Cabinet Clamps Down On Student Activities

Plan Concerns Meeting Times, Coed Hours, '44 Prom, Dance Decorations

By RICHARD D. SMYSER

In line with President Ralph D. Hetzel's recent convocation message and a suggestion by Dean of Men Arthur R. Warnock, All-College Cabinet last night in special sessions adopted a definite policy for curtailment of student activities. Restricting meeting times, recommending shortened coed hours and the rescheduling of Junior Prom, and abolishing big dance contracted decorations and programs are the main stipulations of the program.

President Hetzel and Dean Warnock urged the adoption of such rules in view of the recent policy of the National War Department asking colleges to prove their wartime worth.

Donald W. Davis, chairman, Jesse V. Fardella, Woodrow E. Hoch, M. Williams Lundelius, Pauline Crossman, David J. McAleer, and Robert L. Mahinney, all seniors, comprised the committee which drew up the "cut corners" plan.

Following is a list of the Cabinet accepted program.

1. No meetings, extra-curricular activities, initiations or other student activities may extend after 8:30 p. m., Sunday night through Thursday night. A Cabinet committee will be set up to hear cases for special late permission requests. This rule shall go into effect Sunday, September 27.

2. All-College Cabinet recommends to WSGA Senate that second semester freshman coeds should have only nine o'clock permissions on week night instead of the present 10 o'clocks. Also second semester senior women should have 10 o'clock permissions on week nights instead of the present 11 o'clock. In addition all three o'clock permissions for big dance weekends should be cut to 2:30.

3. A recommendation shall be sent to the Student Union Board requesting the rescheduling of Junior Prom for sometime next semester because at present it is scheduled just prior to final examination week and only three weeks after Senior Ball.

4. No contracted decorations or programs shall be used at any big class dances.

To enforce the first provision, All-College President Jerome H. Blakeslee '43, appointed a committee of Davis, chairman, Hoch, Lundelius, Bernard A. Plesser, seniors; Dorothy K. Brunner '44, and Robert S. McNabb '45. This group will hear late permission appeals and arrange to have buildings locked by 8:30 p. m. to aid in enforcing the rule.

Cabinet also directed an appeal to students to consider their outside activities over which Cabinet has no jurisdiction and to eliminate and cut down wherever possible.

In regard to the coed hours, discussion from the floor emphasized that if coed hours are cut, men's (Continued on Page Three)

THIS IS WAR — Donald W. Davis '43 headed the All-College Cabinet committee which formed the plans for cutting down student activities in line with the College's wartime program. Cabinet accepted the policy last night.

Artists' Course Plans To Present Opera October 9

For the first time in the history of the College a full-fledged opera company will appear on the campus Friday, October 9 under the sponsorship of the Artist's Course.

The company, made up chiefly from personnel of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will present Puccini's "La Boheme" in English. A 30-piece orchestra, under the direction of Giuseppe Bamboschek, will accompany the production.

The plan for having the course run this semester came yesterday in a meeting of the board. The decision was made after much deliberation.

Dr. Carl E. Marquardt, committee chairman, said yesterday, "With present unsettled conditions, the Artists' Course Committee hesitated at first in recommending to the President that the course be continued. However, the subscribers voted practically unanimously in favor of its continuance and with curtailed transportation facilities, it seemed even more logical than heretofore, to bring cultural experiences such as concerts to State College, rather than assume that our clientele go elsewhere for them."

"Furthermore, with the acceleration of the academic program the committee believed it is all the more desirable to provide an attraction in the Fall semester, so that the considerable number graduating in January would not be deprived of a privilege which their predecessors have had now for many years."

Plans for the Spring semester Artists' Course are still under consideration. Dr. Marquardt said yesterday that program will probably consist of three numbers.

Seats for the operatic performance will be sold on a single-number seat basis. Details of the ticket sale will be announced at an early date.

Warneke To Take Job As Instructor After Shrine Is Completed

Following completion of the Lion Shrine within three weeks, Heinz Warneke, its sculptor, will take up duties as instructor of sculpture in the Corcoran Galleries in Washington, D. C.

Occupied within the last few days with landscaping around the shrine, Mr. Warneke has been unable to proceed with his final work on the lion itself. He will start today on work with lighting effects.

This task will require his working at night with artificial light and early morning and evening to get proper highlight effects for any kind of lighting which may be desired.

Completion of the shrine is assured before the first home football game with Bucknell, October 3. Dedication ceremonies are being planned for Alumni Homecoming weekend by the Alumni Association.

The landscaping work being done around the shrine will make it possible to hold rallies and pep meetings in that section of the campus rather than in Jordan Fertility Plots, their former site.

