lege administrative officials. George W. Ebert, superintendent of grounds and buildings, has arranged to have the cannon moved to in front of the Central Extension building. Here a specially trained platoon of ROTC cadets under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Joel D. Pomeroy of the corps of infantry and Col. Ardery will load it onto a steam shovel trailer loaned by Neidigh Brothers Quarry. It will then be moved to Co-op Corner where after the ceremonies it will serve as a centerpiece for the salvage bins.

In a telephone canvass of all fraternities yesterday, the Daily Collegian asked all Greek groups to cooperate in the campaign. Houses were requested to have members gather all scrap and either place it in front of their homes by 2 p. m. for collection or take it to the salvage bins at Coop Corner. Richard E. Marsh '44 conducted the canvass.

M. Williams Lundelius, president of Interfraternity Council also urged the fraternity men's cooperation. He stated that it is a good chance for the houses to show their willingness to help out with a drive so closely connected with the war effort.

State College school children, by order of School Superintendent Jo Hays, will be excused from classes at 2:30 p. m. so that they may help in the scrap collections. Each child bringing 10 pounds or more of scrap to the

Riding Club Invites Students, College Staff

All students and College employees, experienced riders and beginners, are urged to attend the organization meeting of the Penn State Riding Club in the stock judging pavilion on Ag Hill at 7 o'clock tonight, Robert E. Kaval '44, club publicity manager announced.

Several new horses will be available to club members and instruction will be provided at scheduled hours for individual members.

A second meeting will be held at the Riding Club stables on College property east of Ag Hill at 2 p. m. Saturday. Anyone unable to attend the organization meeting is invited to attend, Kaval stated.

downtown bins will be rewarded with ice cream and cakes and free tickets to the movies and the Penn State-Bucknell football opener, October 3. The refreshments will be served at a special booth to be erected alongside of the bins.

Local Boy Scouts will do the bulk of the town canvassing this afternoon between three and five. Traveling in 30 light trucks loaned by local merchants, they will thoroughly cover all sections of town. Mr. Henszey urged students and townspeople to place their donations in front of their homes to facilitate the collection.

Secretary's statement. Galbraith advised, however, that Stimson's initial warning on the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps constitutes a sure sign that far-reaching changes in the status of college students are being considered, and that Penn State men in the Army Enlisted Reserve may expect a complete revision in regulations governing the Enlisted Reserve Corps before the end of the year.

Although they may be called to active duty after the first of the year, "students should not overlook the importance of entering the Army Enlisted Reserve at their earliest opportunity," Galbraith stated, "since (as President Hetzel revealed Monday) they may not have that choice in the near future."

"Otherwise they will certainly be inducted by their Draft boards upon attaining the age of 20," Galbraith added.

(Selective Service Head, General Lewis B. Hershey, has already stated that all able-bodied single men will be called in October, and that induction of married men with collateral dependents will be underway by Christmas.)

Other students who previously obtained deferments for either technical or non-technical courses until February or even longer have had them cut to October 1.

Cabinet To Cut Student Activities

now in operation, Blakeslee appointed Mawhinney, McAleer, Lundelius, Miss Crossman, and Richard S. Kurtz, all seniors, to investigate in just what manner such a group could function. Danos will serve in an advisory capacity with this committee.

To better carry out Cabinet's program against all forms of mixed drinking by students, Blakeslee, following a proposal by the group stated that any violations against the College rule may be reported to him personally and he will in turn refer them to the proper judicial group according to whom the violation involves. He emphasized that in all cases the name of the person reporting the offense would positively be withheld.

A motion was accepted to have a letter sent to the College Senate suggesting that they abolish the drop-add fine instituted for the first time this semester. Members pointed out that this system has already proven very unfair because of its different interpretations and severity. Definite instances were cited showing that most drop-adds are unavoidable and necessary.

The amendment concerning ex-officio membership in Cabinet was read for the third time and accepted as a part of the All-College constitution. This new Following this amendment's adoption the PSCA was accepted for ex-officio membership.

Committee Rules On Fall Campaign

at the election planned for at last night's meeting. Members of the class of '44 will elect a president and vice-president to fill the positions vacated by Harold Zimmerman and George McWilliams, junior class heads chosen at the last All-College election.

Zimmerman lost his office by leaving college for the Summer semester, while McWilliams left last month to enter the armed services. William Briner, class of '44 treasurer, is acting as temporary class head until the special October 9 voting.

Each freshman political clique will be limited to five dollars in campaign expenses. Class of '44 campaign expenditures, however, were ruled out by the Election Committee in an effort to keep the unprecedented election "as informal as possible."

The official campaign posters to be printed by the Committee for the freshman candidates will not be provided for the upper-class politicians, but the junior class parties will be permitted to use hand-painted posters.

All decisions made by the Elections Committee will be presented to All-College Cabinet for final approval, according to Donald W. Davis '43, committee chairman.
