

Mountain Lodge To Offer All Recreational Facilities

"The mountain sports lodge will be more in demand this Summer than during the Winter months," Ray M. Conger, recreation coordinator, said last night.

Many students believe the mountain lodge is used only when there is snow on the ground and the ski trail is in good shape, but to disprove this, many individual campus organizations are using the lodge's facilities during the weekends for parties.

This Summer the plan of operation of the lodge will be a little different, Conger said. Organizations will be encouraged to use the lodge during the week instead of the weekends.

Saturday and Sunday will be reserved for All-College excursions. Buses will take students to the lodge, much as they did last Winter during skiing season. According to Conger, the program will start with excursions on Sunday afternoons only and if there is a demand for more funfests, Saturday afternoon will be set aside for excursions.

These Saturday afternoon parties will probably extend until sometime during the evening if the students wish to stay that long.

Many organizations are now using the mountain lodge for informal get-togethers. Reservations for the use of the lodge can be made with Ray Conger.

Air Enlistees May Complete College

Newly revised Army Air Force regulations will permit students enrolling in the Air Force Reserve to complete their college education before being called into active training.

The revision, announced yesterday by Carl R. Russell, Air Corps Captain of the Second Air Base Squadron, is designed to permit students to carry on their academic work without interruption, and at the same time insure a growing reserve of qualified officer material.

Army officials sponsoring the program in this district will visit the College twice, appearing first on Monday to present the details of the Air Force Reserve program and returning May 6 to secure enlistments.

Captain Russell and Lieutenant Tuttle, who recently completed his Aviation Cadet training, will be here for a mass meeting Monday evening to present a factual account of training procedure and to clarify details concerning enlistment. A talking picture on Aviation Cadet training and a March of Time film release on recent Army activity will be shown at the meeting.

On May 6, the Aviation Cadet Examining Board will visit the College to accept enlistments. The Board will remain until all students interested in enrolling in the Air Corps Reserve have been interviewed and examined.

"The period between the two visits will permit students to discuss the program with their parents and get permission to enroll," stated Captain Russell.

Robert E. Galbraith, associate professor of English composition, has been chosen by Army authorities to serve as faculty Air Force advisor, to help explain and promote the new program.

Place and time of Monday's meeting will be announced tomorrow, according to Galbraith.

Army Issues Request For Meteorologists

The Weather Service Center of the U. S. Army has issued a call for graduating students interested in meteorological work to apply for positions with them. Applications may be obtained from Hans H. Neuberger, assistant professor of geophysics, room 313 M. I. Building.

Students who apply for this position must have taken mathematics courses up to and including integral calculus, sophomore physics, and at least two courses in meteorology.

College Welcomes

(Continued from Page One) academic standpoint will be illustrated in 6 different windows, each to be designed by members of the school councils to show what that particular school is doing in the war effort.

Highlights of the entertainment program for the weekend includes a golf match with Bucknell at 2 p. m.; a Spring football game with Duquesne at 2:30; and the All-College Circus, "Penn State Revue in 1942," at 8:00 p. m.

Guests of the fraternities may stay over night at the host house, and any other visitor who desires to stay over until Sunday will be assigned to a fraternity house for the night.

PENN STATE MEN WILL BE INTERVIEWED AGAIN . . .

► Last year, on 39 different college campuses, men were asked for candid opinions about clothing styles. This poll, conducted by The Saturday Evening Post, is being repeated this year for more than reasons of fashion. It should have important usefulness in the national conservation of cloth and other materials.

Manufacturers and retailers want to know exactly what kind of clothing college men like best—what they find most practical. Government regulations about clothing make it vital to get such facts in advance.

Maybe you were one of the 4,179 college men who helped provide the information last year. Maybe you also saw the Post Portfolio of College Styles in your favorite store when you bought clothes last fall. It made buying simpler for a good many men.

The 2nd Annual Post Poll of College Styles will be made very soon through cooperation of the The Daily Collegian

Results will again be available to you in leading stores this fall. When your local reporter asks you for information, your answers will be appreciated.
