friends may be by ticket only. Each member of the senior class may receive three guest tickets to be distributed at the Athletic Store on June 5, 6, or 7 when cap and gown are received.

Those persons receiving masters' or doctors' degrees may see—

Students Give Farewell Dinner For Klassen

Approximately 80 students attended a farewell dinner for Prof. Peter B. Klassen of the sociology department in the Sandwich Shop last night.

Robert D. Baird '42, All-College president, acted as toastmaster and complimented Professor Klassen for "his intimate contact with students and his understanding of student problems."

Professor Klassen will teach at the University of Chicago next year after serving at the College for two years. Edwin Jones '41 presented the faculty member with a record album of Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony.
