

V-5 Recruiting Officer Will Visit Lewistown Today

Lieutenant Kane, of the Navy Recruiting and Procurement service, will be in the Embassy Theatre Building in Lewistown from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. today, according to Prof. Robert E. Galbraith, FAWS.

Lieutenant Kane will interview students interested in the Navy's V-5 flight training program, and administer preliminary physical examinations if a sufficient number of persons apply for enlistment, Galbraith stated.

Students interested in enlisting under the V-5 program are requested to contact Lieutenant Kane in Lewistown, since the latter is barred from visiting the campus pending settlement of the jurisdictional scrap for recruiting authority still existing among several recruiting branches of the service.

Neyhart Trains Army Operators

Amos E. Neyhart, College road training expert, is now teaching the Army how to properly operate motor vehicles. On duty at Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyoming, Mr. Neyhart is instructing them how to drive with safety and efficiency.

Invited by Brigadier General James A. Warden, commanding officer at Fort Warren, the administrative head of the College Institute of Public Safety has been conducting a course in driver education and training for Army instructors. The course has been in session for the past ten days and will come to a close this week.

The class enrollment consists of officers only. Upon completion of the training, they will begin the instruction of other Army personnel. Especially designed for the Army, the course was drawn up by Mr. Neyhart with the assistance of Dr. F. R. Noffsinger, educational consultant of the American Automobile Association.

Two Purpose Program

Many of Penn State's football players have been lost to the team via the draft in the last several months—17 to be exact. Now don't get any mistaken impressions. We're not be-moaning the fact that these boys will be serving in the armed forces rather than on the gridiron. But we do feel that these boys could have been kept on the squad and at the same time carry out the real purpose of the government's war time man power program.

This could have been accomplished by making sure that all qualified football men were enlisted in some officer reserve program. Programs that have been set up by the armed services for the explicit purpose of keeping college men (men suited for officer work) in college until graduation. The government feels that this college education is a necessary part of officer training. We feel that someone has neglected this task of urging football players with the proper qualifications to join one of the various enlisted reserve programs. Other colleges (Penn State's opponents among them) have done just this.

You are probably asking yourself: "Why should football players get any special consideration? Why isn't it just as important that any college student be urged to enlist in these reserve programs, thus permitting him to finish college and at the same time prepare for officer work?" We answer that it is equally as important for any student at Penn State to have this advice and to make these moves. However, this happens to be a sports column and the most obvious factor on the sporting front right now is football.

Football Continues

Then, too, there is the angle that football is going to continue this Fall despite the war. Maybe next Fall we won't have much, but while it's still with us, it is comparatively important that Penn State put to the field a representative squad; or in other words, a good squad. As long as we continue football and as long as we agree to meet opposing teams, we feel that every effort should be made to make this team as good as possible.

And we repeat that the enlisting of these players in officer reserves not only accomplishes this purpose but also carries out the government's plan for educating prospective officer material. So we suggest that in the future the suitable persons connected with football or the Phys Ed School take it upon themselves to not only urge but follow up closely the enlistment of football men.

Tests Uniform

Faculty members of the School of Agriculture are conducting examinations somewhat uniformly as a result of a report mailed to each instructor. The mimeographed report gives specific instructions for administering tests.

McGill - Yerger Champs; Take IM Doubles Title Tennis Star Cops Second Crown

By MICKEY BLATZ

Mrs. McGill's son Charley did it again!

Chuck, crowned IM Independent Singles champ on Tuesday, again came through to spark the McGill-Ralph Yerger team to the IM Independent Doubles Championship yesterday afternoon.

Strangely enough, the final match was again a short victory with the Thompson-Jaquist combine bowing out of the picture, 6-2, 6-2, the same score that brought McGill his singles title.

Thompson and Jaquist, outstanding in their own play, were unable to stand the strain of competing against the unusually well balanced opponents.

A third championship will be determined sometime today when Bob Scheirer and Johnny Jackson make their bid to join the IM Tennis Hall of Fame in the finals of the Fraternity Singles tournament.

Scheirer, who has also been serving in the capacity of tournament manager, lacks the impressive record of his rival, but is expected to be a strong contender for the title.

Jackson, wearing the colors of the Beta Theta Pi stables, has recorded upset wins over the 1941 champ, Lenny Joseph, and dark horse Hank Jeter, of whom much was expected, when he scored a victory over Joseph early in the tournament.

Four teams remain in the running for the Fraternity Doubles throne as a result of the Erwin-Watkins defeat at the hands of Reese and Miller yesterday.

Reese and Miller, who won by a 6-2, 6-4 score, will meet Frescoln and Stevens in a semi-finals match today.

To date, Frescoln and Stevens have been undefeated and they are expected to extend their streak in today's encounter.

If they lose, they will have to play a second match. Double elimination rules state that no entrant is out of the tournament until he has lost two matches.

Weather conditions permitting, the remaining teams may be able to terminate tournament play by Saturday. Squads still active include the Jeter-Culp and Yeagley-Scheirer duets.

Impatient Gridders Refuse Vacation, Hold Informal Sessions

Draft boards may snatch their teammates, and formal practices may be cancelled for the duration of the Summer semester, but a dozen or more of Bob Higgins' gridders just can't sit back and take a vacation.

Since the middle of last week when regular sessions were cancelled, the nucleus of the 1942 football team have been "practicing on their own." Passing games and a little of the "touch type" of play have found popularity with the boys on New Beaver Field.

Last week the fellows were without coaching supervision, and, as one of the prospective players put it: "We just play until we can't play any longer—it's great fun." Since then, however, a member of the coaching staff makes it his point to be on hand to assist his impatient charges.
