

IWA Proponents Make Plans For Constitution

25 Coeds Attend Initial Meeting

Twenty-five representatives of coeds interested in forming an Independent Women's Association met in Grange Dormitory playroom last night to make plans for formulating a constitution within two weeks.

If the constitution is approved by Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women, and by the Senate Committee on Student Welfare, IWA will be a recognized campus organization.

Membership in IWA would be automatic, as in WSGA, including all freshman and independent upperclass women. Coeds pledging sororities would lose their membership.

Governing body would be a central council of 25 to 30 women, elected from all dormitories. Number of representatives would be proportionate to size of the living group.

Sylvia P. Schmidle '42 and Hazel C. Gassman '43, representing the new group, will meet with Phi-Kotes members Mary Ellen Diehl '42 and Julia V. Skellchock '43 Wednesday to discuss relations of the two groups. Miss Diehl is president of the present independent women's organization.

Civilian Morale

To meet these two major dangers, the committee on American Unity must observe numerous factors which ordinarily affect the physical fitness and mental attitudes of all people.

Julius E. Kaulfuss, chairman of the campus committee on American Unity, represents the problem as follows:

"The group interested in the fuller crystallization of American Unity as an element in our local and national life and in the development of a specific civilian morale on and off the campus... hopes to further such communion of spirit and necessary action

We The Women '45 Fate Rests With Customs Violators

When winter winds begin to sweep down from Nittany Mountain, more things than grass will wilt. Freshman women's hair ribbons start to register a seen-better-days appearance.

Regardless of the eyesore they may be, ribbons must be worn at all times specified by WSGA. They will continue to be a part of a freshman's anatomy until WSGA decrees otherwise.

A problem concerning freshman town women in regard to customs enforcement has been brought to the attention of WSGA Freshman Council. Many have been reported about the campus and downtown without customs.

When a freshman woman appears without her hair ribbon or name card her reflection is mirrored upon the entire class. Even if town freshmen feel they should not be obligated to comply with customs, they should remember that violations will bring pressure upon the whole freshman group.

Freshman Council's realm of government and enforcement cannot hope to cover all activities of freshman town women. It can merely hope to promote friendliness among the women.

Town freshmen cannot be made to wear customs. But, out of loyalty to their class, they should cooperate with Council by alleviating the job of enforcement and inevitable outcome of hard feeling.

Close relationship between campus and town women is of utmost importance. Both should work together to aid the other. However, disregard of customs by town freshmen may plant the seed of disunion and internal friction.

Carelessness on the part of town freshmen to observe customs may even lead to a prolonged customs period for all freshman coeds.

Success or failure of the class in regard to customs lies with those prone to laugh off hair ribbons and name cards.
