

Frosh Coeds Enlist For Warden Duty In All Blackouts

Nineteen McAllister Hall coeds assisted Charles A. Eder, civil engineering instructor and Postal air raid warden, during last night's blackout, according to Miss Kathryn Pontzer, dormitory hostess. These students have volunteered their services and stated their interest in work of this type by enrolling in the Basic Air Raid course offered by the College.

No college credits are offered for the course, but those completing it will be awarded arm bands signifying that they are assistant air raid wardens.

These coeds will be posted in or near Old Main, McAllister Hall, Home Economics, Schwab Auditorium, and Textile Chemistry, the five buildings included in Post 1. Their duties will consist of turning off all lights and seeing that people taking refuge in these buildings are in the proper places.

The nineteen coeds include Laura Jean Davis, Janet F. Dixon, Nancy Ferris, Joan Finn, Jean R. Gilbert, M. Louise Hartley, Martha Jacobs, Myra Jacobson, Virginia Ladd, Esther Leffler.

Marjorie Lyon, Miriam Meyer, B. Ann Moorehouse, Ferné Mountz, Sara Jane Schmidt, Jean C. Smith, Jean S. Smith, Ruth Sprague, and Leila Thompson.

Omicron Nu To Sell Pot Holders To Frosh

Members of Omicron Nu, home economics honorary, will sell hair nets and pot holders to freshman coeds in their first foods laboratory classes next semester. This plan, which has been in practice for years, has yet to be officially endorsed by the faculty, but approval is merely a technicality, according to Esther M. Hall '43, president of the organization.

Because only two members of Omicron Nu have been at school this Summer, a freshman tea, formerly planned for the first Monday of Freshman Week, has been postponed. Definite plans for this tea will be settled at the first meeting of this organization next semester.

Scientific Honorary Initiates 3 Graduates

Sigma Delta Upsilon, graduate women's scientific honorary, initiated Mrs. Isabel M. Oakwood, former instructor in chemistry at Vassar, Mrs. Madeleine F. Coleman, graduate assistant in bacteriology, and Barbara K. Webster, graduate assistant in textile chemistry, at a ceremony in the State College Hotel recently.

Following the ceremony a banquet was held in the hotel at which Dr. Julia M. Haber, first president of the honorary, spoke on the subject, "Plant Products and Warfare."

Council Will Meet

WSGA Freshman Council members will meet in 305 Old Main at 5 p. m. tomorrow to have a picture taken for LaVie, Patricia Diener '45, WSGA sophomore senator in charge of the Council, announced last night. The last meeting of the semester will be held afterwards, Miss Diener said.

Co-op To Bid Farewell

Nittany Co-op will hold a farewell party Saturday from 8 p. m. to midnight in honor of members who do not expect to return next semester. Co-op members held a skating party at the Coliseum Friday.

Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, will hold initiation in the Alpha Chi Omega suite at 7 o'clock tonight.

Carruthers Says 'Sister' Assignments Will Be Completed At End Of Week

One hundred and fifty upper-class women have been given Little Sisters, according to H. Anne Carruthers '44, WSGA town senator, in charge of Big Sisters. Remaining coeds will be assigned before the end of the week.

Women still interested in aiding in the traditional orientation may sign up at the dean of women's office, Miss Carruthers stated. Cards with information about the incoming coeds will be sent to Big Sisters before vacation begins.

According to the blanks filled in by more than 300 upperclass women, a majority signed to help because they saw the need caused by increased enrollment and accelerated program. Others said they were interested because of benefits received their freshman years.

Although most of the entering coeds are technical students, their interests range from dramatics to various sports. A few uncommon likes of the prospective frosh include sculpturing, flying, photography, cheerleading, and designing clothes. One voiced her ability to write "poor prose and worse poetry", while another expressed a desire to train and raise dogs.

Present students indicated their interests to include dancing, swimming, dramatics, music, and outdoor sports. While a large number of the upperclass women interested are in technical courses, representatives of the Liberal Arts School and home economics department have signed up, Miss Carruthers said.

