

50 Cwens Attend Farewell Banquet To Honor Stevenson

Actives Present Classical Records

Miss Mary Jane Stevenson, assistant to the dean of women, was guest of honor at a farewell banquet, sponsored by Cwens, sophomore women's activities honorary, of which she is advisor, at the Nittany Lion Inn last night.

Fifty Cwens, members of the present group and of the junior and senior classes, attended. Special guests included Dean of Women Charlotte E. Ray, Miss Ruth H. Zang, Miss Nina M. Bentley, and Dr. Pearl O. Weston, assistants to the dean; Miss M. Cordelia Beech, secretary to the dean of women; Miss Marie Haidt, associate professor of physical education; and Mrs. Howler, Cwen alumna from town.

M. Grace Longenecker '45, president of the active Cwens, presided. Representing the senior class, Louise M. Fuoss, former Cwen president, gave a short talk. An original poem about Miss Stevenson was presented by Phyllis R. Watkins, junior representative.

In behalf of present Cwens, Miss Longenecker presented the guest of honor with two albums of classical records.

Miss Stevenson, who is completing her third year of service to the College, will leave at the end of next week to accept the position of dean of women at Albright College, Reading.

As a student at Westminster College, New Wilmington, Del., Miss Stevenson was a member of Cwens.

GUEST OF HONOR—Miss Mary Jane Stevenson, assistant to the dean of women, was honored at a farewell banquet at the Nittany Lion Inn last night by Cwens, sophomore women's honorary.

Society Awards 2 Home Ec Seniors

Jean F. Brown and Annette M. Ingaldi, senior home economics majors, were announced yesterday as recipients of two $50 awards given by Mortar Board, national senior women's honorary. Winners were chosen on the basis of scholarship, attitude, participation in college functions, and need, stated Pauline Crossman, president.

Miss Brown is a member of the Home Economics Club. She spent the Summer working in Philadelphia and will return to College in September.

Also a member of the Home Economics Club, Miss Ingaldi was a member of WSGA House of Representatives last year, and served as president of Bart's Dormitory. At present she is doing her Summer practicum at the New Jersey State Hospital, Trenton. Upon her return to the campus next month she will move into one of the home economics management houses for an eight-week period.

Both young women have earned a large part of their College expenses while at school.

Miss Nina M. Bentley, Mortar Board advisor, will entertain the society at tea in her apartment at 4 p. m. Wednesday, Miss Crossman announced.

ANNOUNCES AWARDS—Pauline Crossman '43, Mortar Board president, announced last night the recipients of two $50 awards.

WRA Postpones Dance 'Til Tonight—Levin

"And the rains came," said Adele J. Levin '44, WRA activities chairman.

Because of last night's "stormy weather," WRA All-College Square Dance scheduled for yesterday has been postponed until tonight, Miss Levin announced.

Reminding all students to get in their last fling before blue-books start, Miss Levin added that the affair will still be held in the parking field opposite White Hall at 8 o'clock.

If there is any more competition from old man weather, it will be necessary to call the affair off, stated Miss Levin.

Dorm Salvage Will Include Old Clothes

Old clothes will again be salvaged in dormitories Thursday and Friday for the Friend's Service Committee, according to announcements made yesterday by Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women.

Hostesses have set the following places as receptors for the clothes: Atherton Hall, in hostesses' offices of each unit; Grange Dormitory, in the playroom on basement floor; Women's Building, in the center hall on first floor and near check-in desk on second floor; McAllister Hall, in second floor lounge.

Final collection will be made by Mrs. P. W. Schweitzer who has been in charge of the work for the last few years. Returns from the collections have been profitable, according to Mrs. Schweitzer.

HEAD SPONSOR CHANGED

Jean E. Kelly '43 was appointed chairman of the Senior Sponsors for the first part of the Fall semester to replace Marjorie R. Chambers '43, who will do student teaching, Miss Ray stated.

Comments and suggestions of the present freshman class were gathered and considered at four consecutive meetings of the Senior Sponsors with Miss Ray and Miss Chambers during the past week.

Due to the increased enrollment of the Fall semester and because of the fact that several of the present Sponsors will be student teaching, at home economics practice houses, or at Merrill-Palmer School in Detroit, additional members will be appointed. The squad of freshman helpers, which will total approximately 40, will be the first such orientation group to be active for two terms, Miss Ray pointed out.

