We, The Women How About More WSGA Petitions?

Prior to last year, freshman coeds who wished to participate in WSGA activities or serve on committees had to wait for the powers, namely WSGA Senate, to go through the rostrum and choose participants at random.

With the inauguration of a petition system, each new student was able to list the particular phase of activity in which she was interested and would be willing to serve. When the time came to choose committees, these lists were chosen accordingly.

A new freshman class is about to arrive on campus. Many of them will be eager to serve in coed government. Senate has realized the advance in democratic government which the new system has promoted, and will continue it this semester.

Not only is the petition system more democratic, but committees act more efficiently when students who have a real interest in participation are allowed to state their preferences. By that method Senate can be assured of more smoothly-running committees sincerely interested in their work.

We suggest that Senate, having tried and proved this addition during the past year, expand the petition system. WSGA House of Representatives could take a poll of interest in student government work and thereby add another step toward more completely democratic women's government.