Collegian Announces Subscription Plan For Clubs And Service Men At Reduced Rates

Climaxing the subscription drive for this semester with two important announcements, the Daily Collegian yesterday published rates for service men, and for club subscriptions.

On the Service Front, The Daily Collegian has reduced the rates for men in the armed forces to $1.25, which includes postage and mailing. Individual subscriptions may be bought from solicitors or at the Collegian office in Carnegie Hall.

In addition to individual subscriptions, a committee has been appointed to contact organizations and to make a drive for individual contributions for a fund to send The Daily Collegian to camps where there are Penn State men.

First step in the subscriptions for the service men was taken when the Old Main Open House Committee announced that it would pledge all of the profits from its first session next Friday to the fund. Other organizations will be contacted in the next week.

Beginning Monday, the circulation department of the Daily Collegian will maintain office hours in the business office in the basement of Carnegie Hall to receive subscriptions and circulation complaints. The schedule as announced last night follows: 9 a. m. to 12 noon; 12:30 to 5:30 p. m.; and 7 to 9 p. m.

Big news on the local subscription front is the club plan for groups who want the Daily Collegian. The rates have been set at $7.75 for five subscriptions, a saving of one dollar.

Any organizations interested in taking advantage of the new club offer may contact the Collegian office and a salesman will be sent out, or they will be accepted in the business office during the hours stated above.

Bucknell Students May Attend IF Ball

Full preparations for Penn State's first big weekend of the Fall semester—featuring Teddy Powell and his orchestra at Interfraternity Ball—are rapidly taking shape with the announcement that an open invitation will be sent to the Bucknell student body to attend the dance before the Bucknell game.

According to co-chairmen Robert H. P. Jordan '43 and David R. Sharp '43, the invitation will appear in Bucknell student publications next week. IF Ball weekend will be climaxed by the Bucknell-Penn State football game Saturday afternoon, October 3, which will open the 1942 grid season for both schools.

Rumors originating on campus yesterday predicting an informal IF Ball were dispelled by Jordan and Sharp who stated that the dance will again be "strictly formal as has been the custom in former years."

The co-chairmen announced that all reservations for fraternity booths should be turned in at Student Union no later than Tuesday, September 29.

Exchange Money At SU

Persons who have not collected their money or unsold books from the student book exchange may get it at Student Union anytime after 1:30 p. m. today, Bernard A. Plesser '43, director of the exchange, announced yesterday.

First Semester Frosh To Tryout For Collegian

"All first semester freshman men and women who are interested in trying out for the Daily Collegian are urged to attend a meeting in 9 Carnegie Hall at 4 o'clock today," Gordon L. Coy, editor, announced. Candidates for both editorial and business staffs should attend the meeting.

Owner Renames Car 'Salvage Wagon,' Saves It From Pile

By SEYMOUR ROSENBERG

SAE's "epidermis wagon," owned by one of the fraters, will heretofore be known as the "salvage wagon," it was reported last night.

The reason the '35 Ford sedan has assumed the new name is that it was almost contributed to State College's salvage drive. Its owner had to use a lot of persuasion and even had to go so far as to sign an affidavit to save his car from the scrap pile.

Friends of the owner decided to play a practical joke on him, knowing that he had left the "salvage wagon" on W. College avenue after running out of gas.

Along about 1:30 a. m. yesterday morning, when the borough of State College was asleep, the vandals, four Pi Kappa Phi's, proceeded to where the car was standing and, with much groaning and pushing, rolled the car down to the scrap pile on Co-op corner. With the permission of local salvage drive authorities, they were allowed to move the

Penn State Club Invites Frosh To Bowling Party

The Penn State Club, a non-fraternity organization, will hold a bowling party for freshmen and old members at the Dux Club on S. Pugh street, tonight, Ray Zaroda '44, social chairman, announced last night.

The club will pay twenty cents toward the cost of the evening's bowling for freshmen and twenty-five cents for members' games.

All members and prospective freshmen members who are interested are requested to be present in the organization's clubroom at 7:30 p. m. The party will leave from there.

Freshmen are also asked to visit the clubroom between 3 and 5 p. m. any afternoon so that they may become acquainted with the group.

IFC Stamp Sale Set Next Week

Interfraternity Council's defense stamp sale, plans for which were started several weeks ago, will begin next week according to Robert H. B. J. Jordan '43, in charge of the sale.

The plan, announced last night, will require every fraternity man to buy a stamp each month. Payment for the stamps will be made by a house representative either through house bills or to the representative at will, dependent on single house rulings.

The committee in charge of the sale suggested a 50 cent stamp each month as the best amount. According to Jordan, each house will be given a quota based on the number of men in the house which will be published along with the amount of the house's purchase each month in The Daily Collegian.

The sale will be held one day each month at the Student Union desk. Sales force will be appointed by IFC president.
