New College Traffic Regulations Released By Campus Patrol

Students May Park In Only Two Areas

New campus traffic regulations, which go into effect immediately and which apply both to students and faculty members, were released by the Campus Patrol, Saturday.

Under the new rules, students may park automobiles in only two areas: the west parking lot near the varsity tennis courts, and the Shortlidge Road lot across from Frances Atherton Hall.

The regulations eliminate all parking on Pollock Road between the west end of the New Physics Building and the east end of the Mineral Industries Building between 7 a. m. and 6 p. m. Parking is prohibited on Burrowes Road between the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house and West College Avenue, and on Shortlidge Road.

During four hours of the day, another rule provides for one-way traffic on Burrowes Road between Pollock Road and West College Avenue. From 7:30 to 8:30 a. m. and from 12:45 p. m. to 1:45 p. m. traffic will be northbound only. From 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. it will be southbound only.

Faculty and staff members are permitted to park in any parking area. When the owner is on an errand, parking will be permitted on the north side of roads running east and west, and on the west side of roads running north and south. Visitors are also permitted to park in these locations.

The rules state that speed on central campus roads is limited strictly to 20 miles per hour and "to a rate within this limit which provides for the safety of pedestrians."

Col. Tchou Speaks 76 Students Register Here Next Week For Draft; 88 Sign At Local Draft Board

One of the foremost Chinese citizens in America, Col. M. Thomas Tchou, will lecture in Schwab Auditorium at 8 p. m. next Thursday, July 10.

Colonel Tchou's lecture is sponsored by the summer sessions division of the College. He will speak on the subject, "China's Fight for Civilization." The lecture is free.

Colonel Tchou was for three years consecutive China's chief representative at the International Labor Conferences in Geneva, Switzerland. He is a noted authority on the far eastern crisis and was the creator of modern housing for China's poor.

He was formerly private secretary to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the Chinese army, and was director of the labor department of the Chinese government for three years.

Colonel Tchou is a graduate of the University of Glasgow, Scotland, in mechanical, civil and naval engineering. He is one of China's leading social thinkers and has drafted factory laws and child labor laws, in addition to housing legislation.

Under the personal direction of General and Madame Chiang Kai-shek, he organized and established the Officers' Moral Endeavor Association, the forerunner of the New Life Movement. He is the author of many books dealing with housing, social, and labor problems of China.

He also ranks as one of China's leading painters. Colonel Tchou is an accomplished linguist, speaking English, French and German as well as Chinese.

Classes Halt Tomorrow For July 4 Celebration

Because of the July 4 holiday, there will be no summer session classes tomorrow, according to an announcement from the summer sessions office.

Classes will be held on Saturday, July 12 in order to make up for time lost during registration last Monday. Classes, on July 12, will follow the regular Monday schedule. There will be no Saturday classes after that.

Boys' State Here In August

A spokesman for the American Legion predicted early this week that the population of State College will jump approximately 1,350 for the period from August 1 to August 10—and he also predicted that they'll all be boys between 15 and 20 years old.

He's right, too, for those are the dates of this year's American Legion Boys'-State to be held in State College. It is not yet known how many boys will attend but 1,350 were at last year's state held at Indiantown Gap.

Boys chosen for attendance are leaders in their schools and communities and are in the 15 to 20 age limit with the average between 17 and 18. Last year, 33 organizations participated with the American Legion in choosing boys from all over the state.

The Boys' State has been held for six years. The boys all live together with each unit electing leaders. Units in turn elect district leaders, law enforcement officers and other officials. The whole group chooses representatives to its legislature with the election of a governor, complete with campaigning and all the other details of a real election, as the climax.

The entire State follows municipal and state government plans and furnishes excellent, practical experience in civic and democratic procedure. The boys maintain their own disciplinary system.

Directories Obtainable

Student directories may be obtained at Student Union, Old Main, Saturday. Those who failed to reserve copies may buy them at the price of 15 cents.

College Trains 10 Stenographers

Ten girls started a special stenography course Monday which is designed to train them for jobs in emergency defense training programs as the College extension service.

The group of 10 was selected from more than 50 applicants who wanted to take the course which will supply skilled workers to offset the deficiency of stenographers in a department of the College that is itself trying to train 14,000 men for technical jobs in defense.

The course lasts 13 days with no time off, except Sundays. The girls will go to school tomorrow, July 4, and on Saturdays.

Night study at home will be necessary "to absorb the instruction," according to Miss Margaret (Continued on Page Six)

College Will Turn Over House Of Joseph Priestley To State

A famous international shrine of science, the home of Dr. Joseph Priestley, a property of the College since 1932, will be maintained by the State in the future under a bill now in the legislature.

Located on the banks of the Susquehanna River in Northumberland, it is the same house in which Priestley, discoverer of oxygen, found refuge in America after he had been driven out of England because of his progressive religious and political teachings. He built the house in 1794, and lived in it until his death in 1804.

Although of general interest, the house and property of Priestley received no attention and was rapidly reaching a state where restoration and preservation would no longer be possible.

It was at this state that Dr. George G. Pond, Dean of the School of Chemistry at the College, took interest in the house and through the generosity of the Chemistry alumni was able to buy the entire property in 1919. Approximately $22,000 was collected after Dr. Pond's death the following year and expended in restoring the house, developing the grounds and in the construction of a fire proof museum.

Feeling that title to the property should be vested in some self-perpetuating organization, the Chemistry alumni of the College transferred the property to the College in 1932. After maintaining the Priestley House for 11 years, the College is now ready to turn it over to the State and thus assure its permanent preservation.

Many New Registrants Expected To Be Called Before End Of Year

Seventy-six students registered at the special draft registration in Rec Hall and 88 registered at Local Board No. 1 in the borough during the nation's second day of peacetime registration Tuesday.

The registrants—164 in all—are a small part of approximately 1,000,000 who became 21 years of age since the first registration day last October 16. At that time, 1,354 students registered at the College registration in the Armory.

It is expected that a large majority of the new registrants will be under arms six months from now but it is not known to what extent this will apply to college students.

Students who registered last October were accorded special legislation which permitted them to be deferred until the end of the academic year. However, that law is no longer effective and students may now have to go immediately when called.

The only present hope for deferment of students comes from a request made by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, acting director of Selective Service, several months ago. He asked local boards, who have final authority, to "postpone the induction of students until the end of the semester in which they are called."

If draft boards abide by General Hershey's request, most students will be able to finish at least one semester without interruption. After that, they will probably be called immediately.

It is evidently the opinion of college officials that this will be the case for they have predicted that enrollment next fall will be only slightly affected by the draft. (Continued on Page Eight)

Enrollment Now At 2,200 Mark

Incomplete tabulation of enrollment statistics yesterday revealed that approximately 2,200 students are in attendance at the main summer session.

This figure, released from the registrar's office, does not include those attending the Band and Orchestra School or the students taking summer work at Altoona. A few regular summer students were also missed in the tabulation.

Prof. R. W. Grant, head of the department of music, said that about 125 students were in the Band and Orchestra School. These, with the few at Altoona, will probably bring the final enrollment figure to approximately 2,350.

This will be nearly 500 less than the 2,821 enrolled here last summer when attendance exceeded the 1939 figure by about 100.

No breakdown is yet available one the enrollment figure. Last year there were 1,491 men and 1,332 women. Graduate students numbered 1,070, undergraduates 628, and those taking general courses 1,015.

The decrease in enrollment has been attributed to national defense which, it is believed, has provided jobs for many men who came to the College summer session in past years.
