

Jayvees Ready For Cornell Game

15 'Standout' Players Spark McAndrew's Team

If enthusiasm for the game meant victory, a band of Nittany Lion Jayvee footballers should easy going against the Cornell B Team tomorrow afternoon on New Beaver Field.

A peppery group of 50 candidates have been scrimmaging almost every night for three weeks in preparation for tomorrow's opener.

Unlike the varsity, where positions are usually carried over from one season to the next, every position on the jayvee outfit has been wide open, and each of the 50 have been taking advantage of it.

"I don't know who to start against Cornell," stated the junior's mentor, Marty McAndrews last night, "of course much will depend on who Bob (referring to Higgins) decides to take on the varsity trip."

As things stands now, there are, however, about 15 members of the squad who might be termed "standouts".

Leonard and Yorkitis are sure to dominate the end play, although Dennie Hoggard, a 180 pound negro star from Overbrook, will see plenty of action.

Margum and Kinniard will probably be starters at the two tackle positions, while Ashton and Kraynayck are almost sure starters at the guard slots, although Ed Lapos may see action. Schell seems to have the inside track for the pivot position.

Frank Accorsi, hard charging fullback, is almost a certainty at the three-back spot.

Penn State Students Bank On Karver In Tomorrow's Meet

Six thousand Penn State students will be rooting for one certain sophomore to "come through" tomorrow.

This sophomore is Jerry Karver, one of eight Nittany Lions who will meet the Manhattan cross-country team in New York City at noon tomorrow.

Why will everyone be cheering for him? His almost unique record is being jeopardized by a battery of runners.

Jerry has never lost a cross-country race in collegiate competition. He went through his entire freshman year without defeat and even captured the IC4-A freshman title.

This year, as a sophomore, Karver is facing stronger competition than he has ever been up against before—seasoned veterans of two years of running under all conditions and against the best in college ranks.

Men like Manhattan's O'Toole, who will be out to take the first place he won last year on the New Beaver Field course, will not tire as quickly as the freshmen whom Jerry ran against last year.

Jerry will not be the pre-meet favorite that he was last year—he is practically unknown in New York. Except for last year's IC4-A freshman medley relay in which he anchored Penn State to a win, metropolitan writers have never heard of him.

To men who have been around Penn State several years, Jerry Karver brings back memories of Billy Smith, who also went through his freshman year with an unblemished record. Billy "came through" by winning every dual meet and capturing the IC4-A individual crown his second year.

It will be up to Jerry when the opening gun sounds tomorrow, but when the pressure is on, he will know that 6,000 students will be pulling for him.

Lion Grid Squad Leaves Today For Lehigh Game

Walters Injured, May Miss Engineer Tilt

Having been reminded by the coaches that it was only a few years ago that an underdog Lehigh football team upset a favored Nittany Lion squad, 7-0, a contingent of 30 Lions will push off for Bethlehem this morning where they will meet the Engineers tomorrow afternoon.

One disheartening note was cast at last night's short practice session when Bob Walters, the end who was to replace injured Wilbur Van Lenten, reported to Coach Higgins with an injured back. Walters sustained a bruised back in a Rec Hall phys ed class.

At press time last night, the coaches were uncertain as to whether Walters would be able to play tomorrow. Higgins also indicated that Van Lenten, who has partially recovered from his sprained ankle, may be pressed into service. If neither of the two veterans are able to play, Hank Baierl will team up with regular Bob Davis at the terminal positions. Higgins will then have to call upon two untried freshmen, Ray Robb and Bud James, as reservists.

The Lions will work out tonight on the Muhlenberg College field in Allentown, before pushing on to Bethlehem tomorrow morning.

Against Lehigh, the Lions will be facing a veteran team. No less than seven of the starting lineup were members of the varsity that the Blue and White defeated last year, 40 to 6.

Coach George Hoban, however, is faced with the same problem with which the Lions have to contend—the lack of adequate reserve power. Against Yale last Saturday, the Engineers held their own during the first half, but their lack of reserves spelled a second-half defeat.

Beta, Phi Kappa Sig, Tau Phi Delt Score Wins In IM Contests

A well-drilled Beta Theta Pi team took advantage of every break to overpower Kappa Delta Rho 14-0 in last night's edition of the intramural football tournament. Phi Kappa Sigma defeated Delta Chi No. 1 6-0 and Tau Phi Delta tripped Alpha Gamma Rho 7-0 in the other two games.

