Late News Flashes...

WASHINGTON — The Navy Department announced last night that Allied naval forces had sunk one Japanese heavy cruiser, four destroyers, and one transport ship, in addition to damaging several other ships in a naval encounter in the Pacific.

WEST COAST PORT—A Jap sub attempted to sink an American tanker off the Oregon coast, West Coast authorities announced last night. The tanker was struck by only one torpedo and was towed into port for salvage. One crew member lost his life when the tanker was hit.

WASHINGTON — Washington officials last night disclosed that Premier Mussolini had left Rome to investigate unrest in an Athens military garrison. Several hundred of the Naples' peasant population were arrested in an attempt to quell reported insurrection in MINNEAPOLIS — Wendell Willkie landed in Minneapolis last night after a six-weeks' tour of Russia and the Far East. Willkie leaves for Washington today to confer with President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON — The House yesterday voted 252 to 84 for the passage of a bill outlawing poll tax. The bill was passed on to the Senate for approval.

2 Raids Scheduled, One Daylight Alert May Come This Week

Authorities at the Harrisburg State Defense Center have notified all communities to be on the alert since two raids have been scheduled for the month of October.

Possibility that one of the raids may come this week was expressed by Arthur R. Warnock, chairman of the local defense groups, with the further anticipation that one of the alerts may be a daylight raid.

In the event a raid signal is sounded during classroom hours, members of the faculty will lead their classes to prescribed shelters via the routes signified on the Air Raid Precaution Cards in every room. All defense workers, air raid wardens and auxiliary helpers have been requested to carry their arm bands with them constantly.

Students Ahead Of President, Help Farmers Harvest Crops

By LEWIS L. JAFFE '45

Penn State students were two days ahead of President Roosevelt's speech Tuesday night when he asked students to help farmers bring in their crops.

On Saturday afternoon, over 50 men and coeds, bedecked in colorful flannel shirts, rolled up dungarees and other odd assortments of wornout clothing, worked on surrounding farms digging potatoes and husking corn. The volunteers were gathered by the PSCA rural service committee which is attempting to help alleviate the farm labor shortage in Centre County.

Considerable help was given, according to latest reports received from local farmers. According to one farmer, the corn-shucking

Beards Tyson

Frank S. Neusbaum, director, announced last night that Raymond W. Tyson, as Sherridan Whiteside, would wear a beard in the Penn State Players' production, "The Man Who Came To Dinner," Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24.

Players' Woolcott Will Wear Beard

"Tyson shall have a beard." These were the words of Director Frank S. Neusbaum, assistant professor of dramatics, when he disclosed last night that the Penn State Players' version of Sheridan Whiteside as Alexander Woolcott would wear the traditional beard in "The Man Who Came To Dinner," scheduled for production in Schwab Auditorium, at 8 p. m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 23 and 24. Raymond W. Tyson, assistant professor of speech will play the part.

Neusbaum pointed out that the original production written to satire Woolcott, was to include in the cast the author, critic, and radio performer himself. Because of a last minute illness, a certain Monty Wooley took Woolcott's place and wore his own natural beard in the portrayal.

Wooley's continued performances caused the beard to be connected with the part and although the true Woolcott is clean shaven, audiences throughout the country have come to expect the facial decoration on the leading character, Mr. Neusbaum stated.

Substitutions in the cast include Janet Dayton '45 as Lorraine, and Jane Abramson as Mrs. Stanley.

All-American Rating Awarded To LaVie By NSPA Conference

An All-American rating has been awarded to the 1942 LaVie by the National Scholastic Press Association, according to Martin H. Duff '43, present editor of the College's yearbook.

Edited by Joseph T. Reichwein '42, the 1942 LaVie was one of six college yearbooks to be selected for the outstanding honor from the class of colleges and universities which have 5,000 or more students enrolled.

This is the second time in a period of eight years that LaVie has been awarded the rating, the first honors being won by the 1934 LaVie, which was edited by William Steigmeier.

Rated on a basis of a possible 1,380 points, which were applied to various factors including cover design, page design, selection of print, feature sections, color effects and the like, the 1942 LaVie scored 1,300 points, one of the highest scores given by the press association.

This year's LaVie has almost been completed, most of it already sent to the printers in Williamsport. However, Duff said, students should not expect to receive their copies of the yearbook until December as the printing process is one that requires much time.

Judging Contest Open To All College Students

The annual Dairy Cattle Judging Contest will be held at the College Dairy Barns, Saturday afternoon at 1 p. m., Howard J. Merrill '43, has announced.

