

Altered Code To Rule Fall Rushing Season

Three major changes have been made in the code that will regulate rushing activities of Penn State fraternities during the Fall semester, Arthur G. Denman '43, rushing chairman, announced last night.

An entirely new section has been added to general rushing regulations, prohibiting fraternity men from entering buildings on campus where counselor meetings are taking place, or the mass meetings in Schwab Auditorium.

The new provision was added at the suggestion of Arthur R. Warnock, dean of men, according to Denman. Warnock hopes the addition will prevent recurrence of the disturbances "rushers" caused during the Summer semester rushing.

Exempt from the new "lockout" provision are counselors and IFC members on official business. "If the privileged students take advantage of this section, and rush freshmen during the meetings, it will be considered a violation of the spirit, as well as the letter, of the code," Denman warned.

The rushing code article on "Limits of the Official Rushing Season" underwent an unprecedented change, according to the rushing chairman, when the traditional 30-day silent period following the close of the official season was changed to a 10-day period.

The amendment to Article III states: "Pledging may not be continued after the end of the Formal Rushing Season until September 26, 1942, at 5 p. m."

PSCA Completes Orientation Plans

Plans for the PSCA's orientation program were coordinated and organized at a recent meeting of PSCA leaders, the Christian Association office disclosed yesterday.

Specific plans for Freshman Week include a Freshman Women's Party, Monday, September 7, following the Welcome Mass Meeting. Pamphlets will be distributed during the week through Counselor meeting and Senior Sponsor meetings.

First meeting of Freshman Council, PSCA fellowship group for freshman men, will be held Tuesday, September 8. Cabin Open House programs for frosh men and women will be held on Saturday and Sunday, September 19 and 20, with the women hiking to Ralph Watts Lodge on Saturday and the men on Sunday.

IFC Committee Studies Defense Stamp Buying

Plans for organized defense stamp buying by Penn State fraternities are being studied by a special Interfraternity Council committee, according to M. Williams Lundelius '43, IFC president.

The committee will study such plans as competition among the fraternities, a standard purchase rate for all fraternity men, and the addition of defense stamp purchases to house bills, according to Lundelius.

Students Eligible For Air Force Technical Posts Reception Centers To Assign AER Members

Student applications for technical or highly specialized assignments in the Army Air Forces are now being accepted by the Air Force headquarters in Washington, D. C., it was revealed yesterday by Prof. Robert E. Galbraith, FAWS.

According to a special communication from Major General W. R. Weaver, of the Army Air Force technical training command headquarters, the Air Force is now accepting applications for direct appointment from civil life from those who, by training or experience, are qualified for technical or highly specialized assignments.

The communication emphasized the fact that candidates must be completely qualified at the time of application, since no additional training is normally provided. Persons accepted are expected to be called to immediate service.

Applications may be made by letter to Headquarters, Army Air Forces, Attention Director of Appointment and Procurement Division, Washington, D. C.

Physical requirements in the Technical Command are lower than those of the regular Air Force Reserve, according to Galbraith, and are designed to accommodate the specially trained civilian who is otherwise not eligible for active flying duty.

Galbraith added that members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps will remain unassigned until classified at the appropriate reception center, and then will be assigned to the branch most in need of men with the qualifications shown by the individual. There can be no definite assurance given that they will be assigned to the Army Air Forces, although their applications for that branch will be given priority, since there are great demands for college trained men in many of the other branches.

Student Book Exchange To Reopen Next Week

Cabinet To Sponsor Project In Armory

The student book exchange will be revived, for this book-buying season at least, Bernard A. Plesser '43, a member of the All-College Cabinet committee, in charge of its organization, stated yesterday.

The exchange will open Wednesday at 9 a. m. and will run from then until next Friday at 12 noon. During that time it will be open daily from 9 a. m. until 12 noon and from 1:10 until 4 p. m. It will remain closed during vacation, opening again on Thursday, September 10, at 1:10 p. m. The same daily hours will prevail during this business period which will run to noon Saturday, September 19.

The exchange will be established in 9 Armory, the room formerly occupied by the signal corps of the department of military science and tactics. Students will use the entrance facing the Mall.

