

Harrier Coach Calls Candidates

Initial call for candidates for varsity and freshman cross-country squads was issued by Coach Chick Werner last night as the harriers began practice sessions on the New Beaver Field course.

In making his call for reserve strength to bolster returning men from last year's championship seven, Werner emphasized that experience is not necessary and anyone may try out for a post on the varsity or freshmen aggregations.

Werner, who is starting his tenth year as Nittany harrier mentor, is hoping to fill in three or four spots on the varsity squad with this new material.

Veteran members of last year's team that finished second in the National Intercollegiate meet at East Lansing, Mich., last November have been holding light workouts with several other aspirants. Intensive training will soon begin for the first test of the year with Manhattan on the an Cortlandt Park course in New York City, October 17.

Coach Werner suggested that candidates for the hill and dale squad report to Dr. Griess at the dispensary for the regular physical examination before reporting to the New Beaver Field for prac-

No Bombers Yet

With dive bombers flying over the fields of Europe, Asia and Africa, footballs are again beginning to fly over the fields of America. Next year and maybe for several years to come, these footballs may be put aside even in America. But eventually they and the rest of the American way of life will return.

Home Front News

Now with this little prologue out of the way we will turn directly to the question of the day. Will Penn State's greatly depleted football squad falter helplessly through the fall's schedule or will it pull another "spirit over power" surprise and wind up on top of the heap?

Believe it or not, Chet Smith, Pittsburgh Press Sports Editor recently picked the Nittany Lion squad as the outstanding grid team in the East. Yes, he made this statement when fully aware of Penn State's great loss to the Armed forces and otherwise. And he went on to add, "I make this choice fully mindful of the strong Penn and Fordham squads."

Hope He's Right

We're afraid Chet may have gone pretty well overboard on this prediction, but we also believe that Coach Higgins will do a lot better than is the common opinion, what with a top notch first team and a good squad of freshman reserves. Incidentally the freshman eligibility rule will without question be rescinded this Saturday. In the meantime Higgins is going ahead on the assumption that freshmen will play with the varsity.

When and if freshmen become eligible for varsity competition, the question of freshman schedules arises. Should the College decide to continue frosh schedules or should they be eliminated for the duration?

Must Cut Corners

We say and emphatically so that freshman schedules should be cut out. After all, the best we can expect to do in these times is to keep the varsity teams in action. And with freshmen getting experience with the varsity squads (assuming that this ruling passes) there is no longer a real need for freshman schedules.

But getting back for a moment to Lion football prospects — We have it from several of his teammates that Big Mike Kerns is training as he has never trained before. We're glad to hear that. With Kerns in top form the Lion forward wall will take on added solidarity.

Lions To Hold Scrimmage With Duquesne Saturday

Minor Injuries Keep 5 Lions On Sidelines

Penn State football fans will be able to get a sneak-preview of the 1942 edition of the Nittany Lions this Saturday when the Higginsmen take on the "Dukes" of Duquesne University in a practice scrimmage on New Beaver Field.

"We aren't going to have a regular practice game; it'll just be an informal scrimmage to help Coach Donelli and me to see our teams in action," Higgins stated last night.

Saturday's scrimmage will mark the third meeting of the two teams since last season. Early last spring the Dukes spent two days on campus, and engaged in two lengthy practice games with the Lions.

A pessimistic note was sounded by Coach Higgins last night when he announced that Joe Reno, former Greensburg High School backfield star, and frosh blocking-back aspirant, had withdrawn from school. Higgins was grooming Reno for a blocking back position — one very weak spot as far as reserve power goes in the Lion machine.

"It looks as if Aldo Cenci will have to be a 60-minute player," explained Higgins. "With Reno gone we haven't anyone left that looks like good quarterback material."

Injuries of a minor nature caught up with the Lions in their weekend scrimmage sessions. Johnny Wolosky, sophomore center, and Bud Davis, who is fighting it out with Sparky Brown for the tailback spot, both sustained twisted knees. Davis' injury was a recurrence of one he received in Spring practice. Both players will be out of practice for two or three days.

Jeff Durkota, sophomore, wing-back candidate, twisted his arm when tackled last week by Joe Colone, and will have to forego contact work for a day or so. Lou Nobile, received minor injuries, and will not be able to practice for a couple of days.

A decision concerning the eligibility of freshman for the forthcoming season is expected to be made sometime this weekend when the Athletic Advisory Board meets.

Indications at present point toward the committee's rescinding of the frosh rule in keeping with the policy of the majority of the Lion's opponents.

In the event that the freshman rule is rescinded, it will fall the lot of the committee to decide whether the regular freshman schedule will also be continued.

Tough Rehearsals Loom For Booters

Three weeks of hard practice sessions lie ahead for the 40 candidates for Penn State's varsity soccer team, according to Coach Bill Jeffrey.

Even though most of the booters have three months of Summer-time twilight rehearsals under their shin guards, Coach Bill stated that there's lots to be done toward shaping up a team for the opening game with Gettysburg, here, on October 3.

Fall semester practices which began last week brought two veterans back for workouts. Lloyd Black, outside left, who saw some service last season and Bob Garrett, a move-up from last year's freshman squad, are the new recruits.

Competing for the goalie job are Johnnie Struck and Bob Seavy while Allan Heck, Captain Hap Freeman and Bill Deitrich are all out for fullback.

Halfback is the most closely contested spot with Boyd Edwards, who may be drafted in November, Sammy Schnure, Bob Fast, Bob Glouser, Max Chenoweth, Dick Westner and several sophomores battling for a varsity berth.

Sociology Department Offers 2 New Courses

Two new sociology courses are available to Liberal Arts students this semester. A course dealing with "Latin American Culture and Institutions" will be taught under the auspices of Professor Simon Markson while a second course will deal with "Contemporary Sociological Theory."

The first course gives a general knowledge of the social organization and races of the Latin American people, while the second attempts to give the student a better understanding of social theory as seen by contemporary authors.

Yeagley, Scheirer Annex IM Title; Beat Doubles Opponent 6-4, 6-3

Teaming up with Hank Yeagley to win the Intramural Fraternity Doubles title, Phi Delta's Bobby Scheirer won his second IM tennis crown this summer by taking a fast moving, two-set victory from Art Miller and Dan Reese last night.

In annexing both fraternity titles, Scheirer duplicated the accomplishment of Chuck McGill who captured both Independent IM championships early in the Summer.

Allowing the Miller-Reese duo a total of seven games, the hard-working Scheirer-Yeagley team soon found their opponents' weakness and completely dominated play from them until the final smashing drive by Yeagley that won the game, set, and match. Score by sets was 6-4, 6-3.

While their opponents played a smooth and professional-looking brand of tennis, it still wasn't enough to overcome Scheirer's powerful and accurate backhand reinforced by his blond co-workers accurate high lobs to the far corners of the court.

The new doubles titlists went as far as the semi-finals last year before being forced out of the competition.

Greatly improved in the serving department and in far better condition than they were last year, the champs found little difficulty in confusing and finally routing Miller and Reese.

Scheirer's accurate back-hand return of seemingly impossible shots played a large part in the Phi Delt's victory.