The contest, which is part of the Dairy Exposition on Oct. 31, is divided into two groups of professionals and amateurs. The first is open to only those students who have taken or are taking the advanced judging course. The amateur classification permits all students in the College to compete.

Those in charge of the contest are Glenn Kearn '43, Glen Stevens '43, William Hastings '43, and Howard J. Merrill '43. All are members of this year's dairy cattle judging team which placed fourth at the National Dairy Cattle Congress held at Waterloo, Iowa.

Winners will be announced at the banquet on October 31.

PSCA Will Show Movies In Schwab, Tomorrow

"Far East and the World Crisis" is the title of one of seven sound movies presented by the Public Meetings Committee of the Penn State Christian Association in Schwab Auditorium at 7:15 tomorrow night.

Showing China's struggle to drive out the invading Japanese armies and re-establish her national economy is a March of Time film, "China Fights Back."

Other films to be shown are "Western Front," "Gateway to the Pacific," "Gung-Ho," "MacArthur, America's First Soldier," and "Manila Bombed."

Reserve Officer Programs To Be Explained By Joint Board At Mass Meeting

Hum's Got Something Up His Sleeve

Prof. Hummel Fishburn, head of the music department and director of the Blue Band, is withholding information from the public. According to unreliable sources, the Blue Band may have surprise formations between halves at the Colgate game.

Further rumors were to the effect that the performance will include playing the song, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." Asked about the Alumni-Dad's Day formations, Hum declined to comment and said he preferred it to be a "surprise."

"That song, 'Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition,' may now be called the second 'Battle Hymn of the Republic,'" the band director said, "but it will probably have only a short peak of popularity like other hit songs."

"In the last war, with no radios and few phonographs, songs were popular for a year or more, while radio and more frequent dances today are responsible for songs dying after only a few months."

Army Refuses Lion Unit Symbol

Penn State flying units in the Army Air Corps are out. Word from Lieut. Col. A. S. Barnhart yesterday stated that such units could not be made part of the Air Force plan.

The letter, which came to Prof. Robert E. Galbraith, faculty service advisor, was the answer to a request that a streamlined form of the mythological half-eagle half-lion being, the griffin, be used as the insignias of such units if they could be formed.

The streamlined griffin was designed by Heinz Warneke while he was on the campus carving the Lion Shrine.

Colonel Barnhart stated, "I am sure that you will agree with me that if the Air Forces were composed of a Penn State Flyers Unit, a Bucknell Unit, a Pitt Unit, and a Penn Unit, there would be a local fight before we ever got into the big one."

He added that the matter had been forwarded to General Arnold who had turned down several former requests of the same kind. He also pointed out that the system of squadrons, wings, and groups makes things complicated without addition of others.

Officers From Five Arms Of Service Will Speak At 2-Hour Rally

In a move to provide all Penn State students with a complete and detailed picture of the latest facts surrounding the reserve programs of the armed forces, the Joint Army-Navy-Marine Corps Board will appear at an All-College mass meeting in Rec Hall next Wednesday, it was announced yesterday by Prof. Robert E. Galbraith, FAWS.

Five officers, representing the Army, the Army Air Forces, the Navy, the Naval Air Arm, and the Marine Corps, will address the male student body at the rally which is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Each of the officers will summarize the over-all requirements of his respective branch of the service. At the conclusion of the round of addresses the meeting will be turned into a forum at which time the audience may ask questions of any of the members of the Joint Board.

All 10 and 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed on this date to allow all male students, including those already enlisted in any of the reserve officer programs, to attend the mass-meeting. This action was taken by the Council on Education at its meeting last week.

According to Galbraith no recruiting, or enlisting will be made by the Board during the visit. The one-day stay will be devoted solely to provide information for the students and to answering questions which they may still have about any of the reserve branches represented by the members of the Joint Board.

After the initial visit by the Board, recruiting and examining units, representing all five branches of the service, will come to the campus to interview and process those who intend to enlist in any branch prior to the end of the semester.

Students who have their applications and required papers in order will then be enlisted by the recruiting boards.

Although next Wednesday's mass meeting will not be compulsory, all male students are urged to attend. Those who are

Tribunal Meets

Student Tribunal will meet in the Alumni Office in Old Main at 5:45 p. m. today, Charles H. Ridenour '43, Tribunal chairman announced last night. The test given by Tribunal for men who were exempted from freshman customs will be held Thursday. The place and time of the test will be announced in tomorrow's Collegian.

No Auto Licenses Yet

Students who have cars are requested by Capt. Phillip A. Mark, head of the Campus Patrol, not to call for College automobile licenses until further notice. The order of paper stickers, which will be used instead of the usual metal plates, has not been received, the Captain said.
