

Ten Riflers Gain Posts For Match

Led by Co-Captains Hal Youft and Bill LeWorthy, ten riflers won tentative posts to the team that will represent Penn State at West Point when they encounter the Army blazers February 21.

Postal matches with Montana State, Iowa State, Louisiana State and Penn are being fired this week. Firing will be completed Saturday and results from opponents will probably arrive Monday, Capt. Arno P. Mowitz, rifle coach, announced last night.

Capt. Mowitz said that early scores indicate that results will be "just about average or a little better." He explained that the loss of two All-Americans, Gilbert Gault and Ben Stall, from last year's team is offset by this season's well-balanced aggregate.

Probably facing the Army next week will be Hal Youft, Bill LeWorthy, Bob Rambo, Charles Rut-schky, Harold Bucher, Ed Kaiser, Johnny Quirk, Frank Shuman, Bob Wallace, and Stan Forbes. Ken Weimer, Perry Gentzel and Ken Moist will act as alternates.

Fencers Leave For Meet

Penn State's fencers who made such a brilliant showing against Navy last week-end will meet Cornell and Syracuse in a triangular meet at Ithaca, N. Y. tomorrow. Coach Harry Krutter and the Nittany squad leave at noon today.

Houck's Latest Find Developed 'Dynamo Stance' On Spaghetti Diet

By BEN BAILEY

Penn State again has a heavy-weight boxer. Aldo Cenci made his initial ring appearance in Rec Hall Saturday night against an opponent from North Carolina—and Aldo Cenci chalked up his initial win of the boxing season.

The circumstances which brought about his membership on Dr. Houck's staff seem remarkable in light of the fact that only a week ago Aldo was undecided as to whether he should join the boxing team or the wrestling team. Then he happened upon the solution—or rather the dynamo stance. It came about in this way:

Aldo is a dishwasher in the Alpha Phi Delta kitchen. His collaborator on the pots and pans, one "Chuck" Cantanzaro, a Pre-Med junior, happened to be the possessor of a boxing style similar to the famous dynamic stance of Lou Nova, the pugilistic spiritualist.

The stance intrigued Aldo, and so "Chuck" agreed to teach it to his friend. Aided by a special athletic diet (spaghetti) prepared by the cook, "Pep" Tuscano, who

Lion Trackmen Seek '42 Penn A.C. Titles

Barney Ewell will lead a team of 13 Nittany runners against a field of 300 of the country's top track and field athletes in the Penn A. C. meet at Convention Hall tonight.

Loss of Max Peters, who will captain the Lion's skiing team at the Colgate meet this weekend, will weaken the two-mile relay team, which will be composed of four middle-distancers. Probable members of the quartet are Alex Bourgerie, Bob Hazel, Ed Miller, and Herm Goffberg with Norm Gordon, Pennac Mile entrant, another possibility.

Frosh Swimming Team Meets Cornell Away

Eager to get their first taste of intercollegiate competition, the frosh swimming team is primed for their first match with the Little Red yearlings of Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., tomorrow night.

In fine shape after their weekly intersquad meets with the varsity, the frosh will face a strong Ithacan aggregation with a well-balanced squad of 13 swimmers. Starting positions, however, are still indefinite, stated Coach Bob Galbraith.

Keen competition has marked the time trials to determine who shall make the trip to Cornell. The frosh will have only one other meet this season with Mercersburg Academy, February 21.

Courtmen Face Supreme Test In Syracuse Game

Colgate Encounter Looms Tomorrow

Having already cleared the first hurdle of their present six-game "suicide" schedule, Penn State's Nittany basketballers will invade Archbold Gymnasium at Syracuse tonight to battle the highly-touted Orangemen.

Since Penn State has not defeated Syracuse for seven years on the latter's home court, Coach John Lawther's proteges will meet what might well be termed the supreme test of the current campaign. The Orange passers have been running roughshod over Eastern competition, and Tuesday night, they added emphasis to their reputation by blasting Cornell aside, 40-33.

Penn State's decisive triumph over Temple on Wednesday night has caused the Nittany stock to take an impressive rise also. With a record of six straight victories, and a season's total of 11 out of 13, the Lions will be gunning to break the Syracuse jinx and keep the victory streak intact.

In the battle between Syracuse and Penn State in Rec Hall midway in December, the Lions capitalized on a second-half rally and finally upset the Orange quintet, 37-29. Revenge for this defeat, and the fact that the Syracuse coach, Lew Andreas, scouted the Penn State-Temple game Wednesday night are two definite reasons why Syracuse may be difficult to halt in tonight's fray.

Following the battle with the Orange, Penn State will move into Hamilton, N. Y., tomorrow night to cope with Colgate's Red Raiders. This is the Lions' final game away from home, for beginning with the Pitt tussle Saturday, the Nittany cagers will wind up their schedule with four games in Rec Hall.

W. Va. Grapplers Renew Relations

West Virginia wrestlers will meet the Lions in the fourth match contested between the two colleges and the first since 1933 as they seek their initial victory over the Nittany men tomorrow afternoon. The varsity meet will follow a preliminary between the newly-selected freshman squad and Wyoming Seminary at 12:30.

A Mountaineer squad, composed mostly of sophomores, recently shot up the Temple Owl, 21-8. Mainstays of the team are three former members of the West Virginia football squad who played against Penn State the past Fall.

In addition to heavyweight threats, Bill Bell, 165-pounds; Bob Dutton, 175-pounds; and Virgil Williams, heavyweight; other strong representatives are Simeon Hall, 136-pounds; and Al Smolin, 155-pounds.

The Nittany varsity squad will be primed for the fifth consecutive victory of the season as Coach Charlie Speidel enters an increasingly experienced team.

All weight classes except the 175-pound division have been filled on the freshman squad which makes its first appearance this season. Weigh-ins for both Penn State and Wyoming Seminary have been set for 7:30 a. m. tomorrow night.

Lynn Kippax '43, freshman manager, announced the freshmen scheduled to see service in the bouts were selected through elimination matches run-off yesterday and Wednesday.

Dan Valenti won his way into the 121-pound class. At the 128-pound position will be Paul Bender, followed by Joe Steele wrestling at 136-pounds.

Johnny Bertolet and Charley Dipner will fill the 145 and 155-pound divisions respectively for the cub matmen.

Completing the frosh roster are 165-pounder Glenn Smith and Jay Clymer in the unlimited slot.

Two Varsity Gymnasts Injured In Practice, May Be Out Of Temple Meet

Two members of Gene Wettstone's varsity gym team, Ed Anderson and Lou Bordo, will be on the casualty list when the Lions hold their second league tilt against the Temple Owls in Rec Hall tomorrow at 3:30 p. m.

Anderson sustained a badly sprained ankle and Bordo injured his foot while practicing their routines yesterday. The seriousness of the injuries will be determined by x-ray examinations today.

Captain Charlie Senft continued to pace the rope climbers in yesterday's practice session by racking up times close to the four second mark. The Owls are weak in this department and Wettstone is hoping for a clean sweep of the event. Anderson competed in his first league tilt against Princeton last week and won second place in tumbling.
