Set Your Alarm—Breakfast's Waiting

We have written editorials urging coeds to get more sleep, but today we are retracting our pleas—just for one day. After a Friday night date bed seems like a wonderful place to stay for a few extra hours on Saturday.

However, this is Mother's Day Weekend, and activities begin for freshman coeds at 7:15 a. m. Even though you don't expect to be tapped by Cwens, sophomore women's honorary, and even though your mother couldn't come for the weekend, breakfast is being given for freshmen, and we urge you to attend.

Some of you may only have to dash down stairs to Mac Hall dining room; others may have to walk up from a town dormitory. You owe it to yourself to set the alarm on your clock, in case the Cwens who will wake freshmen in campus dormitories fail to arouse you at 7 a. m. Committees, planning for a large turnout, have spent much time making arrangements.

Even if you are motherless this weekend, all coeds are invited to attend open houses in dormitories from 4 to 5 p. m. Your favorite date's mother might like to get a glimpse of coed living conditions, too.

As a good antidote for Spring fever, let's rouse ourselves and show weekend visitors that Penn State coeds are interested in activities and willing to give up a few minutes dating or a few hours' sleep to honor mothers.

White Hall Ready For Open House

With exhibitions and demonstrations planned for each activity room, White Hall officials invite weekend guests to an open house from 3 to 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Marching, gymnastics, and an exhibition basketball game will be conducted in the gymnasium by junior and senior physical education majors.

Sophomore majors will demonstrate square dancing and the Dance Club will give a recital in the dance room. At the pool, Swimming Club members and freshman phys edders will present swimming and diving exhibitions.

The body mechanics room, bowling alleys, and rifle range will be open for inspection. Members of the Archery, Bridge, and Tennis Clubs will be hostesses in the playroom. Refreshments will be served in the lobby by the Outing and Golf Clubs.