Of the total number of College women who will act as Big Sisters, 30 per cent were juniors; 30 per cent, freshmen; 20 per cent, seniors; and 20 per cent, sophomores. More than 30 students requested certain persons for Little Sisters.

"We consider this an excellent response in a very short time," Miss Carruthers remarked. "Now coeds are urged to write letters to entering students and establish relationships which will be strong immediately after the opening of the new semester."

Convocation Today Hetzel Addresses

There will be an informal discussion of the problems brought in by the activity heads after President Hetzel has finished addressing the group.

This meeting will probably be followed shortly after the beginning of the Fall semester by an All-College affair following the same lines and for the same purpose. Plans for this meeting have not yet been completed.

We, The Women Will Actions Pace Initial Spirit?

By their response to the call for Big Sisters, coeds have shown an awareness of the importance of the Fall freshman orientation program.

They have signified willingness to help find answers to questions which will be asked by 475 new coeds.

We hope this spirit of willingness develops into conscientious action. It would be fine if personal prejudices, sorority and activities affiliations, and all the petty faults which have tarnished past programs, would be forgotten and destroyed.

We hope the actions of Big Sisters will be as commendable as their initial spirit.

Physical fitness is not just a slogan one reads on defense posters—nor should it be confined to men and women in military service.

Judging from the lagging postures, deep eye circles, and susceptibility to common colds, few coeds have done more than realize that physical well-being is desired.

They know that one should not skip breakfast, that seven to eight hours sleep is vital, that exercise is a good thing.

Only a few ever obey the simple health rules familiar to grade school children.

With the final rush of bluebooks and term papers off to a good start, this is an unpropitious time to write of physical fitness.

Although it may be too late to do much this semester, it's not too early to plan a physical fitness program for next semester.

Boring Appoints Coeds To Picnic Committee

At a recent meeting of Ellen H. Richards Club, junior women's home economics honorary, Dorothy M. Boring, president, appointed a food committee for the annual Ag-Home Ec picnic September 26.

Members of the committee are Dorothy G. Clymer, M. Virginia Krauss, and Marie E. Weiss.

Club members will volunteer to return early to help with freshman registration, it was decided at the meeting.

Ath West Wins In Volleyball

With a final score of 36 to 20, Ath West trounced Thetas last night to become volley ball champions and to be awarded another five points toward the intramural cup award.

Although the score was 23 to 17 in favor of the winning team at the half, the game was a fairly close one up to that point.

Outstanding players include Sophomores Felice Heisler and Sally Hostetter for Ath West, and Jimmy Irwin '43 and Vivian Martin '45 for the Thetas.

This game broke a record as Chi Omega had captured the volley ball title for four years in a row.

An up-to-the-minute review of teams leading in the fight for WRA's intramural cup reveals that Ath East is ahead with 14 points. Ath West is rated second with 10 points (it had previously scored 5 points for a first in mushball). Kappas are now in third place with 5 points and Thetas are trailing along with 3 points for last night's game.

Deadlines Suspended As Reporters Seek Shelter In Blackout

Although the news must come through despite all disasters, The Daily Collegian again suspended deadlines, copy running, and frantic phone calls for the half-hour blackout intermission last night.

Taking shelter in the second floor lounge, Old Main—usual hangout for sandwich hour sleepers and organization meetings—the staff staggered up the main stairs following a patrolman, stubbed toes on furniture and reclining shelter-seekers, and settled down for a breathing spell.

Oblivious of the Control Center stationed in the first floor lounge, refugees tightened vocal cords and tuned up with a few State songs. However, like the traditional apartment scene, complaints were soon voiced from the lower story, and the blacked-out room echoed only murmurs and whispers.

As the sirens screeched the all-clear signal, reporters returned to typewriters, pausing on Pollock road as the Alpha Fire Company hurried home from a dormitory mission.
