

Drivas Names 'Skip' Ramaley To Head WRA

Crossman Appointed As Cabinet Delegate

Margaret K. "Skip" Ramaley '44, WRA vice-president, will be acting head of the WRA organization during the first seven weeks of next semester, it was revealed last night.

Appointed by WRA President Ann Drivas '43, who will be practice teaching physical education in Williamsport for two months, Miss Ramaley will be responsible for more than half of the WRA major activities and intramural contests scheduled for that time.

Miss Drivas chose Pauline Crossman '43, WRA secretary, to represent the organization on All-College Cabinet.

Directing other WRA activities will be Adele J. Levin '44, WRA activities chairman, head of the sports rally, with Miss Crossman acting as mistress of ceremonies; Miss Ramaley, manager of the Football Formal, assisted by Committee Chairmen Mary Louise Davis '44 and Shirley E. Fletcher '44, invitations; Miss Levin, tickets; F. Doris Stevenson '44, publicity; and Lucille D. Weinstein '44, decorations.

Grace L. Judge '44, WRA intramural manager, and Miss Crossman will be co-chairmen of the overnight freshman cabin party. Miss Crossman is also official correspondent of American Federation of College Women's monthly magazine, "AFCW Sport-lite."

In charge of WRA equipment for next season is Elizabeth Pike '46, while Julia H. McFarland '45 will be official manager. Coeds wishing to referee or umpire any WRA contests should contact Miss McFarland.

Miss Stevenson, WRA publicity manager, will be in charge of the LaVie setup for WRA.

We, The Women House Is Victory Minded—Are You?

For operating one of the most successful campaigns for democracy, namely that of Defense Courses, we doff our hats to WSGA House of Representatives.

In addition to being a campaign for democracy, the project has been conducted in a democratic manner. The House first conducted a poll to determine what defense courses given on campus last semester were most valuable and also to get new suggestions for next semester's setup.

A few weeks ago the House gave all coeds the opportunity to turn in to the dean of women's office the names of any courses which could be easily adapted to defense work in order that action could be taken to waive prerequisites for these courses to enable any coed to fit one into her schedule.

The House has left few loopholes for any of you to find excuses for not scheduling at least one course.

It was largely through efforts of the House that defense courses were instigated on the campus last year. They're practically serving them on silver platters, but a survey shows that it's to a not-too-enthusiastic coed body. We admit that many have shown sincere interest by enrolling, but there's still a large group of slackers.

As more men are drafted daily, women are being pushed to the industrial front. As much as men need training for military service, we women will need training for industry and odd jobs on the home front. There's no better way or time to get this training than through preparatory courses given on campus along with regular classwork and campus activities.

Sophomore Honorary Code Awaits Okay Of Welfare Group

Senate Committee on Student Welfare will meet today to pass on the revised Panhellenic rushing code. Final decision on the proposed code, devised by Panhellenic Council, lies with the committee, according to Pauline E. Keller '43, Panhellenic Council president.

Chosen for leadership, scholarship, and participation in activities, these sophomore women were tapped for Cwens, national sophomore honorary, last Spring at the annual Mothers' Day breakfast.

The fraternity was originally established by Dr. Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women, at the University of Pittsburgh in November, 1922. With customs and rituals based on Anglo-Saxon traditions, the name "Cwen" originally meant queen. Each chapter is called a "Witan," corresponding to the council of the Angles-land nation. Eight Cwen chapters exist at the present time.

Witans may be installed in any Class A college or university which is a member of AAUW and has a chapter of Mortar Board, providing the group has taken a constructive place in student life for at least three years. Membership of a chapter must consist of not under five or over ten percent of the sophomore class.

Delta chapter received its charter on June 4, 1927, with Miss Helen F. Faust as first president. Miss Faust was elected national president of Cwens in 1939.

National conventions are held biannually, when members of each chapter meet to discuss their activities. At the close of each convention, national officers are elected for two years, until the close of the following convention. Any alumna Cwen, one who is above her sophomore year in college, may hold a national office in one year.

The official Cwen insignia is a gold crown and scepter with a garnet in the head of the scepter. Colors are crimson and silver.

Besides visiting freshman dorms and conducting tours, Cwens will help at freshman registration, give a tea for freshman women, and serve as hostesses at Student Union dances and freshman mixers. Each year a

Senate Committee on Student Welfare will meet today to pass on the revised Panhellenic rushing code. Final decision on the proposed code, devised by Panhellenic Council, lies with the committee, according to Pauline E. Keller '43, Panhellenic Council president.

An informal panel discussion of Summer rushing and suggestions for future rushing was held last week. Results of this discussion and views of Panhel Council members will be given to the Student Welfare Committee. Upon approval of the Committee, definite rushing plans will be announced, Miss Keller stated.

Since first semester rushing was held for the first time in the history of the campus sororities this Summer, the Committee will evaluate its advantages.

dance is sponsored to raise money for $50 scholarships to be given to deserving sophomores. This semester Cwens aided in Victory Weekend by ushering at the Thespian-Glee Club show.

Last week sophomore, junior, and senior members of Cwens gave a farewell dinner at the Nittany Lion Inn in honor of Miss Mary Jane Stevenson, assistant to the dean of women, who has been their advisor.

First Aiders Earn Honors

Graduation day came for a class of approximately 35 students and all but one graduated with honors.

A first aid instructor's course was given in 19 Liberal Arts from 7 to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday of last week.

With Roy Zoeller, field representative of the First Aid and Life Saving Service of the American Red Cross, as instructor, 26 College students and a large number of townspeople gathered to learn the rudiments of teaching. Methods for teaching in schools, defense classes, and town projects were presented and practiced.

First nighters witnessed a blackout, and though they were prepared for action, class members just sat and sang songs in an engineering corridor.

Given for none credit, the course's final included the working of a practical problem and a short informative lecture. These were given Thursday.

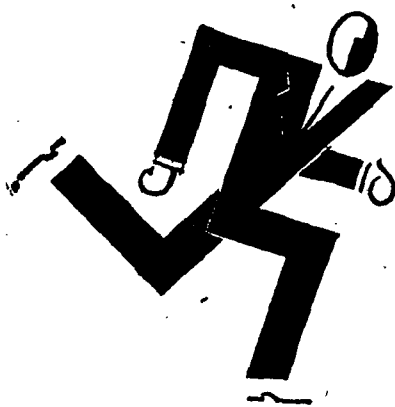

While staging a practice accident behind Carnegie Hall during the course, a large crowd gathered to witness what they supposed was a man with a broken neck being treated on a stretcher. Expert care by the members of the class who had previously completed first aid courses, assured the watchers that the victim would recover.
