

Between The Lions

With MICKEY BLATZ

With the temperature hitting the 90's and students trying to find nearby swimmin' holes, now that gasoline rationing has made Whipple's more of a mirage than an oasis, it isn't likely that anyone has given a thought to the coming football season—that is, anyone outside of head cheerleader Chuck Peck and his group of game-pepper uppers.

Chuck and the boys had a meeting last night and the conclusion reached was that Penn State fans just don't seem to "go to it" as they do at Pitt, Penn, and the Army and Navy games.

Assuming that it has been the fault of the cheerleaders, Peck has doped out several ways to give his profession a shot in the arm. However, much of its success will still depend on cooperation from the stands.

For instance, Peck suggests expanding the use of colored cards to make pictures, a method well-known to football-goers on the west coast. Permanent colored cards that could be picked up by hatmen, for instance, after the third quarter, might be used game after game. It would take a great deal of coaching to insure correct timing in flashing the cards, but with a little cooperation from Tribunal head Ridenour, maybe the Freshmen could put in their appearance a little before game time to receive the necessary instructions.

Peck, enthused by the idea, has been doing some research before presenting his idea to the proper authorities who would have to approve. As yet, his letters to cheerleaders at universities using the card system haven't been answered.

Six more cheerleaders, doubling the size of the squad, have made it possible to cover the stands better. Better coverage means better synchronizing.

A third plan of Peck's to add color to Penn State's games is to teach the whole squad elementary tumbling, a job that gymnastic coach Gene Wetstone has already agreed to undertake.

It's Chuck's idea to put on such a good show that the fans will want to cheer voluntarily. Whether or not they will, is, of course, only a matter of time and how good a show Peck puts on.

Record Salvage Starts Today

Campus organizations and living groups have been requested to give their support to the records-for-soldiers drive underway in State College today.

No house-to-house canvass will be made, according to M. A. McCarty, associate professor of animal husbandry, who is chairman of the State College division of the national campaign. Anyone with old phonograph records to donate, however, is requested by the State College committee to leave them at Martin and Kreamer's barber shop on E. College avenue, or to turn them over to a member of the American Legion, the Legion Auxiliary, or the Junior Drum and Bugle Corps.

Records collected will be sold for scrap, and the proceeds will be used to purchase phonographs and new records, at factory cost, for the use of the men in our armed forces.

Records for Our Fighting Men, Inc., was organized as a non-profit agency last month by Kay Kyser, Kate Smith, Fritz Reiner, Sigmund Spaeth, and Gene Autry, and has the official recognition of President Roosevelt's Committee on War Relief Agencies.

The national goal for the two-week drive, ending midnight August 2, is 37,500,000 records, which will return an estimated $937,500 for new records and machines. No specific quota has been set for State College.

panists include Mr. Sans, William Marsh, Miss Jenkins, Victor V. Dimeo, Margaret Flynn, Daisy Hart, Hubert Haugh, and Mrs. Hermance Reese.

Orchestra selections by Phi Mu Alpha, music honorary, under the direction of Theodore Karhan, will include several Spanish selections. On the program are "La Comparsa," "Andalucia," "Danza Chilena y Estilo," "Malagueno," and "Bolero Ritmico."

Between numbers, victrola music will furnish cultural music of the Latin-American.

With Pan-American consciousness in college minds as its goal, the fiesta will be the first in a series of such programs to be patterned in smaller sections. The College has been appointed a center for the work.

Blackout Tonight

will be staged. Incendiary bombs, broken water and gas mains, fires, first aid jobs, and similar cases will be tried.

Hatmen will act as messengers for the Centers, while the air raid posts will be manned by the regularly assigned people.

There will be no all night dim-out as during the test June 24, but during the actual test, all the regulations of the State and local Councils will be in effect.

Vehicles must pull to the side of the road, and occupants seek shelter in the nearest building. Pedestrians must get off the streets and all lights must be shielded.

The state defense officials again urged the citizens to prepare a shelter so that they may become accustomed to carrying on as usual, if an actual air raid ever does come.

The head of the Country Defense Council warned that violations will be severely punished. Air raid wardens on the different posts will give advice and warnings to violators, and refusal to comply with their requests will be acted upon immediately.

