

Duquesne Scrimmage May Be 'Regular' Game

Lions Work To Develop Potent Passing Attack

"Our original plans of having a scrimmage without the trimming of touchdowns, kick-offs, extra points and the like, may be substituted by a regulation game with Duquesne this Saturday," stated football coach Bob Higgins last night.

"It just depends on what Coach 'Buff' Donelli wants to do," the Hig continued, "I didn't know that the goal posts would be up or the field ready for regulation play when we scheduled the practice last week."

Latest word from Duquesne is that the Dukes will arrive 40 strong early Saturday morning. They will return to Pittsburgh immediately after the game.

In the meantime, Higgins and Al Michaels, backfield coach have been busy trying to develop a passing attack from the material available. The Lion's system calls for passing from both the tailback and fullback spots. With the graduation of Smaltz and the loss of Dave Alston, both great passers, the coaches are faced with a difficult task.

As things stack up now, Bob Weitzel, sophomore fullback is the best passer on the team according to Higgins. Joe Colone, frosh flash, and Sparky Brown can both do some of the tossing. The drawback, however, is that to have Weitzel available for passing, the Lions would have to sacrifice Jack Banbury's adeptness at line plunging, for with all of Weitzel's passing ability, Ban still ranks as the best fullback on the squad.

The tailback position, already weak in reserve power, may be further depleted this week. Bud Davis, scrappy little sophomore fleetback, has left school for a couple of days for conferences with his local draft board. Indications at present are that Davis will become number 18 of the Lions service contribution.

In the event that Davis should leave, passing from the tailback position will fall squarely into the hands of Sparky Brown, who Higgins rates as "an average passer."

If the Athletic Advisory Board rescinds the freshman rule, Colone will necessarily be called upon to do a large amount of the passing, not to mention running and punting.

"Right now there are so many 'ifs' surrounding the passing situation that it is hard to tell what will happen," Higgins stated. "One thing is certain," he explained, "we aren't going to have anything to compare to the

Decision Reversed; Two Football Games Will Be Broadcast

Despite a former decision, the Atlantic Refining Company will sponsor the broadcast of two Penn State home football games this fall.

A few months ago the company decided to discontinue the broadcasting of football games in light of the fact that such programs were designed to stimulate the use of gasoline in traveling to the spots the games were being played. But on the recommendation of Washington, the company last week reversed themselves and will report a limited number of games in non-fationed districts.

Last season Atlantic Refining reported all of the major Penn State games. This year, only the Syracuse and Pitt—the latter over an eight station hookup—will be broadcast. As yet the stations have not been announced, but it is believed that the games will come over a Pittsburgh station.

Cabinet Cuts Activities

(Continued From Page One) will automatically be affected. The dance hour change from three to 2:30 was suggested because of the recent move of downtown restaurants to close at midnight, thus eliminating students going out for refreshments after dances. Final action on these proposals lies with WSGA Senate.

A sub-point in the recommendation concerning Junior Prom provides that the present junior class should arrange the moved up dance although it would be held after they attained senior standing.

The abolishment of decorations and programs for class dances applies only to contracted arrangements for these. Dance committees will be allowed to spend money for decorations as long as they obtain them locally and at a reasonably low price. Since Cabinet must approve all class dance budgets, it can regulate the amount spent.

An appeal was made to all other College organizations to follow similar plans when arranging dances. Savings on materials and transportation and ultimate lowering of dance admission prices are the aims of these proposals.

Smaltz-Krouse combination.

In an effort to bolster the very weak-in-reserve quarterback spot, Coach Higgins has been working Schellheimer, former all-scholastic tackle from Johnstown, at the blocking position.

Bordo Elected To Head Gymnasts This Year

Louis J. Bordo '43 will captain the gym team for the 1943 season, according to the report released by Gene Wettstone, gymnasts' coach after elections yesterday afternoon.

The elections, which had heretofore been held during the first semester of the school year were postponed until the return of students not attending the Summer semester.

Bordo has a long string of gymnastic achievements to his credit and starred successively in gym meets held in the past few years. At the annual championship tournament held last year to ascertain the leading gymnasts of the season, he won the Eastern Intercollegiate parallel bars championship.

Owner Renames Car

Walking by the salvage pile to an eight o'clock yesterday morning, the owner spotted his vehicle amidst the rest of the scrap and immediately ran over to the police station to try to save his "wagon." He had to present his registration certificate and sign an affidavit before he was allowed to push the car from the pile.

Which only goes to show that running out of gas doesn't pay these days.
