Miriam Rhein Sings For Horse's Supper In Penn State Band

When Dr. E. R. Rhein sent his daughter, Miriam, to college, he said he would be glad to pay her expenses, but he refused to send her favorite horse along, too.

As a result, Miriam, who will sing on the Hour of Charm program Sunday night, decided to "work her horse through college."

To do this, she got a job singing with Jimmy Leyden's Penn State Collegians. With the money she earned she had enough for oats and other stuff horses eat, in addition to stable rent.

That launching of a singing career led to Miriam's being chosen as Penn State's representative on the Hour of Charm collegiate audition series.

Miriam will get $100, plus $25 for spending money, plus an expenses-paid trip to New York, accompanied by Mrs. Shirley Bernreuter, of State College, whom she has chosen as her chaperon.

In addition to her band career, Miriam has been active in both Thespians and Players and was a member of the College Choir in her freshman year. She is a senior life saver and goes for tennis and ice skating.

She says that there are nine dentists in her family and that all the ladies study art. Besides her singing interests, Miriam plays the cello and the piano for pastime.

Honorary To Display Chemistry Exhibits

Iota Sigma Pi, national women's chemistry honorary, will display chemistry exhibits at an open house for all women chemistry students in Grange playroom at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, November 6.

In charge are Mrs. William Bramble, chairman, Rhoda F. Sannuel '42, and Jean E. Ruess '43.

HOUR OF CHARM
 AUDITIONS FOR UNIVERSITY WOMEN

• A strictly super must for every Adam and Eve, this Sunday night! Any droop who doesn't hug a sound box when Phil Spitalny and his all-femme combo put our own campus thrush on the waves, should be tossed—and we mean good. Remember, the little gal is going to be chirpin' for us home-folks, and our thunder may help her to cop off the four-grand scholarship for the old Almy Mammy. "Intestinal Fortitude"*—to you.
