

Between The Lions

With PAT NAGELBERG

7-0 Good Enough

There're only 37 days left till Christmas but the State eleven hopes to do most of its shopping in Pittsburgh on Saturday.

Nothing much has been said about the West Virginia game but with aircraft and infantry units getting ready for extra heavy duty against the usual tough Pittsburgh regiment, the less said the better. State won, and while the 7 to 0 score isn't very impressive, it's good enough for us.

Coming as it did sandwiched in between Syracuse and Pitt, everyone expected the Lions to be down for the Mountaineer tilt. That's just what happened but the Blue and White had enough left on the ball to squeeze through to victory. What more can anyone ask, unless it's a reversal to the Syracuse form against the Panthers?

Against West Virginia, the Lion backfield performed brilliantly but the forward wall, with few exceptions, was outscored and outplayed. The exceptions were Johnny Potskian, sophomore end who bids fair to attain great heights, and Jack Jaffurs, another first-year man on the varsity, and a standout in the guard spot the last two games.

Potskian, Jaffurs

The two make as sweet a pair of linemen as we've set eyes on all year. In addition to saving the cause by smashing tackles when shoved back against their own goal, they held together the line which was obviously having an off day. This is no reflection on the splendid play of West Virginia's huskies.

Good football players come and go but for our money, we'll take

Captain Lenny Krouse and Bill Smaltz when the chips are down. They're real "money" players and the tougher the going, the more effective they are. They proved their worth for the nth time Saturday when the duo combined for one of their copyright pass completions.

We won't forget Krouse's miraculous catch when diving over the end zone between two Mountaineer defenders for a long time. In spite of the stress the opposition has placed on pass defense, no team has effectively devised a method of stopping the Smaltz to Krouse combination. And while on the subject, how did you like the leg work of the burly fullback when he caught McElwee on his 78-yard jaunt?

IM Horseshoes Finals Set For This Afternoon

Alpha Zeta No. 2 won its way into the finals of the intramural horseshoes tournament yesterday as they defeated Sigma Chi No. 2, two games to one at the Rec Hall pits.

This afternoon at 4:15 p. m. the Alpha Zeta team composed of John W. Shaffer '44 and William Lunden '45 meets last year's championship team, Richard Thompson '43 and Norman L. Calhoun '42 of Sigma Chi No. 1; who are attempting to win the tournament for the second consecutive year.

Entry Deadline Set For 3 IM Sports

Entry deadline for the first three intramural winter sports was set yesterday for noon, Wednesday, November 26, by E. C. Bischoff, director of Intramural athletics.

Both fraternity and independents wishing to enter men for teams in boxing, volleyball, and single and doubles in hand ball must comply with the next Wednesday deadline.

Entry fees, the same as last year, are one dollar a team for volley ball, and 25 cents per person in boxing and hand ball.

Cross-Country Coach Pleased With Showing Of Harriers In IC4A's

Reverberations from the 33rd annual IC4-A cross-country meet at Van Cortlandt Park, New York, on Monday were just about reaching here yesterday afternoon.

There is a bit of dissention in the ranks as to whether Penn State's fourth place was to be considered good or bad. Coach Chick Werner took a stand on the affirmative, while several disgruntled observers seem to think the Nittany Lions could have done better.

It is argued that a comparison of the times of the IC4-A's and those of the NYU meet on almost the same course October 31 will show a mighty sad drop in one or two cases. And the NYU marks were considered poor at the time.

However, an equally surprising showing was marked up on the bright side of the ledger in two other cases. While Norm Gordon and Captain Alex Bourgerie fell off on their times, Herm Goffberg and Curt Stone did a lot better than expected, according to Werner.

Lions Overhaul Defense For Pitt

Knowing that they must stop the newly-found offensive power of the Pitt Panthers in Pittsburgh Saturday, the Nittany Lion grid-ders were sent through their first heavy spot scrimmage this week in yesterday's practice.

Defense received the attention of Coach Bob Higgins. Pitt's passing and running plays were analyzed in an effort to bottle up Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones who has wrecked the opposition in the last two games with Fordham and Nebraska. Jones has developed into a strong, shifty runner, having carried most of the Panther offensive hopes all season.

The Panther slump, five losses in a row in the company of Big Ten grid machines, is the worst slump ever recorded by a Pitt team. With two games left, against Penn State and Carnegie Tech, the Panthers will be out to claw the Nittany Lions and doctor up their record.
