

Sports, Comedy, And Receptions Planned For Dads

With hundreds of "dads" arriving last night and many more due in during the morning, Dads' Day Weekend faces a big day of festivities with the Lehigh football game in the featured spot and receptions planned by fraternities, sororities, and independent groups. Sports events will highlight the program for the visiting parents. In addition to the varsity football game, they may watch the varsity soccer team attempt to chalk up its 64th game without defeat at the expense of the Syracuse booters, or take in two freshman athletic contests, a football game with the Syracuse frosh and a soccer game with the Mont Alto yearling foresters.

In the evening the Penn State Players, campus dramatic group, will give a repeat performance of "The Male Animal" in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock. The show, a collegiate comedy, was first presented on Alumni Homecoming Weekend.

Throughout the day, Heinz Warneke's plaster model of the lion shrine, which he will carve out of limestone next spring on the selected site near the Water Tower, will be exhibited in the mezzanine of Old Main.

The famous land grant mural, painted last spring by Henry Varnum Poor, may also be seen above the first stairs landing from the Old Main lobby.

Individual Dads' Day programs, including dinners, smokers, card parties, and entertainment will be held by fraternities, sororities, and independent rooming groups.

Many town churches will hold special affairs tonight and tomorrow for the visiting parents and the Dads' Day chapel service will be given in Schwab Auditorium at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Education School Plans Jamboree

An Education School jamboree, featuring dancing, entertainment, and refreshments, will be staged in the Home Economics Building from 7 to 11 p. m. Friday, Richard N. Stevenson '42, president of the Education student council, revealed last night.

Aimed at fostering "unprecedented student-faculty relations," the jamboree is the first of its kind ever sponsored for the entire student and faculty membership of the Education School, according to Stevenson. Freshmen, especially, are urged to attend.

Dating restrictions for freshman men will probably be lifted for those who attend the jamboree, Stevenson, who is a member of Student Tribunal, said. Dancing will be held in 110 Home Economics, while other activities, such as community singing, games, and serving of refreshments will be conducted in other rooms throughout the building.

Committees in charge of the jamboree include: publicity, Frank R. Flynn '43 and James H. Holzman '42; music and entertainment, Elizabeth E. Munroe '43 and Albert A. Zimmer '42; refreshments, Marjorie R. Chambers '43, Natalie A. Siebert '43 and Ruth E. Stamm '43; decorations, Jean L. Lininger '42 and Sylvia P. Schmidler '42; games and recreation, Robert F. Jones '42.

The jamboree, which is comparable to the annual Fall festival held by Agriculture students and faculty, is sponsored through funds appropriated to the Education student council by All-College Cabinet.

My! Times Have Changed—

Old Main No Mere Business Hub But Museum Of Art Treasures

Daddy may have had to visit the new-fangled picture-house or peruse copies of Police Gazette for his State College art appreciation years ago, but not so with Junior.

Today, students just go to Old Main. The building is not only the office of the dean of men but a repository for works of art. Once its revered walls were blank and administrative lightning obliterated prospective defilers. Now, over $16,000 worth of contemporary art adorns the lounges, halls, and offices.

Student interest has been most active in the renaissance. More than $10,000 in class gift funds account for the Land Grant Mural painted by Henry Varnum Poor, and the Lion Shrine model designed by Heinz Warneke.

First movement in the art decoration of Old Main, however, took place when three pictures on loan from the Metropolitan Museum in New York were hung in

Warnock Urges Support Of PSCA

As final plans were made last night for the PSCA finance drive which begins with the annual banquet at the Nittany Lion Inn at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow, A. R. Warnock, dean of men, urged students to cooperate with the campaign.

Contributions to the fund may be pledged by the student at the time he is approached by PSCA solicitors and are payable with second semester fees, Andrew P. Szekely '43, general chairman, revealed last night.

Dean Warnock in his comment stated, "Early in the history of the Penn State student body, the students themselves organized the predecessor of the Penn State Christian association. It was the earliest organized student activity. For 65 years it has been one of the fundamental agencies which have made the Penn State system of student government and activities notable in the college world.

"It has been constantly growing in step with the increased size and significance of the student body. Today it is acknowledged in college Christian association circles as one of the two or three most successful Christian organizations in American colleges and universities.

"Throughout all these years support for the Christian Association has come generously from the whole student body.

"That probably explains why it has been kept so close to the student interest and so much a part of the student self-government system. It is axiomatic that they who pay the bills exercise great control.

"For this reason as well as for the reason that the PSCA renders direct aid to numerous student individuals and to numerous student activities, the student body should make a generous response in the current campaign for funds to support the work of the association program.

Duff Edits PS "Clubber"

After a lapse of two years the Penn State Club has resumed the publication of the "Clubber" under the editorship of Martin C. Duff '43. Duff will be assisted by Harry C. Coleman '44, Paul D. McGowan '43, and Vincent B. Makowski '43. The first issue was distributed to all freshmen. The staff plans to publish once a month.

