VOL. 39—No. 5

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 2, STATE COLLEGE, PA.

PRICE: THREE CENTS

First Summer Rushing Season Starts Next Week

Penn State's 47 social fraternities will swing into their first Summer membership drive in College history next week with the arrival of approximately 500 freshman men June 7.

Pledging of freshmen will begin June 9, according to Arthur G. Denman '43, Interfraternity Council rushing chairman. Formal rushing season for the Summer semester will end June 13.

The number of pledges this Summer is certain to be less than last year's record total of over 600, since the entire incoming group of freshman men is not that large.

"This does not mean, however, that either fraternity standards or rushing rules will be relaxed," Denman added. "Rushing will still be governed by substantially the same rules observed in the past, and fraternities will still choose only those freshmen who seem likely to fit well in their organizations."

M. William Lundelius '43, IFC president, urged each freshman to consider whether he will (Continued on Page Seven)

79 Named To Ag School Honor Roll

Seventy-nine students earned positions on the School of Agriculture's honor roll during the second semester of the 1941-42 College term, Stephenson W. Fletcher, dean of the Ag School, announced last night.

Six of the students are making their sixth straight appearance on the roll of honor. The sextet, who have earned averages of 2.5 or higher every semester since the start of the honor roll three years ago, are Paul K. Detwiler '42, Archibald M. Hyson '43, John Stoddard Kookogey '42, Karl H. Norris '42, Jack E. Paulhamus '43, and Daniel A. Swope, Jr. '42.

600 Incoming Frosh Will Boost Summer Enrollment Total To 4,000

More than 600 strong, the Class of 1946 will register Monday for the first Summer semester in the history of the College. Addition of the new freshmen will boost total undergraduate enrollment to approximately 4,000.

Many of the incoming freshmen will be college students for a week or two before they even receive their high school diplomas as they take advantage of the College's accelerated program, geared to meet a wartime need for college-trained men and women.

By studying under the new 12-month program, they will be able to complete a four-year course in less than three years, thereby enhancing their chances of receiving their diplomas before being summoned by the Selective Service system, or of graduating in time to obtain jobs while the employment boom is at its peak.

In addition to benefitting from

FRATERNITIES' LEADER — M. William Lundelius '43, Interfraternity Council president, will be central figure in the first Summer rushing season in College history.

Freshman NYA Aid May Be Discontinued By Fund Curtailment

With the curtailment of government funds for NYA assistance, and with only enough money on hand to continue the student part-time aid until the end of June, freshmen were asked not to depend upon such help. Frank E. Whiting, office manager, said yesterday.

New students will not be allowed to fill out NYA applications until present government plans are clarified, Mr. Whiting added. Only those students who received NYA aid last semester will be allowed to continue work until the funds run out, he said.

Should the financial assistance be continued after June 30, or should the government make some other provisions for monetary aid, the students will be informed in time enough to make the proper applications.

Penn State Club Sponsors First '42-'43 Informal All-College Dance

Penn State's first big informal dance of the current school year, sponsored by the Penn State Club, will be held in Rec Hall, Saturday evening, June 6, Thomas E. Wilcox '44, and Harry C. Coleman '44, co-chairmen of the dance, announced last night.

The Campus Owls, under the leadership of trumpeter George P. Washko, will provide music from 9 p. m. until midnight. Admission to the first "All-College" dance of the year will be $1.10.

All freshmen on campus during the weekend are cordially invited to attend the dance and if interested in the club and its work, are urged to join the organization. The club, composed of non-fraternity men, offers its members dorm dances, scavenger hunts, bowling parties, picnics, hikes, and other recreational features.

Freshmen will be especially interested in the clubroom facilities offered by the Penn State Club. The clubroom, located in room 321 Old Main, where a ping-pong table is provided for members, also affords an informal lounge.

Freshmen To Receive Regular Credits

Despite the fact that the freshman class entering next week will be undertaking work in 12 weeks that was usually spread over an 18 week semester, under normal conditions, the Council of Administration emphasized today that there will be no slackening of the scholastic program.

The Council feels sure that the new class will be able to carry the extra work necessary under the accelerated program because they are better qualified scholastically in comparison to other entering groups.

V-5 Board On Campus For Two More Days

A V-5 examining board will conduct interviews and examinations in 305 Old Main from 8 a. m. till noon and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. today and tomorrow for students interested in enlistment under the Naval Reserve flying program.