CONTRIBUTIONS MOUNT

Further contributions to the United China Relief Fund and the Friends' Service Committee brought the total to $55, after a short voluntary drive by campus coeds. Dividing the money between the two charity groups, Miss Ray reported that $27.50 was sent to each.

Speech Classes Picnic

Classes of Mr. Ralph E. Richardson, instructor in public speaking, held a picnic at Fairmount Park last night. In charge of the affair were David N. Back '44, Ruth Hannigan, '44, and M. Josephine Miller '45.

'Sookie' Emerges From Laboratory To Receive Her Doctor's Degree

By M. J. WINTER

We, The Women Women Unite —At Last!

Orchids, or the season's favorite, should go in a huge bouquet to 20 persons who met Thursday night to discuss a unified program of freshman orientation.

Sixteen coeds and four administrative heads responded with their presence to letters sent out by Miss Ruth H. Zang, assistant to the dean of women, in charge of freshmen.

Every organization represented agreed that "We've got a job to do" and each one took home at least some part of the freshman schedule to organize and direct.

Credit goes to Miss Zang who had previously divided the program into sections and discovered definite lackings in last semester's plan. Immediate response to her call for unified effort evidences the commendable attitude that coed heads have.

Freshman suggestions were considered and complied with.

Upperclass comments became more than mere talk. Women joined ideas and organizations to attack a problem being met for the first time.

Big Sisters and CA Chums will acquaint entering women with the campus. Cwens will welcome them and sponsor student-faculty dinners. IWA and Philotes plan to direct dormitory exchange dinners. Scholaric honoraries will foster a consulting system available to all who have study problems.

Senior Sponsors will conduct short, regular, helpful meetings which will stop when they have accomplished their purpose. WSGA, Junior Service Board, and home economics honoraries were asked to supervise dining room etiquette.

WRA and the Phys Ed department will sponsor a "keeping fit" program. Representatives agreed to put in a unified "plug for sleep."

CA Freshman Forum will cooperate with Cwens in welcoming coeds. Town members volunteered to aid in every action.

In other words, women's organizations have at last shown that they can and intend to work together.

Even if it did take 400 prospective frosh to do it, it's done. Wo-

Shuk-Yee Chan, Chinese graduate student, will emerge from a college career, spent mostly in the laboratories, next week to receive her doctor's degree in plant pathology, only to return to take more courses that she was not able to schedule while working for her degree.

Her present plans are to continue her studies here, carry on research work, and do part-time teaching. When the war is over she hopes to return to China and do research and teaching there.

Coming to Penn State as an exchange student from Lingnan University in 1939 with a trustees' scholarship, Miss Chan received her master's degree in 1940, and has since been working for her doctor's.

"I am very grateful for the chance this scholarship has given me to study at the College," Sookie remarked. "Another Chinese student will probably come from China and receive this award in the Fall. The Chinese students on the campus appreciate being able to work here, since we can't go home during the war."

In comparing Lingnan University with Penn State, Sookie remarked that the undergraduate schools are about the same, although there are fewer elective courses offered and fewer professors at the Chinese university. The work, according to the foreign student, is hard at both colleges.

Although she has spent most of her time since she arrived at the College in laboratories, Sookie has found time to get to know many of the coeds. She considers them friendly, and hopes to get to know them better after she can cut down on her work a little.

Coeds might take a tip from the Chinese. Sookie says that she, and others of her race studying at the College, will be glad to help in any way possible toward winning the war.

men have made a move that should be applauded, and, incidentally, imitated.

The program as it now stands is abbreviated and tentative. It will be successful if women's groups carry out their pledge. It will falter sadly if individual organizations forget this meeting and plan schedules to fit their needs, not those of the freshmen.

Coeds To Sponsor Exchange Dinners

Uniting with Philotes, independent women's group, the two campus independent women's organizations will sponsor exchange dinners between freshman coeds and men and women living in town dormitories. Lois M. Gardner '43 and a Philotes representative will be in charge.

Plans for a lecture on social etiquette and form are being made by IWA. The speech will be given next semester for all independent women.
