OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE

VOL. 39—No. 85

THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 8, STATE COLLEGE, PA.

PRICE: THREE CENTS

New Low Price, Dance Ticket Accompany Camp Subscription

Buy your favorite soldier a service subscription to the Daily Collegian. The price is now $1, and with the subscription comes a ticket to the Daily Collegian dance Saturday night in Rec Hall. Les Stine and the Penn State Aristocrats, featuring some new and novel arrangements, will be on the band stand from nine until midnight. The Daily Collegian last night decided to offer this double-barreled bargain to the student body as the windup to the Fall subscription campaign. Regular subscriptions are now $1.50 by carrier, $2 by mail. The "from the campus to the camps" campaign is going into its last week, with several more organizations swinging in line with contributions to the fund. These subscriptions have gone to camps rather than to individual men. By taking advantage of this new offer, you can send all the campus news to your soldier, and at the same time use the ticket that comes with the subscription to attend the Daily Collegian dance. Come into The Daily Collegian office in Carnegie Hall today and buy yours.

Leaves PSCA

Harry W. Seamans, general secretary of the Penn State Christian Association, has been granted a year's leave to accept a position with the National Housing Agency in Washington, D. C.

Seamans, CA Secretary, Given Leave To Work For Government Agency

Harry W. Seamans, general secretary of the Penn State Christian Association since 1934, has been granted a leave of absence to accept a position with the National Housing Agency in Washington, D. C., as a Senior Regional Advisor for the War Housing Program.

The leave, granted by the PSCA Board of Directors, will be in effect until August 31, 1943.

In 1928, the tall, genial executive came to the College as general secretary of the YMCA, which merged with the YWCA in 1934 to become the present PSCA.

Since Seamans became general secretary of the association, its staff has increased from two to six members, and the budget has doubled as compared with the $6,500 allotted for 1928.

Prof. Donald D. Stevenson, head of the PSCA Board, announced that plans are under way to secure someone to replace Mr. Seamans during the interim.

Frosh, Junior Elections Tomorrow; Committee Decides Details Of Voting

20,000 Alumni Read Of Campus Activities In 'Penn Stater' Issue

Twenty thousand alumni are catching up on College and alumni news through the "Penn Staters" magazine sent out recently to all former students. Usually sent only to members of the Alumni Association, circulation has been increased for this issue.

Miss Alice I. Thompson, assistant executive secretary of the Alumni Association, urges all student members of the Association who have not received their copies of the magazine, the weekly football news letter, and the Alumni News to notify the office of their correct addresses.

For the first time, the "Penn Stater," issued four times a year, is taking the place of the Alumni News this month. The first football letter was distributed Monday and issues will continue each week.

Polls Moved To Schwab Auditorium Lobby

While freshman and junior class politicians pounded the beats in the second day of their accelerated campaign, College Elections Committee met last night to plan the handling of tomorrow's election.

Balloting will be conducted in the lobby of Schwab Auditorium rather than in Sparks Building, the committee decided. No campaigning will be permitted in the Auditorium during voting hours.

Since the Thespian room is in Schwab it cannot be used as campaign headquarters for any political party, the committee ruled. Donald W. Davis '43, Elections Committee chairman, suggested that cliques make arrangements to use Old Main rooms and telephones in place of the traditional quarters.

The official elections code provides that freshmen and juniors must present both matriculation and AA books to be eligible to vote. Since AA books have not yet been distributed to all freshmen, notes from the Dean's office may be used by the frosh.

Clique chairmen will meet with the Elections Committee at 7 p. m. tomorrow to present any complaints they may have concerning unfair campaigning. Davis announced.

Tribunal Tries Six Freshmen

Six freshmen fell victim to Student Tribunal when the seven-man board heard freshman custom offender cases at last night's meeting.

Freshmen who received penalties are Drew Kinney, David Reese, Mickey Becket, Morton Gollub, Earl Ritter, and Samuel Taylor.

Reese, who had been issued an exemption because he was enrolled in another college, was sentenced to wear two signs, a barrel, and roll his pants to his knees in addition to regular freshman custom.

Tribunal found out he had not undergone the required amount of customs at the other college.

Ridenour warns freshmen that they are exempt from dress customs only when in their ROTC uniforms and that all freshmen men must tip their dinks to the "Old Willow Tree" as they pass it on either side of the mall.

13 Faculty Members Get Leaves Of Absence To Aid War Effort

Penn State's contribution to the war effort became greater yesterday with the announcement that 11 faculty members have been granted leaves of absence to enter the military service and two others to take jobs linked with the war.

Several appointments, resignations, one promotion and one retirement were announced. Action on the matters was taken at a meeting of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees recently.

The trustees also accepted a gift of $100 from the estate of the late Prof. Lucretia V. T. Simmons, former head of the department of German, to establish the Simmons award in German. Income from the gift will be used each year as a prize for the student who excels in that language.