Complete examination will be possible since a medical examining board will accompany the interviewers making complete enlistment at this one visit possible. In this way, the students will need have no worry about being taken from College by the draft.

The board will return to the campus again when an adequate number of applicants appears to be examined and inducted.

Air Cadet Examining Board Due Wednesday

In an effort to have all interested upperclassmen accommodated before the freshmen come to the campus next week, the Aviation Cadet Examining Board will examine students who have papers completed during their stay here Wednesday through Saturday, Prof. Robert E. Galbraith, board coordinator, stated yesterday.

He stressed the importance of securing application blanks today or tomorrow in order to have them ready for examination by Saturday.

Mass Meetings Scheduled For Incoming Freshmen

Hetzel To Welcome Class Monday Night

Student leaders, cheer leaders, student counselors, faculty members, and many others will be on hand to welcome the new freshman class at the mass meeting in Schwab Auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

This, the first class to enter Penn State during World War II, will not have a numeral designation, but will have all the other customary attributes of freshmen. Customs will be explained, some of the school songs put to a test, and some of the Penn State traditions explained Sunday night.

At this meeting, the procedure for Monday will be explained. Where previous classes have had a week to be orientated, this class will go through the process in one day. Registration, which will take place on Monday beginning at 8 a. m., will be outlined.

Slips of paper will be handed out with a time designated for registration. The alphabetical system used at other times is out, so the Z's can register right in with the C's and D's, if they are lucky.

After the mass meeting Sunday, freshmen will be assigned to small groups to meet with student counselors who will advise on scheduling procedure, building locations, study hints, talk about the town and student activities, and any other subjects that may puzzle the new students.

Along with the registration on Monday when the freshmen have signed on the numberless dotted lines, health examinations are scheduled at the Dispensary, and ROTC uniforms will be issued to the men according to a time table that will be released later in the week, said Ray V. Watkins, Scheduling Officer.

Losing no time, classes will begin for the freshmen Tuesday at 8 a. m. Later in the week, probably Tuesday and Wednesday, aptitude tests will be given by the psychology department in two two-hour periods in the evening.

Late News

LONDON — The pulverization of Cologne, the key to German industrial and communication centers was the supreme test for the new English war theory.

The British believe that it will be possible to cripple Nazi production and distribution sources eventually by a step-up in the number of planes participating in the raids over Germany.

Lieutenant General Henry H. Arnold, chief of American air operations, assured the British air authority that American planes now on the way will enable the Allied Nations to carry out the proposed raids on Kiel, Vienna, and Hindenburg.

Guaranteed Delivery

If you fail to receive your copy of The Daily Collegian, call 711 before 11 a. m., ask for The Daily Collegian Office, and report your complaint. A newsboy will be on hand to deliver your paper before noon.

HELLO—LET'S WORK—In welcoming the freshman class President Ralph D. Hetzel stated, "I am gratified that you have chosen to continue your education in spite of the disturbing conditions which exist in the world today. It is a wise choice because we must have ever increasing numbers of trained men and women for the war effort, and we must have educated and intelligent leaders for the world after the war."

"If you can be of greater service elsewhere, you will be called through the established procedures. Until such a call is received, I urge you to work seriously at your studies and take advantage of every opportunity which has been made available here for you by the State and the Nation."

Thespians Back Collegian's Fight

Penn State's Thespians joined The Daily Collegian's battle to "keep it daily" in all-out fashion last night.

Going "the whole way" with typically unrestrained spirit, every member of the musical comedy organization, including Director J. Ewing "Sock" Kennedy, bought Collegian subscriptions.

In handing into Collegian offices the group's subscription purchases, Edward R. Claus '43, Thespians' president, said, "We believe that a daily newspaper is a vital necessity on our campus."

"The Collegian staff is performing an outstanding service, so it's with the greatest pleasure that we are uniting behind it. We only hope that other organizations will do the same."

The action of the Thespians highlights an ever-growing lineup of campus organizations, sororities, fraternities, and boarding house groups that have added their support to the Collegian staffs' fight to continue daily publication.

The staff, meanwhile, is completing preparations for the annual Collegian dance, open only to Daily Collegian subscribers.

Collegian Boards Meet

All Collegian business and editorial boards will meet in a special joint session at 9 Carnegie Hall at 7:30 tonight. Attendance of all senior, junior, and sophomore staff members is compulsory.