The first Beta touchdown was set up when they intercepted a pass on the KDR 22-yard line.

The second score came just before the end of the game when Giles intercepted a pass on the KDR 40, ran to the 25, and relayed to Jackson in the end zone for six points. The scoring ended when Detweiler received Giles' pass for the extra point.

Phi Kappa Sigma showed their superiority over Delta Chi early in the contest, registering two first downs and a touchdown in the first seven minutes of play.

Two heaves by Giles moved the ball to 5. On the next play, Vieth took a pass from Giles and stepped over. The extra point was good.

Phi Kappa Sig set the stage for their winning marker when Shabacker intercepted a pass by Calkins on the Delta Chi 6 yard line. Wedge put the ball on the one-yard stripe with a run through center and scored on the next play. A pass for the extra point was incomplete.

Tau Phi Delta marched to their tally late in the first half when Connolly passed from the AGR 35 to Trost who tossed the ball to Chamberlain on the 6-yard line. Fulton then passed to Connolly for the touchdown. The extra point made the count 7-0, the final score.

Heck Returns To Soccer Lineup; May See Action Against Bucknell

Hopes for another perfect Penn State soccer season mounted last night with the return of fullback Allen Heck to the daily scrimmages. Out for the past ten days with a leg injury, Heck helped the varsity defeat Coach Bill Jeffrey's phys ed major class, 2-0, in a practice game.

So far it is not known whether the veteran will see action in tomorrow's Bucknell game on New Beaver Field. He will be in uniform and should surely be ready for actual play in next Saturday's Colgate contest. Originally he was not counted on to return to action for at least another week.

Strengthened by several of the varsity substitutes who filled in in their lineup, the phys ed majors were able to hold the first team men to a duo of goals, making a surprising showing.

Coach Jeffrey has not announced tomorrow's starting eleven yet but indications are that it (Continued on page four)

Between The Lions

With DON DAVIS—Sports Editor

A Little Research

By the time you read this column (unless you're in the habit of attending eight o'clocks) thirty-one Lion football players will be on their way to Bethlehem for their first away game of the season against the Engineers of Lehigh.

It is a Penn State tradition to consider Lehigh a breather for the Lions. And in most quarters this opinion will prevail for tomorrow's game. Don't get us wrong, we also will be greatly surprised if the local boys don't pull out a win. On looking back through the files to 1936 when the Brown and White squad completely upset the Lions, 7-6, we can't help but note the similarity between that hapless game and the one in store for us tomorrow.

Not A Bad Team

The Nittany team had its share of greats that year, including Chuck Cherundolo, John Economos, Joe Adessa, Harry Harrison, Windy Wear, and Red O'Hara. They had opened the season with a 45-0 win over little Muhlenberg, and later in the season showed their strength by topping Syracuse, 18-0. But on Saturday, October 16, 1936, a small fighting squad from Lehigh toppled the Lions, 7-6.

You say why? What happened to the Nittany squad? One big reason was that six or seven players were injured and could not take part in the game. As a result the boys had trouble getting started, bogged down, and before the game was over were fighting among themselves rather than against their opponent.

Terminal Trouble

As you probably know, Higgins will be without the services of Cliff St. Clair, Wilbur Van Lenten, John Wolosky, and quite possibly Bucky Walters and Hank Baierl. The sad part of this tale is that Van Lenten, Walters and Baierl are all ends. This means that unless one of these injured ends improves sufficiently before game time either Ray Robb or Bud James, very inexperienced terminals, may be one of Higgins' starting end men.

We're not saying that this year's game will be a repetition of 1936's debacle. We do feel it worthwhile to point out the similarity in the conditions of the two squads and issue a note of warning. The Engineers are pointing for this game and the Lions should relax not at all. Even then, the score may be surprisingly close.

In a pre-weekend get-together the Collegian's Board of Experts calls Bucknell's Friday night game with Temple. The Owl's will have less trouble with the Bisons than did the Lion last weekend. So it's Temple by two touchdowns. Predictions for Saturday's game will be in tomorrow morning's column.