The plan for buying and selling books through the exchange will be the same as prevailed when the exchange was open previously. For each book bought or sold through the exchange, a fee of five cents will be collected from the person doing the buying or selling.

EXCHANGE CHIEF — Robert L. Mawhinney, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the new All-College Cabinet-sponsored book exchange, will direct the activities of the exchange during its term of business beginning next week.

Home Ec Clubs To Aid Ag Council Picnic Plans

Cooperating with Ag Student Council, Ellen H. Richards Club, junior home economics honorary, the Home Economics Club, and Ag School faculty social committee will help plan the student-faculty picnic for the School of Agriculture and the department of home economics to be held in Hort Woods Saturday afternoon, September 26.

All clubs connected with the School of Agriculture must hold elections prior to October 14 on which date the new Ag Council will hold its first meeting, Horard J. Merrill '43, Council president, announced yesterday.

Ag faculty and course questionnaires should be obtained from advisors before the end of this semester, Merrill reminded all ag students. These form will be collected at September registration.

Late News Flashes...

LONDON—It is reported that the Allied Command here has been studying the possibility of a counter-invasion by the Axis as a result of the recent Commando raid on occupied France at Dieppe. Official sources predict that the Allies are planning another offensive to take place in the very near future.

WASHINGTON—The Selective Service Board here announced that plans for elimination of Class 1-B under the draft setup have already been formulated and that local boards have been instructed to reclassify men who have been in this class into Class 1-A for induction in the near future. Only those who are completely physically disabled will not be placed into the 1-A classification. These men will be placed in Class 4-F and will be entirely eliminated from the draft.

RIO DE JANEIRO—President Getulio Vargas ordered all Germans, except diplomats, who had boarded the exchange ships Bage and Cuyaba, to be held as hostages because of a recent sinking of a Brazilian ship. The ship is believed to have been sunk by a Nazi submarine. The Germans who had embarked on the ship were to be sent to Lisbon, Portugal, where they were to be exchanged for Brazilians in that area.

Governor James Praises Student Government During His Surprise Visit With President Hetzel

"That meeting of your College president with the student leaders is the kind of thing that makes me confident of America's future. I'm proud that Penn State has a student government strong enough to make such a convocation possible."

Gov. Arthur H. James was the speaker; the setting was an interview at the College golf course; the time was yesterday afternoon, during the first State College meeting of Pennsylvania's governor and Penn State's president.

The unprecedented visit to State College has no hidden or momentous significance, the Governor emphasized. He had merely stopped by for a social call with the President, and found that Hetzel had just left for the golf course with Samuel K. Hostetter, assistant to the president. James then decided to change to his slack suit and saddle shoes and do his "socializing" while "on the go."

Why yes, he admitted, he had also stopped in State College to see President Hetzel the day before, but the President had been out. That trip was also accidental, he insisted.

GOV. ARTHUR H. JAMES

Governor James' interest in student government was wholehearted. "It takes the place of early training in accepting responsibility that modern youth just doesn't have," Pennsylvania's governor said.

"The kids just aren't needed for chores around the house anymore," he continued, "and until they come to college, most of them have never had to shoulder responsibility. Active student government provides training that will make it eternally unnecessary for us oldsters to scoff at 'the younger generation.'"

The interview, bull-session style, was being conducted while a call was being issued at the caddy house for a "fourth for golf." Carl Schott, Phys Ed School dean, answered the call and got paired off with the Governor for a match against Hostetter and President Hetzel.

"I only hope my handling of affairs of state is not as bad as my handling of golf clubs," James apologized as he prepared to tee off in the first match in all history between the heads of the state of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania State College.

"Well," President Hetzel remarked, "as the bishop once told our minister... 'If you shoot over a hundred in golf, you're spending too much time at preaching. If you shoot under a hundred, (Continued on Page Three)

Two Persons Injured In Air Depot Crash

Two persons received minor injuries when a plane cracked-up at the State College Air Depot near Boalsburg early Wednesday afternoon.

The occupants, J. B. Thompson, pilot, and H. McInerney, passenger, were taken to a physician's office in State College, where they were treated for their injuries.

Airport manager Sherm Lutz stated that the plane crashed because it was built for taking-off from a larger field.
