Buffalo Bids $750 For Blue Band Debut

SEE EDIT

A communication from the Buffalo Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday which stated that the group was in a position to offer $750 toward transporting the Penn State Blue Band to the Colgate-Penn State football game on Oct. 4 initiated similar action on campus today.

With another $750 needed to send the band to Buffalo, student leaders found two sources by which funds could be made available in the last minute search for immediate money.

They reported that an appropriation of $375 from the Athletic Association by consent of the Athletic Advisory Board, which meets this Saturday, could be made, and another $375 could be transferred from the budget of the Interclass Finance Board. The latter amount, it was revealed, could be covered partly from money designated each year for repair and dry cleaning of band uniforms.

It was pointed out that the new uniforms which were purchased this year will not need the attention or incur the expense which was required by the old uniforms.

G. Mowson Berg, president of the Buffalo Junior Chamber of Commerce, asked that the band attend the game because "We here in Buffalo are very anxious to have your Penn State band at the Colgate football game.

We' includes not only our football committee, but our entire membership, the Penn State and Colgate alumni groups, and the, at least, 25,000 people who will be at the game."

The band would probably appear at the joint Penn State-Colgate rally at the Buffalo Memorial Auditorium on Friday, October 3, and there is also a possibility that the band would broadcast over the Buffalo radio station that same evening.

Money for two Blue Band trips is included in the Interclass Finance budget each year. This fall, the band is scheduled to play at the Temple and Pitt football games.

Navy To Train College Units

Naval Aviation Training may now be taken by graduates and undergraduates in their own college units, Ralph Cox, Jr., member of the cadet selection board, has announced.

The Navy Department recently released authorization to physically examine, enlist, and train individual college groups, keeping them intact throughout the entire training period.

Requirements for admission to Naval Reserve Aviation Training are a minimum of two years of college, age 20 to 27, height 64 to 72 inches, weight, proportionate but not over 200 pounds. The eyes must be normal, 20-20, and with normal color perception.

Units may file application together, or if any have already made application, deferment may be granted awaiting formation of the college group. Preliminary training will be conducted at the Navy Yard, Philadelphia, and advanced training at Jacksonville, Pensacola, or Corpus Christi.

Following the completion of this training, students will be qualified to receive commissions as Naval Ensigns, after which they will be ordered to regular duty at some U. S. Naval Base.

Pilot Training Applicants Called

Applications for the Civilian Pilot Training course are now available in 208 Main Engineering, Coordinator R. O. Wickersham, professor of aeronautical engineering, announced yesterday.

Training will consist of 72 hours of ground school work on the campus and 35 hours of flight training at the Boalsburg Airport. Students participating in flight work will be charged a fee of approximately $25 to cover physical examination, insurance, and administrative expenses.

Ground school work will be supervised by Professor Wickersham, while flight training will be under the direction of Sherm Lutz.
