

Between The Lions

With DON DAVIS

Worth Waiting For

Well, the long-awaited Satevepost came out yesterday and from Penn Stat's standpoint it was well worth waiting for. If there happens to be anyone who does not realize just what we are referring to it is Francis Wallace's annual pigskin review in which he goes out on every limb known to man.

Planned before the death of Dave Alston, the Post went ahead with their plans and used a brightly colored picture of Dave with the underline. "Sophomore of the year in memoriam: Dave Alston, who died tragically last month."

Just Too Good

Excerpts from the fine tribute paid Dave in the writeup included the following: "Perhaps a tragic note has no place in such an article as this, but in talking about my sophomore of the year I cannot refrain from saying that it does seem that Dave Sturgeon Alston was too good for this world . . . Weighing 200 pounds and six-one in height, he could run the hundred in ten seconds flat, he was one of the finest passers ever, and his snake hips made him a running wonder back . . . As a Penn State freshman, he performed miracles against Cornell, Army, Colgate and Syracuse frosh. He stood head and shoulders above all sophomores . . . I just don't want to name any back in his place; he's my sophomore of the year in memoriam."

Tribute Continues

But this was not the end of Wallace's salute to Penn State's Nittany Lions. He listed the Blue and White as sixteenth in the nation over Santa Clara, Stanford, Tennessee, and Northwestern

Not content with this most optimistic slap on the back, he went on to predict the Orange Bowl cast—you guessed it, Penn State versus Mississippi State. And to wind up the remarks made by Wallace concerning the Lions, he named Johnny Jaffurs as one of the guards that might make him sorry for not having been listed on one of the first three All-American squads. Although not as optimistic as Chet Smith who picked the Lions, as the leading team in the East, Wallace chose the Lions as one of the leading contenders.

Little Gold Water

Much as we hate to throw a damp blanket on this rosy tale, we feel it only fair to point out that the material for this article was collected this Summer when many of Penn State's present draftees were still civilians. Aside from this factor, oCach Bob Higgins' reaction to the article was, "Wallace has certainly paid Penn State a fine tribute, but I'm afraid he may have been just a little too optimistic."

For our part we hope he's exactly right!

Varsity, Frosh Harriers Tune Up For Fall Season

3 Lettermen Return; Many Sophs Report

With more than a month before the opening meet, Nittany Lion cross-country aspirants went through a light workout last night under the eye of Coach Chick Werner, who is beginning his tenth year as Blue and White harrier mentor.

All efforts will be pointing to the IC4A meet on the Van Cortlandt park course on November 16 and the National Collegiate meet at East Lansing, Michigan later in the season.

Led by Captain Norm Gordon, Curt Stone, and Mac Smith, the only returning lettermen, the harriers will be out to better their surprise second place in the National Collegiate meet of last year.

Fighting for a place on the first seven is Jerry Karver, last year's freshmen intercollegiate cross-country champ. Other stars of last year's freshman team are Joe Beach, State College high school product, Johnnie McCall, Rufus Williams, Warren Stuebing, and Ernest Beutner. Another sophomore candidate is Horne, last year a Mont Alto student.

Archie Hyson and Bob Faloon, members of last year's squad, will also be battling for posts on this year's aggregation.

Freshmen cross-country candidates, also under the tutelage of Werner, are preparing for their two meet schedule. Syracuse and Cornell will be the only opponents for the first-year men.

According to Werner, there are still several posts open to aspirants on both the varsity and freshman teams. Especially on the frosh squad is the battle for places wide open.

Varsity hill-and-dalers will open the season with Manhattan on October 17 on the Van Cortlandt park course in New York City. The following Saturday the harriers will make their only home appearance when they meet Syracuse over the five-mile golf course.

On November 7 Pitt will provide the opposition for the Blue and White runners at Pittsburgh to complete the duel-meet season.

Varsity races will all be over a five-mile course, while all freshman meets will cover a shorter three-mile distance.

'Lion's Den' Pledges Total 19 Footballers

Unmentioned in the fraternity pledging lists elsewhere in this paper, are the 19 pledges of the "Lion's Den"—the new football fraternity on the corner of Pugh and Beaver.

Under the presidency of Bob Perugini, senior guard, 25 huskies, including 17 freshman, have established a house that resembles a fraternity in more ways than one. Big Aldo Cenci has been appointed "house manager"—or house mechanic as one player described it.

Regular 8 to 11 p. m. study hours are being observed, and every Thursday evening is clean-up night for the gridiron boys. Until things can be "fixed up a bit," women will not be permitted in the lounge, but President Bob promises that Saturday night dating will be legal later on, and the boys will be able to bring in their dates "just like at a fraternity."