Leaves of absence all ending June 30, 1943 were granted to the following:

Dr. Kingsley Davis, associate professor of sociology, to serve with the United States Department of State at Princeton University. (Continued on Page Two)

Air Wave Speaker

Prof. Franklin C. Banner, head of the department of journalism, leaves today for Pittsburgh where he will speak over radio station KDKA at 6:45 p. m. Saturday. His topic will be "Champions of Democracy."

He will also appear as a guest speaker at the Pennsylvania Education Conference Friday afternoon. The conference is being held in Pittsburgh this weekend. His topic for that occasion will be "Democracy in the Press."

Scabbard And Blade To Give Armory Cannons To Scrap Drive Today

Two bronze cannons, mounted on cemented blocks in front of the Armory, will be torn down at 5 p. m. today in preparation for their contribution to the nation's scrap drive, Captain Michael F. Garbacz '43, head of Scabbard and Blade, announced late last night.

The cannons, campus fixtures since 1911 when they were placed there by members of the national honorary military society, will be dismantled by the present Scabbard and Blade pledge class.

Alpha Asks Fraternities To Inspect For Hazards

As part of National Fire Prevention Week, The Alpha Fire Company has asked all fraternities to inspect their houses thoroughly to find and remove all fire hazards. Inspection will follow the procedure shown on form sheets which house representatives are instructed to pick up at Student Union before noon today.

The sheets are for the company's records and will not be published anywhere. M. Williams Lundelius '43, IFC head, said last night. If necessary, houses may request the company to send an inspector. Forms are to be turned in to the company office in the borough building as soon as possible.

AER Now Requires Birth Records

A new regulation released by the War Department governing the enlistment of college students in the Army Enlisted Reserve now makes it mandatory for all prospective recruits to produce birth certificates in order to qualify for enlistment, Col. Edward D. Ardery, head of the military department, announced yesterday.

Prior to October 1 students were not required to produce any written proof of their place or date of birth. The new ruling calls for a birth certificate or, if unobtainable, a baptismal certificate or some form of sworn statement containing place and date of birth.

The order does not affect those students who have already been sworn into the Army Enlisted Reserve.

Students contemplating enlistment in the AER, who face the possibility of induction by their local draft boards, are advised by Colonel Ardery to apply for birth certificates, if they do not already possess them, as a safety measure to prevent undue delay or confusion when they do make application for enlistment.

Subscription Books Called

All freshman and sophomore Collegian solicitors must turn in their subscription books at 4 p. m. today, Leonard E. Bach '43, business manager, announced yesterday.

Show Unites Former Players

By MURPH and MICKEY
"More than twenty years ago I was good enough to work in a few one-act plays to help Neusbaum scrape some money together to pay his wife's fees at the College; and I ask you, 'Is this gratitude?'"

As he smoked a cigarette and stretched after spending two strenuous hours in a wheelchair, Raymond W. Tyson, instructor in public speaking and leading man in Penn State Players' production, "The Man Who Came To Dinner," reminisced about his past association with the show's director, Frank S. Neusbaum, associate professor of dramatics.

Fraternity brothers in their undergraduate days here, they formed the "Vagabond Players," a three-some composed of Tyson, Neusbaum, and Mrs. Neusbaum. Unlike artistic organizations formed for the express purpose of acting for art's sake, the trio played at fraternity smokers to pay the Mrs.' College fees.

Having accomplished their primary purpose, the vagabonds disbanded as professionals.

Mr. Neusbaum and Tyson went on to play in "Kempy," and "Night," followed by an extensive tour throughout the state making stops at Sugar Notch, Roaring Springs, Scranton, Punxatauney, and Altoona.

Tyson transferred to Juniata College in his junior year and rejoins Neusbaum for the first time in "The Man Who Came To Dinner." However, this time, Neusbaum cracks the whip, Tyson moaned.

Music Groups To Give Lecture On 'La Boheme'

In connection with the Artists' Course presentation of the Charles L. Wagner production of "La Boheme" the department of music and Phi Mu Alpha, music honorary, will sponsor in 121 Sparks at 7 p. m. today, a lecture in opera appreciation dealing especially with "La Boheme."

Laszlo J. Hetenyi, '43, author of a recent book on opera appreciation and instructor in a course in appreciation, will narrate the background of the opera and illustrate some of its leading themes by playing recordings.

Ticket sale for the presentation will continue at the Athletic Association window in Old Main from 1:30 to 5 p. m. tomorrow and in the lobby of Schwab Auditorium before the performance.

But the whip-cracking is all in fun since Director Neusbaum claims that he's found the fellow best suited to play the part of Alexander Woolcott.

Upon graduation from Juniata, Tyson received his Masters degree in dramatics at Western Reserve University. He worked in radio for three years and was then affiliated with the Cleveland Playhouse. In 1938, he came here as an instructor in speech.

Having been here since 1928, Professor Neusbaum said he's always hoped for the chance to utilize Tyson's 18 years experience.

In the interview last night, Neusbaum said, "For a boy, he's doing OK."
