Drafting Course To Be Dropped Unless More Sign

Airplane drafting proposed ESMdT course, will not be given unless more students enroll by Wednesday, it was disclosed by Prof. B. K. Johnstone, department of architecture. Only 11 persons, five women and six men, have applied for the course.

Professor Johnstone stated in an interview held last night, "Unless there are more applications for this course, it will be impossible to give it. I feel that students who do not have a particular skill are passing up an unusual opportunity."

"At the present time there is a shortage of airplane draftsmen. Any one who takes the course and is conscientious will be sure to obtain a good position upon completing it. My opinion is that students rarely get as fine a chance as this to learn a skill and help in the war effort."

Students may enroll for the course at Student Union or 301 Main Engineering. Only requirement is three years of satisfactory College work. There are no fees; equipment will be supplied without charge.

Frosh Wearing ROTC Uniforms Too Often, Tribunal Head Warns

"Entirely too many freshmen are wearing their ROTC uniforms all day in order to avoid customs," Charles H. Ridenour '43, chairman of Student Tribunal, warned last night.

Freshmen are taking their customs too lightly, Ridenour continued, and many members of Penn State's newest class completely ignore Tribunal's orders.

Tribunal's general "crackdown" is in progress, according to Ridenour, and by next Wednesday considerably more freshmen are expected to appear before the Board. Punishments have already been meted out to four customs violators.

Library To Close Early

Mr. Lewis, College librarian, announced last night that the library will be closed at nine o'clock on Wednesday, June 24, because of the blackout.

Viewing The Draft —

Little Enrollment Change Likely

By BEN BAILEY

What effect will the next draft registration have upon the student enrollment at the College? With a record-breaking enrollment of more than 4,000 Summer Semester students—nearly half of whom are men eligible for registration June 30—widespread speculation has been raised recently over a suitable answer to this question.

Since June 30 will leave not more than several hundred freshmen unregistered at the College, the general assumption has been that the draft will soon begin to make serious inroads on the male enrollment.

One answer lies in the situation to date. For despite the three previous Selective Service registrations, coupled with the enlistment drives by the Army Air Corps, the Navy, and the Marines,

Hetenyi Named Head Of Dance Committee For Victory Weekend

A "big name" band for Victory Weekend seemed almost a certainty last night as Leon Rabinowitz '43, general chairman of V-Weekend, appointed a special committee to contact the nation's leading dance organizations.

Appointment of the dance committee was made at a special executive committee meeting last night. Plans were also discussed for the three-star variety show that will combine the top talent of Thespians, Penn State Players, and the College Glee Club.

Heading the dance committee will be Laszlo J. Hetenyi '43. Other newly-appointed members are John A. Jordan '43, David J. McAleer '43, Gordon L. Coy Jr. '43, Margaret K. Sherman '43, and Jerome H. Blakeslee '43, ex-officio.

IMA To Aid Scrap Rubber Collection

Joining in the All-College scrap rubber collection drive which opened yesterday, IMA completed a rapid organization of its members throughout the town to facilitate a complete collection campaign.

All-College Cabinet, sponsor of the campaign at the College, urges all students and owners of rooming houses to search their basements, back yards, and garages for obsolete tires, inner tubes, garden hose, boots and overshoes, all types of sheeting, rubber heels, and similar articles to aid the drive.

All rubber will be collected by trucks next Tuesday night. Headquarters for collection have been designated by IMA, and students are requested to take their scrap rubber to the headquarters nearest their residence. Chairmen have been appointed to supervise collection in each of the designated areas.

The headquarters and their chairmen include: Miller Club, David J. Weigle '44; B.R.B., Robert E. Craig, 2-year Ag; Men's dormitories on campus, Ray L. Reinbold '44; Ingleside Club, Nelson L. Bostic '44; Penn Haven, Kehl Markley '44; The Baracuda, Donald O. Schisler '44; Pioneer House, Thomas E. Wilcox '44; Fairmount Hall, Brooke C. Jones '44; Fletcher Club, James M. Krese '44; Frazier Street, Ben M. Bailey '44; W. College avenue, George P. Dixon '44 and Thomas H. Buffton '43.

relatively little decrease in male enrollment has been evidenced. Behind this lies the fact that most of these programs now strive to let the student graduate before entering the service.

