Civilian Morale Aim Of Committee On American Unity

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles explaining the work of the campus sub-committees in the civilian defense program.)

Good civilian morale, plainly speaking, is the aim of the College Committee for American Unity. Any interference with the progress of defense and welfare programs provides its problem. This interference may be unconscious and accidental or it may be deliberate and underhanded.

Student indifference, lack of harmony, dissatisfaction, misunderstanding and other defects may mar the spirit with which groups organize for their common defense and welfare in the present emergency.

This same spontaneous team action may also fall victim to the

How conquered nations will be reorganized is one of the problems which Dr. Vernon Nash, executive director of the National Peace Conference, will discuss in his talk "Anglo-American Imperialism or World Federation?" in room 121 Sparks building at 7:15 tonight. Co-founder of the Federal Union plan, Dr. Nash will speak again in 121 Sparks building at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning on "International Peace and Economic Justice, Are They Possible?" At 12:15 p. m. tomorrow in the Maple Room he will meet with faculty members in an informal discussion on Federal Union plans for world organization, and Sunday a chapel audience will hear his talk "Toward a Governed World."

Doctor Nash founded the first school of journalism in China at Yenching University, Peiping, China, and served as professor of journalism at the University of Missouri in 1932. He is the author of "Educating for Journalism" and "It Must Be Done Again."

Searchers Find Drowned Hunter

After a nineteen hour search with the aid of grappling hooks, the body of George Goodhart, Centre Hill duck hunter who was believed drowned in the 30-acre dam at Poe Paddy park between Coburn and Milroy early yesterday morning, was recovered at 8 p. m. last night, according to State College police.

The unfortunate hunter's body was found on the main road leading to the dam late Wednesday night. His gun and several empty shells were found lying in the sand near the water, along with two ducks and cigarette papers. Searchers reported yesterday morning that a cap, believed to be Goodhart's, was found floating on the water.

About ten feet of water was let out of the dam to make the grappling from boats easier. It was reported that it would have required five days to drain the dam completely.

How the mishap actually happened had not yet been determined when the paper went to press last night but searchers believe that Goodhart may have shot some ducks and had fallen in while retrieving them.

Fire companies from Centre Hall, State College, Lewistown, and Bellefonte kept up a continuous search ever since the report was called in at 1 a. m. yesterday morning. The firemen were aided in the search by CCC enrollees from the Poe Valley camp and townspeople from nearby communities.

Course Brochures Out Soon

Brochures describing the 1941-42 Artists' Course Series will be available to all campus and town organizations for distribution following a meeting of the Artists' Course Committee on Wednesday.

Presidents of the various groups have been invited to attend the meeting to learn the nature and purpose of the course, Dr. Carl E. Marquardt, chairman, announced last night. They will be asked to acquaint their respective groups with the course program.

"With Marian Anderson, Lauritz Melchoir, Ruth Draper, and the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra on the program," the chairman explained, "the demand for seats throughout the community and in central Pennsylvania should greatly exceed the supply. Our greatest concern therefore is to see that our student body takes full advantage of its quota of seats."

Dr. Marquardt stressed the desire of the Artists' Course committee to have all student groups represented at the Wednesday afternoon meeting. Any organization head who finds it impossible to be present should delegate a representative to serve in his place.

Students in past years have been allotted half of the seats in Schwab Auditorium while faculty and townspeople shared the other half. Last year's limit of three tickets to a purchaser has been changed and patrons may buy four tickets.

Exact date of sales has not yet been determined but will be announced in the near future. Ruth Draper, internationally known monologist, will open the series on Monday, December 15. The Wagnerian tenor, Lauritz Melchoir, will be the second artist and will sing on Thursday, Feb. 5.

The Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, voted by Course patrons last year as the most desirable group, will appear on the program as the third number. Marian Anderson, celebrated Negro contralto, will appear in the final performance of this series.
