We, The Women Congratulations To Krimcon

We're congratulating Krimcon, not only because it was accepted by a national organization, but because it accomplished this purpose in a shorter time than any other sorority.

Our congratulations also spring from its background as a local sorority. We feel that a 1.97 All-College average is worthy of attention, and that an organization that carries its standards beyond the formality of words should be recognized.

We're taking this opportunity to boost Krimcon for the work it has done for underprivileged residents of Woodcrest ever since its boost Krimcon for the work it has been meritorious enough to attract the attention of the local Girl Scout Council, which is now supporting the project.

We have faith in the thought that Krimcon will continue to maintain its high standards now that it has become a national organization. We have faith because we know that every chapter of the national organization, Alpha Xi Delta, must rank with the upper third in its local Panhellenic scholarship standings.

We have faith because the organization is fresh and new and as yet untouched by any discords and misunderstandings.

We print this in the hope that Alpha Xi Delta will be able to maintain the standards it established as a local sorority.

College Belonged To 'Aggies' In 1909

Back in 1909 when coeds were as rare as dinosaurs and the College belonged to the "Aggies," a proposed honor system was fighting for existence. It was reported that all engineering and agricultural students supported the proposal, but that other schools could not muster enough signatures.

In 1929 "His Captive Woman" was the movie hit of the week, competing with "Girls Gone Wild," starring Sue Carol and Nick Stuart. Thespians were beginning a whispering campaign for Gilbert's and Sullivan's gay "H. M. S. Pinafore."

When prohibition and prosperity grew like wildfire, Norman Thomas, presidential nominee on the Socialist ticket, spoke to wide-eyed students on "Why I Am A Socialist."

Co-Ed Chats, a women's column in the bi-weekly Collegian, was chatting about the "May Queen" and "Long may she live." A gal named Woodring was chosen in '30.

Chinese Coed Gives Oriental War Views

"Japanese very treacherous and take no chance in trusting others. They just think what they want and how to get it," said Ruby Lee, 24-year-old Chinese student, discussing the war from an oriental viewpoint.

She stressed that Chinese people do not think that all Japanese are "bad," but that many civilians have had their minds poisoned by the military faction.

To illustrate Jap propaganda methods, Miss Lee described an incident in grammar school. The teacher displayed a Chinese peach, allowing pupils to taste and smell it. As Miss Lee said, children are much the same all over the world, and naturally they liked the fruit. When students had evidenced sufficient interest, the teacher told them that it is the right of the Japanese to conquer the Chinese and take as much fruit as they want. Ruby explained that the Japs justify this belief with their religion which teaches that the emperor descended from God and that the Japs are chosen people with the right to rule all nations.

She told of diaries in which captured Jap soldiers expressed delight upon being praised by generals for having killed eight Chinese in one day.

Miss Lee, who has seen bombing in Canton and observed Japanese military cruelty, said she is positive her people are determined to fight on.

"The Chinese know we are not well equipped," she said, "but we are unwilling to fall into Jap hands and cruelty. Since they have taken their chances in getting over to China and occupying our homes and lands, with heavy guns and bombing, the Chinese do not give up.

"We also take our chances in counter-attack, when they are unprepared, or in mountainous places where natural topography is favorable. They have to see that we have our nation and unity."

Sidelight on Manchuria's fighting against China was Miss Lee's description of captured soldiers. According to her, Manchurians claim that they are forced by Japs to fight the Chinese. If they refuse, Japs would kill their families who live under military rule. "And why they want their fathers, mothers, wives, children killed?"

Ruby came to the United States with her twin sister, Pearl, in August, 1941. After being graduated in the agronomy curriculum in May, Ruby plans to do research work in field crops and breeding, before returning to China. Pearl, who is studying electrical engineering, also wants to do research work before returning home to do radio work.

When asked about her family in China, Miss Lee said, "We used to live in Shanghai, but when the Japanese occupied all our properties, we moved to Hongkong. Since the Japanese occupied Hongkong, I haven't heard anymore. The last letter written in November, I received in January."

Her family includes her grandmother, father, mother, four younger brothers, a sister, and a brother-in-law who did graduate work at the University of Michigan. Formerly an exchange broker, her father is a public lecturer.
