Women Are Taking Over Fast, ESMWT Training Courses Show

Women are taking over more and more of the jobs formerly held by men in peace time. How fast this conversion to women workers is taking place is indicated by the number of women who enroll for the special training given by the College Extension in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Education.

There was one woman in 80 students enrolled in the Engineering Defense Courses during the first year when 17,663 students were trained.

During the next year, from July 1, 1941 to September 30, 1942, 55,418 people registered for the Engineering, Science, and Management Defense Training Courses. Of this number more than 8,600 were women, or about one in six.

In the program started this July, women have reached a new high with 25.4 per cent of the en-

Penn, Temple, Pitt Presidents Meet Hetzel For War Discussion

"We are meeting in order to plan ways and means by which we can best aid the war effort in our respective areas and, in the interest of our students, help in the preparation for the national war effort and for the peace which follows."

This was the statement issued yesterday by four college presidents meeting here as representatives of the four leading colleges in Pennsylvania.

The executives who met with President Ralph D. Hetzel were Dr. Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University.

After the conference held in President Hetzel's office and eager to return to their own colleges, the Temple and Pennsylvania presidents answered several questions in an informal discussion with Collegian reporters.

Leaning casually against a front pillar at the Nittany Lion Inn, distinguished-looking President Gates expressed views with the assent of others present on the future of education during and after the war.

"American institutions have survived through many wars and revolutions," he said. "Nothing can stop the American way of life."

The effect of the war on institutions of higher learning, he added, will be uniform throughout the country. He expressed no opinion on the question of an increase in women's education if the war continues much longer.

Getting off the more serious questions of the day, one of the aides, with a humorous note in his voice, asked, "Who's going to win the Penn-Penn State game?"

For answer the question was referred to Doctor Gates who, throwing his arm around the reporters, said, "I think the best team will win. The important thing is that the boys will have some fun."

Doctor Johnson, youngest president in years served, said, looking about through the rain, "You have a lovely school here."

Aides in the conferences were

PRESIDENT HETZEL

Dr. Paul H. Musser, administrative vice president, Penn; William H. DuBarry, assistant to the president, Penn; Rufus H. Fitzgerald, provost, Pitt; Walter S. Gladfelter, assistant to the president, Temple; Adrian O. Morse, S. K. Hostetter, and W. E. Kenworthy, Penn State administrative aides.

Hemlock Looper Crosses Ohio State Campus On Way To Penn State

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—Students at Ohio State College were surprised today when a long green worm looped across the campus en route to State College from Western forests.

Further investigation revealed the worm's name to be "Hemlock Looper." It will be guest at the Bunyan Brawl, annual dance of the Penn State Forestry Society in Rec. Hall October 23.

Prof. Nothe Woods, of the entomology department at Ohio State, described the Looper as "a 15-foot long member of the analida family, green in color, feeding chiefly on hemlock needles, and usually seen with a huge loop in the center of its body. It often drops segments as it loops along."

Jones Summons Coeds To Make Surgical Dressings For Use Abroad

Another step to increase Penn State's aid in the national war effort was taken when definite plans for coeds to make surgical dressings were announced by Dorothy L. Jones '44, acting WSGA vice-president and speaker of the House of Representatives, last night.

With the first meeting scheduled for 112 Home Economics at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday, Miss Jones urges all students interested to attend with or without the necessary equipment which includes a cover-

IFC Penalizes Chaperoned Cases

Interfraternity Council's Board of Control last night placed an undisclosed number of chaperoned violators of the dating code on eight-week probation. The ruling is the same as that concerning the unchaperoned violators which were placed on probation last week.

Their permission to act in this manner on the cases came from IFC's acceptance of a recommendation by the Board that it be permitted to so rule.

Plans for Council elections were started as M. Williams Lundelius '43, president, appointed a committee which will set the date and be in charge of the elections. Members of the committee are John A. Jordan '43, R. Roy Goll '43, and Albert W. Swan '44.

Date and plans for the election will be announced within a few days, Lundelius said.

He also pointed out that many houses have not yet gotten their house blanks for inspection for fire hazards in connection with the Alpha Fire Company's drive during National Fire Prevention Week.

Discussion of plans for lawn displays during Alumni Homecoming weekend led to following the rule of keeping expenses for displays within $1. No other rules were set.

Stamp Dances Set For Mondays And Wednesdays, 4-5

Dances In Armory Replace SU Mixers

Stamp dances, beginning Monday, will be sponsored by the All-College Committee for Defense Stamp Sales. Dances will be held in the Armory each Monday and Wednesday from 4 to 5 p. m., with the admission set at one ten cent defense stamp per person.

Taking the place of the dances formerly held by Student Union, these late afternoon mixers will be run in the same informal manner with music by recordings. All students are invited to attend.

Student Union dances were last held in the Armory during the 1940-41 term. Use of the Armory by the Military Department forced the cancellation of the dances, which have not been held since, except during Freshman Week.

Pauline Crossman '43, chairman of the committee, said last night that members of Cwens and Mortar Board will act as salesmen.

Further efforts to promote the sale of defense stamps on campus are progressing, Miss Crossman stated. Committee members will sell stamps at Student Union today from 1:30 to 5 p. m. and Saturday morning for WRA's "Football Formal."

With a purchase of 50 cents or more, a blue and red ribbon, Penn State's and Cornell's colors, will be given to take the place of a corsage.

Stamps will be on sale at all home football games beginning next weekend during the Colgate-Penn State game, and before all big dances. Miss Crossman also said that stamp sales will be resumed after dinner in the dining rooms on Thursdays.

Miss Crossman was named by All-College Cabinet to the committee to coordinate student defense activities and efforts, and is in charge of all defense stamp sales on the campus.
