

Renewed NYA Program To Benefit 275 Students

Approximately 275 Penn State students will benefit by the renewal of the NYA program on campus this Fall. Suspended since last Spring because no Federal funds were forthcoming, the program will get under way about 2 or 3 weeks after the beginning of the semester.

In the meantime, application blanks are available at the NYA Office, 308 Old Main.

Stanley B. Maddox, the College's NYA supervisor, pointed out last night that application blanks are not available to freshman and transfers until after they have been accepted by the office of the Registrar.

Originally the local program took care of well over 500 students, but when Washington cut the allocation this Summer to five million dollars to take care of "needy college and graduate students in American Colleges and Universities," the Penn State appropriation likewise took a severe drop.

PSCA Surveys Available Rooms In Housing Guide

Lists Addresses Rentals, Capacities

Mimeographed lists of downtown rooms that will be available to freshman men on September 7 may be secured then from the PSCA Office, 304 Old Main. The lists are being compiled from questionnaires sent to local landlords early this week.

Information on the lists includes the owner's name and address, whether the room is a single or a double, and the rental price.

"In no way are the rooms listed on a basis of desirability," stated representatives of the Student Housing Board, who are cooperating with the PSCA in the project.

A PSCA spokesman advised that the freshmen use the lists as "shopping-around guides." He advises that the freshmen look around until they find a room that suits them before making any agreements, and that they do it as soon after their arrival on campus as possible.

"It is advisable," stated Fred E. Clever '44, SHB Chairman, "that students who plan to join a fraternity refrain from signing long term room contracts, or enter into verbal agreements with the landlords."

"There are sufficient temporary rooming facilities," he pointed out, "to take care of those who plan to move into fraternity houses during or after rushing season."

Eighty Upperclassmen Named Frosh Counselors

Over 80 upperclassmen have been trained to serve as student counselors to incoming Frosh, Eugene R. Yeager '43, student counselors chairman, announced yesterday.

In undertaking to help orientate the Fall Freshman class, the largest to enter Penn State, it was necessary to increase the number of counselors.

"However," Yeager added, "a few training meetings were held to acquaint counselors with the problems they may expect to encounter in their meetings with the freshmen."

During Freshman Week, several meetings have been scheduled for the Frosh to meet with upperclass representatives of the school in which they have enrolled.

Lion Shrine Gets Finishing Touches As Grid Season Nears

With work nearly completed on it, the Lion Shrine will move to its permanent base, about two yards behind the spot where it is being carved, within a few days after the beginning of next semester.

There will be a slight bit of work on the lion after it has been moved to its base, but that will all be finished before the Alumni Homecoming and the Bucknell football game on October 3 when it will be dedicated.

Started near the end of May, the work will have taken, when it is finished, less than four months, about two months short of the time Mr. Warneke said would be necessary for its completion. He has done only the finishing work, the "roughing out" having been done by Joseph Garatti.

The gift was presented to the College by the Class of 1940 as will be inscribed across the top of the base stone. It has not yet been decided what will be done with the model which was used throughout the carving and which sat in the Old Main second floor lobby all last Winter.

Mr. Warneke said yesterday he was pleased with the interest the students have taken in the carving of their shrine and especially their taking pictures of it to have after their graduation. He stated that they have had a chance to see something very few people get a chance to in seeing all the stages and techniques of so large a carving job.

Drop-Adds To Be Fined Under New Senate Rule Unless With Approval Of Department's Head

Under the heading "sound advice to students registering for the Fall semester" comes the warning—don't experiment with your schedules for it'll cost you money.

Gone are the days when a happy-go-lucky, and extremely wise upperclassman could schedule a list of "dummy" courses, and then spend a couple of weeks shopping around for something really interesting.

Recently the College Senate put a crimp in the practice by slapping a one dollar fine on all drop adding or changing of schedules that are not accompanied by a written recommendation by the head of the student's department. No changes will be allowed after two weeks from registration.

The changing of the rules concerning schedule changing necessitated the revision of rules 19 to 25 inclusive of the "Regulations for Undergraduate Students." The changes will appear in the 1942-43 edition.
