OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE

VOL. 39—No. 7

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, STATE COLLEGE, PA.

PRICE: THREE CENTS

36 Named To Advanced ROTC Engineer Corps

Engineers selected from over 100 applicants for the advanced ROTC course total 36 juniors, according to an announcement made last night by Col. Edward D. Ardery, head of the department of military science and tactics.

With the eighty-five Infantrymen announced earlier this week, the total number of juniors chosen for the course brings the total to 121.

Under the United States War Department officer-training program, the men chosen were required to volunteer for a three year enlistment in the Reserve Army. Because of this enlistment the prospective officers will not be subject to selective service. They will receive a basic pay of 25 cents per day until graduation when they are called for active duty.

The following men have been sworn in during the past two weeks:

Linn F. Adams, Roscoe E. Blyler, Clifford M. Brown, Harold A. Bryson, Martin Corbman, Robert R. Dickey, Thomas F. Egan III, Warren V. Galiffa, Lawrence D. Gent Jr., John H. Gerth, Stanley A. Goldberg, Christy Hellion.

Bernard Hankin, James A. Hewitt, Edward J. Kleckner, Israel M. Krauss, Daniel M. Kreider, Benjamin F. Leaman Jr., Donald R. McCaa, Laurence G. McEvoy, William W. McKenna, Paul H. Magnus, William D. Meals, Robert O. Mitchell.

Harold L. Pickel Jr., Samuel E. Pretz, John F. Provost, Wallace M. Riley, Harry K. Search, Severine Stefanon, Kendrick C. Taylor, Olin W. Teavendale, Charles H. Walker, Merrill D. Witmer, John M. Zabkar, and Edward Steidle.

James G. White, College Trustee, Benefactor, Dies

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon for James Gilbert White, a leading benefactor of Penn State and a College trustee for the past 39 years who died Tuesday at his home in Greenwich, Conn. Mr. White, noted New York engineer, contractor, and investment banker, was 80.

Originator of the John W. White scholarship funds beginning in 1914, the James A. Beaver loan fund started in 1925 and the Mary Beaver White loan fund, begun in 1924, Mr. White's benefactions to the College total $101,920.40. The funds are valued at $51,000, $25,920.40, and $25,000 respectively. He was also a generous contributor to the College's emergency building fund.

He was graduated from the College with a bachelor of arts degree in 1882 and secured his M.A. here in 1884. He received the degree of Ph.D from Cornell in 1885. Mr. White was a native of Milroy, born August 29, 1861. His parents were the Rev. J. W. and Mary Beaver White, for whom the scholarships and loan funds were established.

Elected to the Trustee Board by the alumni in 1903, he served as vice-president of that group from 1914 to 1937 when he was named honorary vice-president. Although he had not visited the campus for a number of years prior to his death, Mr. White continued his interests in Penn State through correspondence.

World-famous as an engineer and contractor before his retirement some years ago, his companies have built railroads, bridges, power plants, buildings and harbor improvements in many parts of the world.

In 1907 his nearly 100 projects had an aggregate value of $70,000,000, a sum far more impressive than now. His firms were located in United States, Canada, and Great Britain and were engaged in operations in Europe, Asia, Australia, North and South America. On his payrolls were 1,000 civil, mechanical, electrical and hydraulic engineers.

Dr. Robert L. Sackett, former dean of the School of Engineering will serve as the College's official representative at the funeral services in Greenwich this afternoon.

J. H. Frizzell Will Speak During 1st Speech Hour

Prof. John H. Frizzell head of the speech department, will make the opening talk on the first in the series of Penn State Speech Hours, today at 2:15 p. m. over station WMTRE, Lewistown, 1490 kilocycles. These broadcasts are all under the direction of the speech department.

"College Days," is the topic for the first three programs. Today's program will deal with study hour. Prof. Joseph F. O'Brien, in charge of the initial group, will serve as chairman for the round-table discussions.

Participants today will be Louise M. Fuoss '43, E. Richard Booser '43, Samuel G. Fredman '43, and Robert S. MacNabb '45.

Students who wish to hear the broadcast should go to 312 Sparks Building, where Dr. Herbert Koeppe-Baker will tune in the program on the speech clinic radio. The Hillel Foundation, W. Beaver ave., will also broadcast the program in its social room. All students are welcome. All of the future series' programs can be heard at these two places.