Lions Clash With Lehigh In Dads' Day Grid Tilt

Higgins May Start Debler And Banbury

By BOB SCHOOLEY

Lehigh's Engineers will lay aside their slide rules for the day and engage a highly favored Nittany Lion eleven on New Beaver Field at 2 p. m. today as the feature sports event scheduled for an expected Dads' Day crowd of 12,000.

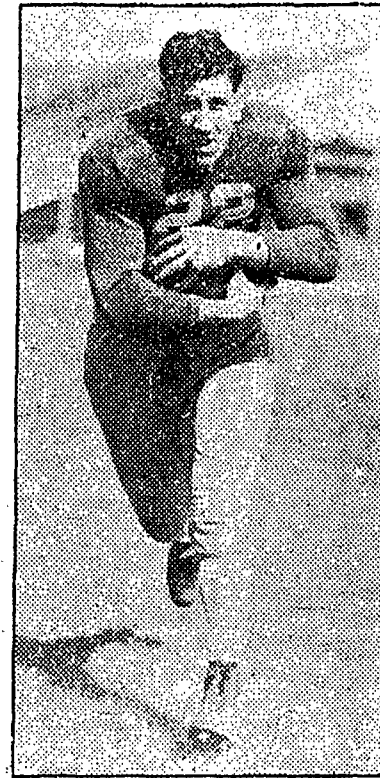

Penn State will be seeking to raise its season's average to .500, having lost to Colgate and Temple and won from Bucknell. Lehigh is still looking for its first victory, having tied Hartwick and Ursinus and lost to Rutgers and Case.

Today's clash will be the 22nd of the series which started in 1888. The Lions have won 14 games of the series and Lehigh 6. One tilt resulted in a tie in 1920. Oddly enough, however, Lehigh trounced the Blue and White gridgers of 1889 by 106-0.

Coach Bob Higgins' strategy today will be to give his reserve backfield a lot of action. During the week he has been polishing the reserve offense. He hinted that he may start two reserves in the backfield. Regulars Pepper Petrella and Bill Smaltz may be rested after their hard game with Temple.

Bill Debler, tailback, has improved his running talent by concentrating on drive and Jack Banbury, fullback, has been running hard through opponents' lines. Banbury was the most effective Lion back in the Temple battle, having netted 37 yards against the Owls. Debler has not seen much service to date, but he has an average of 3.7 yards per try in three games.

The Nittany forward wall will have three new starters when the opening whistle blows. Meryl (Continued on Page Three)

KNEE IN SHAPE—Ralph Ventresco, tailback, will return to duty today after suffering a recurrence of a knee injury last Friday. His passing and running ability will hang the danger flag in the Lion reserve backfield.

Frosh Will Hear Personality Talk

Freshman students may study how to influence people and make friends but causes of their personality development will be explained to them by Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter, professor of psychology, at the final mass meeting in a series of orientation gatherings on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

The class of '45 will be given suggestions for improvement of their individual personalities in Schwab Auditorium where they have already heard about the College, student leaders, their president, and good social usage.

Dr. Bernreuter's talk will be based largely on information secured from experiences in the psycho-educational clinic where more than 900 students were tested and advised last year.

It is believed that campus influences in the personality development will probably be cited in the speech which will conform to the one hour limit for the entire program.

Mary Betty Anderson '42, chairman of the freshman mass meetings committee, will preside over the gathering. James A. McAdam '42 will lead the group singing. The accompanist will be John W. Harkins '42.

Drum And Bugle Corps To Parade Before Game

State College's national championship Junior Drum and Bugle Corps, sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary, will parade on New Beaver Field at 1:30 p. m. today preceding the Penn State-Lehigh football game.

The Corps will present the same formations and music used while winning the national crown in competition with 16 other units at Milwaukee in mid September. Parents of members of the Corps, as well as the unit itself, will be guests of the College at the game.

'Male Animal' Tonight At 8:30

As their contribution to the Dads' Day program, the Penn State Players will present a repeat performance of "The Male Animal" in Schwab Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Enhanced by the reputation of a Broadway run of nearly a year, the James Thurber-Elliott Nugent collaboration on college life will again be directed by Lawrence M. Tucker, department of dramatics.

"Male Animal" relates how an editorial by a campus "radical" almost causes a young professor's dismissal for "Red" leanings. Faced with impending scandal, his wife threatens to elope with an ex-football star. The professor, fortified by an overdose of liquor, then attempts to demonstrate the superiority of brains over brawn.

Donald R. Taylor '42 and Joanne M. Palmer '43 will portray the leading roles of Professor Tommy Turner and his wife Ellen, with Stanley Danowski, graduate, completing the triangle as ex-football star Joe Ferguson.

Remainder of the cast includes: William Reimer '45, the radical college editor; John S. Keck '43, trustee Ed Keller; Ruth Wachs '44, his wife Myrtle; Eleanor Friedman '44, the colored maid Cleota; Elinor F. Herrman '42, Ellen's young sister; Harold Raab '42, present football hero; Robert H. Herrman '44, Dean Damon; Milton Dollinger '44, bandleader "Nutsy" Miller; and Leon Flook '43, newspaper reporter.
