

Rec Hall Resounds To Yells And Skids Of Folk Dancers

By M. J. WINTER '44

Minus traditional overalls and sunbonnets, over 200 persons, ranging from pigtailed grade-schoolers to white haired grandmothers, skipped and shuffled over Recreation Hall's floor last night at the WRA-sponsored folk dancing session.

Calling out steps, Albert E. Haynes, professional dancer and authority on Early American dancing, lead the crowd through round dances, square dances, and more sedate formations.

With periodic breathing spells for winded participants, students and townspeople mingled together in an informal atmosphere. Aside from those on the crowded floor, less ambitious folk dancing devotees leaned from balcony seats to watch friends listen to directions from Mr. Haynes and immediately fumble steps. With a few repetitions, however, everyone joined together and participated vigorously.

As social director of Henry Ford's Wayside Inn in Sudbury, Mass., Mr. Haynes, former stage and movie director and actor, has conducted folk dancing sessions at Harvard University Summer school for three years. He is leaving the College tomorrow, after spending the week here teaching a concentrated course in Early American dances as a part of the inter-session program.

Well known in his field, Mr. Haynes' students at the week's class included a woman from Minneapolis. On her way to New York, she read of his course here, stopped at the College, and registered for the week's training.

WRA club members acted as hostesses at last night's dance, urged the more reticent dancers to join in, paired lone enthusiasts, and helped with more intricate steps. Physical education professors and instructors were also on hand to help smooth difficulties.

We, The Women Have You Bought Your Ticket Yet?

This is one of those rare instances when we feel that free publicity is justified in an editorial column.

We're talking about the Cwens dance which is scheduled for White Hall from 9 p. m. to midnight tomorrow night. We're talking about the women students who will get the scholarships to be given from proceeds.

We're asking coeds, "Have you bought your ticket for the Cwens dance?"

Collegian "kids" have a habit of judging other people by the cooperation which they display when information for a story is requested.

By this criterion, G. W. Ebert and his dimout assistants rate 3's. In the midst of Wednesday night's excitement, they not only took time to explain the intricacies of the set-up but showed reporters all possible courtesies.

Date Bureau Results Reveal Men Demand Conversationalists

A slender brunette who dances well and is a good conversationalist is the ideal date, according to preferences listed on IWA dating bureau application blanks.

Of 79 male applicants, 21 rated conversational ability as essential while 17 demanded good dancers, and the same number requested brunette dates. Slenderness rated 16 votes.

Men defined a good conversationalist as one between the constant chatterer and the unadulterated listener, when 14 stated that she must be talkative and 13 said that she should not be too quiet.

Twelve votes reflected masculine dislike of too obvious make-up, while ten condemned snobishness.

Beauty, a sense of humor, and intelligence polled equal votes of seven. One gentleman specified his preference for a coed with at least a "2" average.

Five men favored good figures and five commended "a reasonable amount of reserve." Four ruled out smoking, while two said "no" to glasses.

Three "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Redheads ran close with two votes. Eye coloring was little disputed, with green, brown, and blue scoring one vote each. Elaborate hairdos, super-sophisticates, drinking, and perfume received negative replies.

Chief masculine virtue necessary in the opinions of 26 of the 64 women registered by the date bureau was adequate height. Twenty-two requested that dates be conversational.

Twelve coeds stressed manners, while 11 asked for a sense of humor. The same number specified brunettes. Ten women wanted no conceit, and nine preferred good-looking men.

The man with a physique, the athlete, and the non-bashful were applauded by four coeds. Three votes went to serious men, and non-drinkers. Neatness, blond hair, and sincerity polled two votes. One coed black-listed cigars, while another barred glasses.

25 Enroll In Airplane Class

With 11 women and 14 men enrolled in the airplane drafting course sponsored by the Engineering School, the class will fix a meeting time and will begin its 8 hours per week for 25 weeks training next week.

The course will include study and practice in the general principles of engineering drawing and dimensioning, aircraft numbering systems and practices, detail assembly and installation drawings for airplanes, descriptive geometry and its application in simple structure layouts for airplanes.

Because the national government has set aside so many millions of dollars for such courses, it expects students so trained to be immediately absorbed into vital defense industries. For this reason, prerequisites are at least three years of satisfactory College work and termination of College work on December 18, 1942.

Women enrolled in the course include Miss Ruth H. Zang, assistant to the dean of women; M. Jean Seanor, graduate student; and Seniors Naomi Billen, Mary J. Cohlak, Hazel E. Gassmann, Gertrude A. Guers, Margaret M. Kilgore, Bernadette L. Kohler, Ruth E. Morrow, Madeline Platt, and Irma Winter.