BENEFACTOR PASSES—With the death of James G. White, College Trustee for the past 39 years, Penn State loses one of its greatest benefactors. Mr. White contributed over $101,000 dollars to the College in three different scholarship and loan funds. He was the originator of the John W. White, Mary Beaver White, and James A. Beaver funds. Funeral services will be conducted in Greenwich, Conn., his home, this afternoon.

IFC Rushing Fees Council Orders Due At SU Today 12 Hour Blackout

Fraternities' $50 rushing deposit fees are due at Student Union desk this afternoon or tomorrow, M. William Lundelius '43, Interfraternity Council president, announced last night.

The rushing deposit fees, to be returned in full at the end of the Summer semester to fraternities not guilty of rushing code violations, are payable between 1:30 and 5 p. m. today and between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. tomorrow.

Upon paying the deposit, each fraternity is entitled to receive the pledge cards and house-guest cards required by IFC. Interfraternity Council requires that fraternities hand into Student Union desk an appropriate card for each new pledge and for each rushee who moves into the house.

The cards will be placed on file at Student Union desk for use of all fraternities, according to Lundelius. "This cooperative set-up should go far toward facilitating rushing for all houses," the IFC president added.

An up-to-the-minute rushing directory will be available.

Elections Committee Meets

All-College Elections Committee will meet in 305 Old Main at 7 p. m. tonight according to an announcement by Donald W. Davis '43, chairman of the group. Discussions will center around the possibilities of forming a student government training school, the status of class officers not in school this Summer and freshman elections for the coming semester.

Orders from the State Council of Defense for an all night blackout June 24 when every light in central Pennsylvania is to be put out will bring to students and townspeople "the grim experience of simulated all-night air raid conditions."

The blackout, which is a test of the Civilian Protection system of the entire state, will be staggered over three nights. Eastern portions of the state will be darkened June 23 and the western counties on June 25.

Exact time for the blackout will not be announced, according to the Council, but the usual signals will sound a warning. In State College, that signal is a continuous blast on the power house whistle. Since the blackout is to last all night, an all-clear signal will probably not be used.

In connection with this third test for students and townspeople, Protection Chairman George W. Ebert said that any violations of the blackout regulations will be severely dealt with under a state law which gives state and local authorities "absolute power to adopt and enforce municipal regulations" during aid raids and blackouts.

State legislation provides for a fine of $200 or 90 days in jail, or both, for violations. Dr. James F. Shigley, chairman of the local council of defense, said that anyone found guilty of disobeying local regulations will be punished.

Kinter, Keefauver Elected To Edit Student Handbook

Robert E. Kinter '44 was elected to edit the Student Handbook at a meeting of the Penn State Christian Association Cabinet last night.

Helen R. Keefauver '44 will serve as women's editor; William C. Patterson '43, business manager; and Jean F. Fisher '43, advertising manager.

Student Handbook keys were presented to four members of this year's staff: Robert E. Scholey '43, William C. Patterson '43, Lila A. Whoolery '43 and Mary Jean Seanor '42.

Committee Decides Soph Hop Will Be Semi-Formal

"In order that the dance will be accessible to all students, the Soph Hop committee has declared the July 10 dance a semi-formal affair," stated Walter C. Price, chairman of the dance committee last night.

Price explained that the majority of students do not own Summer formal clothes and the weather will probably not be conducive to regular dark tux and tails dress. This will be the first campus semi-formal "big" dance since Soph Hop in November, 1940.

Swing, Sway, Have Fun, Play At SFRC's All-College Song-Fest

Relax and sing as best you can—

Don't leave it to the other man.

And you, coeds, let's hear you trill

Right lustily and with a will.

On June the twelfth, please note the date,

At Schwab the hour ends 'at eight.

All-College Sing will top the score—

If you come once, you'll want some more.

This verse was composed by the Student-Faculty Relations Committee in preparation for the All-College Sing, sponsored by the group, to be held in Schwab Auditorium from 7 to 8 p. m. on June 12.

Composed of folk, patriotic, romantics, old, peppy and other familiar songs, the Sing will mark the first active program to be sponsored by the Committee, whose duty it is to foster better relationships between students and members of the faculty.

A regular function held during past Summer sessions, the Sing always packed the auditorium as early as an hour before the program was to start and it is hoped that such will be the case for this affair. The committee feels that a program of this sort will afford undergraduates and faculty members a chance for recreation and relaxation during the accelerated College program.

If the affair proves to be successful.
