

Rifle Club Boasts High Membership

Boasting the largest enrollment of any WRA Club, Rifle Club membership has doubled within the past two years, which proves that coeds are willing to do more than knit for national defense.

In the White Hall Rifle Range, 30 coeds learn shooting techniques including the military sighting system, the prone position, and how to use a sling. Practice periods are scheduled from 4 to 5:30 p. m. and 7 to 9:30 p. m. Mondays to Thursdays, inclusive. Equipment is provided for all interested coeds.

Teachers include Miss Marie Haidt, director of women's physical education, and old club members Martha E. Powers '42, Jean K. Snyder '42, Barbara Torrence '42, Odette M. Scrivanich '43, Marjorie I. Zint '43, and Helen D. McKee '44.

Last year telegraphic matches were held with approximately 20 colleges including the University of California, Beaver, Drexel, University of Michigan, University of Minnesota, and Gettysburg.

Similar matches will be started second semester with the ten consistently high scorers representing the College.

Tentative plans have been made to organize an honorary for high scorers, to be called the "22'ers."

To Discuss Research

Mrs. Ethel Austin Martin, director of the Nutritional Dairy Council of Chicago, will address home economics nutrition classes in 110, Home Economics, at 7 p. m. Monday on recent dairy research and the council's part in national defense.

Proclamation!

No Two Ways 'bout Hawkins Day; Watch Out, Men, H'yar They Come!

Know all men who ain't married by these presents, and specially I'll Abner Yokum:

Whereas there be inside our town limits a passel of gals who ain't married but craves something awful to be, and

Whereas these gals' pappies and mammies have been shouldering the burden of their board and keep for more years than is tolerable, and

Whereas there be plenty of young men what could marry these gals but acts ornery and won't and

Whereas we deems matrimony's joys and being sure of eating regular the birthright of our fair womanhood.

We hereby proclaims and decrees, by right of the power and majesty vested in us as Mayor of Dogpatch, Saturday, November 8, as Sadie Hawkins Day.

Whereon a foot-race will be held, the unmarried gals to chase

We, The Women Collegian, Houseparty—Which Vice Is Versa?

Life is real, life is earnest, And it might be made sublime. If we didn't have to bother With Collegian all the time.

The above ditty is what happens when a couple of Collegianites give up houseparty weekend to reach a deadline for the subscriber's benefit.

And after all this work, your houseparty eyelids probably haven't been open long enough to read this far. But ours are just as heavy, even though they didn't get that way from having fun.

Campus Romance Is 'Real Thing'

Campus romances, instead of being casually put aside at graduation, account for half the marriages of former women students, College statistics reveal.

Out of 765 recent Penn State alumnae now married, 53.24 per cent boast Penn State men as husbands. Nearly all the marriages resulted from campus friendships.

Replies from 67 per cent of 1,752 questionnaires sent to regular session coeds who were graduated between 1921 and 1935, show:

1. Two of every three alumnae are married, totals ranging from 78.18 per cent of the class of 1925 to 49.42 per cent for the class of 1931.

2. The percentage of those marrying Penn State men is fairly uniform from year to year, although for one class, 1924, it was unusually high—71.42 per cent.

3. Nearly two-thirds of married alumnae have children. The number runs as high as 84 per cent in one of the earlier classes, and as low as 26 per cent for the last class surveyed. The biggest families were reported by the class of 1924, with 1.8 children, per family. The largest number of children in one family was seven.

4. Of married alumnae, 17.6 per cent reported holding part-time or full-time jobs outside the home. This percentage was significantly lower for classes reporting the most children.

5. The leading occupation among married alumnae is teaching.

Cadman To Appear

Although Cadman has produced serious works in forms which have won the recognition of critics and serious-minded musicians, he is more well known by the public for his "simpler things" like "Bells of Capistrano."

Conference members have been invited by Prof. Hummel Fishburn, department of music, to observe the Blue Band Friday afternoon in its final marching rehearsal in preparation for the West Virginia football game.

Vitamin A Essential For Good Eyesight

Do you value your eyesight? If so, your daily diet should contain sufficient Vitamin A to insure proper visual functioning, according to Mrs. Emma G. Welch, home economics instructor.

Vitamin A, equally important to growth and general well being, also promotes a higher degree of alertness and scholastic ability.

Foods containing one-tenth the daily adult requirement of Vitamin A will be exhibited in 209 Home Economics, from 3 to 5 p. m. Monday, and from 8 a. m. to noon Tuesday.
