2,033 Students Vote In 2-Day 'Big Stampede' At Election Polls

Political-minded students stormed the All-College elections polls yesterday and set a new record for voters beyond any previous figures. There were 1,087 students who thronged Old Main's first floor lounge today.

The last chance for students to cast their votes will be today when the polls open at 9:30 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. The final results will probably be released immediately after the Elections Committee checks the machines and considers all vote penalties.

Yesterday's record crowd brought the total number of voters to 2,033. With today's electioneering likely to be the most active, the final tally of voters will probably reach 4,000, the highest in Penn State history. The balmy weather was credited for the large activity.

In addition the Election committee warned finally that all election grievances must be presented immediately after the polls close. Each case will be considered separately and final judgment will be given at that time.

Jeanne C. Stiles, chairman of the Elections committee, urged all students to vote today who have not done so already. However, she cautioned them not to try voting twice because a strict check is kept on each voter.

Last year two students were nearly expelled for trying to vote more than once.

You, Too, Can Sing The New Version Of National Anthem

The average American can stand at attention when the Star Spangled Banner is played, but it takes a soprano to sing it.

For that reason George S. Howard, associate professor of music in extension, in collaboration with Major Howard Bronson of the United States Army, has written the national anthem in a lower key arrangement of A-flat in order to "give the song to the average American."

To popularize the new arrangement, a formal premier before a national convention of 6,000 public school music directors will be given in Milwaukee on March 31. Fox Movietone Newsreel will take pictures of its initial performance. Copies will also be distributed to

Waring To Play Leyden's Song

Back in 1914 the songs "Victory" and "Nittany Lion" by James A. Leyden, Sr. were good enough to be used as College tunes. Now "Nittany," a Thespian tune by James A. Leyden, Jr. '42, is good enough to be broadcast by Fred Waring.

Waring selected the song from those sent him by the Thespians from their show "Hide 'n' Peek." He will play it on his regular program at 7 p. m. tomorrow over a national network.

This will be the third year that Waring has played a new Thespian tune. He is also planning to play some of the other numbers at night engagements.

Besides playing Leyden's new song which may soon become one of the College songs, Waring is arranging to publish a Thespian program of the musical scores of four or five numbers from "Hide 'n' Peek."

Students will get a chance to hear Leyden's newest at the show in Schwab Auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Friday and at 7 p. m. on Saturday.

Leyden has established himself as one of the most active student composers at Penn State since his father. He has written nine songs for "Hide 'n' Peek." Other than his hit "Nittany," they include "Down With Lessons," "Sh-h, Not Right No," "Old Man Trouble's Been Doggin' My Steps," "Dream-in'," "Time to Dance," "The Loneliest Girl In Town," "Get Out of the Rut and Get Back On The Beam," and the title tune "Hide 'n' Peek."

'Hot Dogs' Despair! No More Pant Cuffs

College hot dogs desiring new Spring "duds" had better buy them before next Monday, if they still desire cuffs on their trousers. Not even present stock will be sold with the cuffs, according to the latest releases from the War Production Board.

After March 31, the extra wool cloth will be clipped from the "victory suits" to be made into service uniforms. In fact, it will be unlawful to sell suits with the added fold after that date. From now on, the "sharpies" will wear their pants cutaway style.

Dobbin Won't Kick- He's Pulling The 'One Hoss Shay' For Defense

So he finished his day's work and went out the back door. He climbed up on the "buggy" behind the patiently waiting Dobbin and started for home.

Pulling up in front of his home he was greeted by "the little woman" as she ran out of the house and caught Dobbin's harness. He got down from the carriage and went into the house to read the afternoon paper while she took Dobbin to the stable and fed him.

Coming back into the house she ran to him and told him how proud she was of him for saving the tires and the gasoline the government wouldn't give him.

He was the typical Penn State professor of a few months from now.

In fact the move back to the horse has been started for several months. It was started by Dr. Henry L. Yeagley, advisor for the Penn State Riding Club. He was

450 Vote On Honor Men; Krouse Named Spoon Man

Baird, Doherty, Peters, Lehman Also Selected

With over 450 senior men having voted by means of penny postcards, the 5 honor men selected for the class of '42 were announced yesterday by H. Leonard Krouse, senior class president, along with plans for Class Day to be held Saturday afternoon, May 9.

Krouse, receiving the largest number of votes, was selected for the highest honor, spoon man. Second highest number of votes was polled by Robert D. Baird, All-College president, who will serve as barrel man.

The third honor, cane man, was bestowed by senior men on Gerald F. Doherty, All-College vice-president. Max S. Peters, ski captain, was selected pipe orator, and Ross B. Lehman, editor of The Daily Collegian, was named class donor and chairman of the Class Day committee.

"Honor men were elected this year for the first time by means of return postcards sent to all senior men. A much more representative vote was obtained than in past years when class meetings were held for the voting," Krouse pointed out.

Krouse has appointed the following seniors to serve on Lehman's committee: R. Helen Gordon, Doherty, William F. Finn, Peters, and Krouse, ex-officio.

Program for Class Day as outlined last night by Lehman will start with an address by the salutarian after which the pipe oration will be given by Peters. The men's honors will then be presented by Lehman, class donor, followed by the mirror oration by Jeanne C. Stiles '42. Miss Gordon will present women's honors.

The class poem will be read by Alice M. Murray after which Krouse will formally dedicate the class memorial. Acceptance of the memorial will be made by

IFC Approves New Rush Code

Interfraternity Council wiped its business slate clean last night and paved the way for the final meeting of the old Council April 13, when new officers will be elected.

The new rushing code was passed unanimously after George W. Ferguson '42, chairman of the committee, explained that the changes were made to adapt the code to the two rushing seasons incurred by the accelerated college program.

Thomas J. L. Henson '42, president of IFC, stated, "the code was so successful last year that there is no point in changing it."

A rushing committee will be appointed by the new president at the suggestion of Ferguson.

Robert W. Hildenbrand '42, chairman of the nominating committee, reported that candidates will be announced and voted upon at the next meeting of the Council, April 13. Candidates' names can be brought up for possible nomination by contacting one of the nominating committee members.

IFC voted to publish another rushing booklet. After a report by acting chairman Robert F. Wilson '42, Henson suggested that the booklet be stabilized so that it could be used in future rushing seasons.

IF Ball To Have Manhattan Theme

Complete with moonlight, skyline, and lamp posts, a "Gaiety in Gotham" theme will provide the setting for Interfraternity Ball at Rec Hall tomorrow night, Co-Chairman Arthur H. Shapiro '42 and Charles F. Mattern '42 disclosed yesterday.

Beneath a midnight blue ceiling which will cover the entire dance floor space will be a skyline night effect, with highly painted buildings played upon by subdued moonlight.

Two sides of Rec Hall will be decorated with blue fabrics, and in front of this will be placed eight awnings on each side of the gymnasium. Each awning will be suspended over two booths in sidewalk cafe style and will bear fraternity names as street signs. Illuminated lamp posts will separate the booths and the awnings.

Focused on the skyline at the end of the gym will be two automatic revolving spotlights. Amber sunlight floodlights will illuminate the bandstand, which will be decorated with materials in keeping with the general metropolitan theme.

Fraternities which have reserved booths are responsible for the transportation of their own furniture to Rec Hall between 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. today.

The dance committee will sell tickets at Student Union beginning at 9 a. m. today and continuing through tomorrow. Fraternities should purchase their tickets in blocks. Independent men can obtain theirs through fraternity men.
