Collegian Observes Football Half Holiday

In observance of the football half-holiday granted annually to the students, the Daily Collegian will suspend publication until Tuesday, when issue 22 of Collegian's 150 per year will appear.

With the prospect of a long weekend made possible by the cancelling of classes tomorrow morning many students are planning to make the 200 mile trip to Philadelphia to witness the game with the Temple Owls.

Along with the immigration of undergraduates will go the Blue Band, Nittany Lion, townspeople, and faculty. The group will be swelled in the Quaker City by a large contingent of alumni who are residents there.

LA Council Plans Soph Membership

Action was taken yesterday by the Liberal Arts Council to permit a limited number of sophomores from the lower division to serve on the Council.

Petitions will be used for nominations and an open voting poll in the Sparks Building will be used for final voting, the Council decided. The number of names needed on petitions and the date when they are due will be decided at the next meeting.

The council plans to sponsor three smokers during the year for the arts and letters, commerce and finance, and journalism departments. Arts and letters will have the first one, near the end of November.

The plan of having a smoking and social room in the Sparks Building was endorsed by the Council. Plans are also under way for some method of relieving congestion of students at the lower side door of Sparks Building between classes.

Alice M. Murray '42 was appointed Council representative to the Council Administration Committee by William O. Meyers '42, Council president.

Petrella, Tomasic Big Offense Guns

By BOB SCHOOLEY

Accompanied to Philadelphia by a throng of students celebrating their annual football holiday, the underdog Nittany Lion eleven will encounter an undefeated Temple Owl team when the opening whistle blows for the game in Temple Stadium at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Penn State will be attempting to even the series, tomorrow's game being the fourth between the two teams. Temple snatched victories in 1931 by vanquishing the Lions, 12-0, and repeated a victory the next year, 13-12. The only Nittany victory over the Owls came last year when Penn State upset Coach Ray Morrison's highly-rated team 18-0.

Temple has garnered three victories under the lights this year, having conquered Kansas, V. M. I., and Georgetown. The battle with the Lions will be their first daylight tilt this season.

Although the Lions are the underdogs in the battle, Coach Morrison is taking no chances and has been drilling his team in secret sessions. However, the Nittany Lions have a habit of playing their best against Philadelphia

A great offensive battle has been predicted, with Pepper Petrella expected to blind the Owls with his flashy running, and Captain Andy Tomasic, Temple's All-American candidate, certain to cause the Lions no little trouble with his triple-threat ability.

To combat the aerial war which Tomasic undoubtedly will launch, the Nittany Lions will rely on the passing of Bill Smaltz and the receiving ability of Captain Len Krouse. Tomasic is dangerous, particularly on running passes. Opponents have been unable to predict whether he will pass or make an end sweep with the ball when he fades and looks for pass receivers.

Coach Bob Higgins has prepared a pass defense which he hopes will stem Owl threats through the air. The grid mentor's chief worry is to keep Tomasic from getting beyond the line of scrimmage, for he is one of the best broken-field runners in the nation.

Caterers' Group Merges With IFC

The Penn State Interfraternity Caterers' Association, previously independent of the Interfraternity Council, officially joined forces with the council last night at a meeting held at the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, according to Thomas J. L. Henson '42, IFC president.

Instead of setting up an entirely new organization, fraternity caterers decided to incorporate the association that had been set up last year. The officers of the first caterers group were retained and their constitution, set up at their reorganization meeting last Wednesday, will be voted on.

Herbert C. Jennings '43, president of the group, stated, "I feel that now we are collaborating with the IFC, greater accomplishments can be made in making the organization a successful one."

The next meeting of the caterers will be held at the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, October 22.