Seven IM Games Listed For Today

Six fraternity and four independent softball teams yesterday scored 133 runs, an average of 26 3-5 runs per game, in a day of free-swinging, free-scoring intramural softball competition.

With every man in both lineups getting at least one hit, the Matils steady run producing overcame the seven-run first inning of the Miller Club for a final 18-9 win. Bachman led the Matils with four runs and three hits.

Another seven-run first inning splurge, this time by Irvin Hall, gave Irvin Hall a 15-3 triumph over Watts Hall, breaking their fifth place tie. In Monday's games Fairmount Hall's reported loss to Jordan Hall should have been a 12-10 win.

Three games were played, one each in Sections 3, 4 and 5. Delta Chi rallied to come from behind in the final inning, winning 13-11, while Beta Sigma Rho squeezed out Gamma Sigma Phi, 11-10, and Phi Kappa Sigma walked over Sigma Phi Alpha, 23-10, for their first victory.

'Art in Centre County' Talk Scheduled Tonight

"Art in Centre County" will be the subject of a gallery talk by Prof. Harold E. Dickson, department of art, in the Mineral Industries art gallery at 8 o'clock tonight.

Other Summer session activities today include a tea for Summer Dames at 732 Holmes street at 3:30 p. m., and a lecture, "Education for Family Life," by Dr. Muriel Brown, United States Office of Education, in 110 Home Economics at 4 p. m.

Griess, team physician, in the dispensary sometime before July 30 for their Summer physical. The gridders first practice is scheduled at 7 p. m. Monday, August 3, when all candidates should report to the Water Tower.

Increased Summer Enrollment Depletes Boro Water Supply

State College's regular water supply is running low fast and will probably be insufficient for the town's needs within two weeks, H. B. Gulden, borough engineer, stated last night in a special interview for The Daily Collegian.

Direct responsibility for the impending shortage was laid to the special Summer semester. "It is not the unusually small amount of rainfall," Gulden stated, "but the unusually large number of people in town this Summer."

Weekend rains offered temporary relief from the threatening deficiency, according to Gulden, but it cannot be expected that this Summer's increased water consumption can be permanently offset by Summer showers.

The official State College engineer assured, however, that serious inconvenience from the low drinking supply will be averted by electric pumping from special deep wells that have been prepared in advance.

"Use of the special wells has been consistently successful during droughts of other years, and should not cause too noticeable a change," Gulden stated. "While it is an added expense, electric pumping will provide water not too much different in taste from the supply we are now using."

The special "deep wells," as well as the regular borough reservoir, are located near Shingle-town Gap.

Golfers Prepare For Colgate Meet

Colgate's Red Raiders will tee off twice this weekend on the Colgate course when the Lion linksmen meet the Colgate golfers here Friday and Saturday.

Defeated during the Spring season, and again in June on the Summer schedule, the Colgate players have not been able to register with the Lion golfers. Only blot on the record was the defeat of Co-captain Dick Stephens by Burns from Colgate in the last match.

Whether Burns can do a repeat job remains to be seen when the two meet Friday and Saturday. Burns downed Stephens on the Colgate course, where he has played for a number of years. The match was close, and now, with Stephens playing his home course, the duel may swing over in favor of the Lion player.

The Colgate course is one of the best in this region. Par is 69, with few players able to better it. Two of the toughest holes are the 11th and 13th, both long, and lined with plenty of hazards. The 11th stretches from the highway far down the course, is lined with trees, sandtraps, and with a side road close by.

Skirting the 13th hole is the railroad approaching State College, with lots of brush near the tee, while the green itself is around a hill that is difficult to play over, since the traps near the green are not visible from many parts of the fairway.

Lineup for the weekend matches is not complete yet, but the players that made the trip to Cornell last week will probably start. The Lions had no trouble in downing the Big Red by a wide margin, 8-1.

Co-captain Bill Swan will most likely lead off with Stephens, with Ed Fairchild and Dick Hastings in the three and four spots. Third couple in the lineup will be Chuck Maclay and Jim McCormick, if there are no upsets in the play-offs during the week.

Shigley Presents Awards To Defense Workers

Civilian Defense Workers were presented with arm bands carrying the designation of their branch of service last night at a meeting by Dr. James F. Shigley, chairman of the State College Council.

Charles E. Freedman, chairman of the County Defense Council, spoke at the meeting, as did Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, president of the College.