Recruiting officers and representatives of the various branches of the service on the campus concur in the opinion that it is the desire of the government to do this whenever possible.

One explanation for this policy is the overtaxing of officer training facilities at present. Officials admit that training camps and schools are so overcrowded that new recruits cannot be accommodated adequately. As a result the government urges the student to remain in college until a place can be found for him in the war effort.

Apparently the government's ul-

Collegian Subscribers Dance Tonight; WRA Initiates Summer Co-Recreation

Cabin Party, Bike Hike On Weekend Program

Penn State men and women will participate in a colorful co-recreation day starting at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon as a crowded co-rec activities schedule also initiates WRA's program of sports activity.

The weekend card will end with the return of students at 10 a. m. tomorrow from a bicycle hike to the WRA cabin at Shingletown Gap.

Participants in Co-Rec Day will be scattered from the College golf course and tennis courts to Holmes Field and around White Hall. The entire program is under the chairmanship of Adele J. Levin '44, WRA activities chairman.

Although both men and women students were asked to sign up by 5 p. m. yesterday for sports in which they were interested, F. Doris Stevenson '44, WRA publicity chairman, announced that anyone else interested may participate. However, those who signed up first for tennis and golf will be given preference if course and courts are crowded, Miss Stevenson stated.

Among sports offered in today's program are Scotch foursomes and a tennis novelty tournament. In front of White Hall and in Holmes Field activities will include Columbia round and novelty archery tournaments, six courts of badminton with a progressive tournament, croquet, fist ball, softball, volley ball, and progressive table tennis tournaments. Shuffleboard will be played on sidewalks, and Chinese checkers and other table games will be available.

Coeds who will supervise playing include Mignonette E. Freder-

Frosh Compulsory Mass Meeting Set For Tuesday

Freshmen will meet in another compulsory mass meeting in Schwab Auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday, with songs and cheers occupying the program, according to Charles E. Peck '44, chairman of the event.

Different from the last song-cheer fest will be the appearance of the College Glee Club under the direction of Prof. Frank M. Gullo, department of music. The Glee Club will sing each song first, then the newcomers will try it, and finally both will sing.

IF IT RAINS — Adele J. Levin '44, Co-Recreation day chairman, announced last night that in case of rain, the program scheduled for today would be postponed.

Lion Coats Go On Sale

Lion Coats went on sale yesterday in downtown stores, Louis J. Palazzi '43, committee chairman, announced last night. Seniors who wish to purchase the coats may get them at any men's clothing shop for $1.50.

Tickets Will Also Be Sold At Door

Largest attendance of any dance this semester is expected tonight when The Daily Collegian sponsors its annual informal subscription dance in Rec Hall. Campus Owls will provide the music from 9 to 12 p. m.

All subscribers to The Collegian will be admitted to the event free with the presentation of dance tickets which were distributed with subscription receipts.

Those who haven't bought Penn State's daily newspaper may purchase dance tickets at the door for 75 cents, or may buy a semester subscription for the new price of $1.25, delivery to start July 1. The special subscriptions, tickets attached, also will be sold at the door.

Thus, actual cost of having The Collegian delivered five mornings a week for the rest of the semester would be 50 cents. In other words, while a student buys a dance admission at 75 cents per couple, an additional 50 cents would purchase The Daily Collegian for a semester.

"I can guarantee the music will be strictly solid tonight," said George P. Washko '45, leader of the Campus Owls orchestra. "From observing students' preferences, we've found they like a ratio of two ballad, or slow, numbers, to one moderately fast, and a jump tune occasionally," the musician explained.

Helen L. Schmelz, blond junior, is the vocalist with the 15-piece orchestra. Occupying one of the top ranks of Penn State orchestras for the past years, recently under the leadership of Jimmy McAdams '42, the Campus Owls reorganized this semester with Washko as head.

Under the new carrier system started by The Collegian several days ago, delivery has improved greatly, and complaints for papers missed have reached their lowest point since last September, according to an announcement last night. A careful checkup on complaints has revealed that "missed papers" occur mainly in large boarding houses and fraternities where the carrier may not be at fault.
