

300 Honor Places To Be Set At Matrix Table Celebration

Helzel, Ray To Fete With Activities Coeds

Because of their contributions in campus activities, 300 coeds are invited to Theta Sigma Phi's Matrix Dinner at Nittany Lion Inn at 6:30 p. m. Monday, October 20, Emily L. Funk '43, president of the journalism honorary, revealed last night.

Stressing the fact that invitation to attend the affair is recognition of leadership, Miss Funk stated that coeds who are to attend have already received formal announcements. Special guests will include Mrs. Ralph D. Helzel and Miss Charlotte E. Ray, dean of women.

As in former years the honorary will present as guest speaker a woman prominent in journalistic circles. This year's guest, Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, is a veteran reporter of Congressional happenings and Presidential press conferences.

Providing for humorous as well as informative entertainment, the journalists will present two skits burlesquing campus life. "The Blooming Situation" will pan a present phase while "What Campus Will Be Like Without Men" will give coeds a peek into future problems.

Home Ec Honorary Elects Six Women To Membership

Omicron Nu, Senior women's national home economics honorary, invited seven women to be members at a meeting held this week. Those elected were Nancy E. Gosser '43, Mary E. Sprecher '43, Velma B. Anstadt '44, Dorothy M. Boring '44, Dorothy G. Clymer '44, Edith D. Dengler '44, and Grace E. Sammons '44.

Acceptances will be handed in by next Wednesday, and the society will hold pledging in Miss Mildred H. Larson's office in the Home Economics Building at 5 p. m. Thursday, Dorothy Magor Kemper '43, president, announced.

Schug Announces Frosh Varsity Team Meetings

Varsity debate women will meet in 103 Home Economics at 7 p. m. Wednesday, unless notified to the contrary, said Clayton H. Schug, assistant professor of Public Speaking. There is a possibility that the meeting will be held Tuesday, therefore Varsity girls are asked by Mr. Schug to keep both evenings free.

Freshmen women's debate team will meet in 103 Home Economics at 7 p. m. Tuesday this week only. Thereafter meetings will be Wednesday nights, Schug stated.

Phi Gamma Delta will entertain Kappa Alpha Theta at dinner on Wednesday.

Women In Sports

By JANE H. MURPHY '44

The music started. Two Dance Club members stood ready to direct the class. Announcements had been made about the campus. Coeds were looking for a chance to be physically fit.

So two interested students came to the Rhythmic Calisthenics class one night this week. Of course, that was a bad night; there have been seven there.

The program was begun as a project to answer the requests of women who wanted to be physically fit for emergency days to come.

This isn't the first time that a project of this sort has been well-organized, offered, then rejected.

Miss Marie Haidt, associate professor of physical education, pointed out last night that an average of 30 coeds come regularly to use White Hall facilities including pool, bowling alleys, ping pong, badminton, rifle range, and dance room. All of which means that 1,746 persons stay home, certainly not to study, six days of the week when the Recreation Hall is open after class hours.

Penn State can be proud of its coeds. . . . its 30 coeds

Phys. ed faculty members say that coed volition is at a low ebb; that if things are to be done, the student must be forced to do them. The faculty can't plan mere daily workouts for individuals.

Preparing for this fitness doesn't mean training on a tough schedule (although that would be a good idea in many cases). It merely means substituting a good healthful walk or some supplementary exercises for the usual hand of bridge.

We don't know what women are waiting for; but what they might meet is quite evident: standing up in factories daily, drilling in women's camps, pounding a typewriter eight hours a day, or going to college under an accelerated program.

CA To Participate In National Study

FSCA will cooperate with the National Inter-Collegiate Christian Council in studying "what great personalities have depended upon in times of crisis." Thirty colleges and universities throughout the country will make similar studies which will be compiled and edited in booklets in March.

Committee in charge includes James E. Hawkins '42, Robert R. Dickey '44, M. Virginia Krauss '44, and D. Jane Cromis '45. These members have sent letters to 20 students who will compose the discussion group which will meet in the Hugh Beaver Room at 6:30 p. m. each Monday for five weeks.

At the first meeting, committee heads will suggest the names of 12 famous men, one of which will be chosen subject of the discussions.

After the final selection has been made, notes on his biography will be discussed until a final report has been completed. Problems confronting these men, their solutions, and adaptations that will be appropriate to the average student will be included.

Outstanding ideas and theories from the reports will be organized into the booklets which will be distributed to service men and college students.

Martin Urges Frosh To Attend Tomorrow's Big-Little Sister Tea

Cider and cookies will replace the usual tea at the annual Big-Little Sister tea in Women's Building lounge from 3 to 5 p. m. tomorrow. Planned for second semester freshmen and their upperclass aids, Helen J. Martin, WSGA freshman senator, is general chairman of the affair.

Little Sisters should contact Big Sisters, Miss Martin has announced, but if the upperclass women cannot attend, freshmen should come anyway.

Two similar teas for first semester freshmen and Big Sisters will be held Sunday, October 25 at the same hours. Coeds from Irvin and Jordan Halls will entertain in Irvin Hall lounge, and all other freshmen will go to Women's Building lounge.

Co-chairmen for the teas next Sunday are Miss Martin and Gloria McKinley, newly-elected freshman senator.

'Football Formal' Tickets On Sale At Noon In Dorms, Door Tonight

Ed Coeds May Sign For ESMWT Courses

Education students who wish to enroll in either of the ESMWT drafting courses may register at the first class meeting at 6:30 p. m. Monday or Tuesday, provided they agree to make up the eight week's work missed while student teaching. Professor B. K. Johnstone, head of the architecture department and general supervisor of the courses, revealed recently.

Two three-hour classes will be scheduled each week for thirty-six weeks excluding final examination periods and mid-semester vacations.

Professor Johnstone stressed that all coeds who enroll should feel obligated to accept employment when they complete required work in August.

State-Cornell Game Is Decoration Theme

Tickets will be sold in dormitories outside dining halls for the last time after lunch today for WRA's "Football Formal" in White Hall gymnasium from 9 o'clock to 12 tonight, Adele J. Levin '44, ticket chairman, announced last night.

Selling for $1.10, tickets will also be sold at the door tonight, Miss Levin added.

With George Washko's Campus Owls providing a musical background, and Cornell's and Penn State's colors as an artistic one, the dance will be dedicated to Betty Coed and her football hero of the weekend.

Pictures of famous athletes will cover walls; a huge football will be available for guests' autographs; and a gigantic goal post will display both teams' players' names.

Acting WSGA President Dorothy K. Brunner '44 will present two $44 scholarships at the dance. Money for these was received as a percentage of Coca-Cola sales made in campus dormitories to be used in any way deemed advisable.

Awards will be made to worthy coeds outstanding in WSGA activities, WSGA Senate decided.

Dance proceeds will also go to a scholarship fund from which $50 presentations will be made to WRA activities women worthy of the gifts, Margaret K. Ramaley '44, general chairman, stated.

A formal dance, at which coeds will be hostesses, it has been termed "corsage-less" by WRA Executive Board.

300 Enlist In Codets; Drill Will Begin Tuesday

Over 300 women students have enlisted in CODETS, coed organization for drill and emergency training, as revealed by statistics recorded by WSGA House of Representatives members yesterday.

Of this number 200 will be chosen, according to seniority, to participate in military drill in the Army from 4 to 5 p. m. Tuesdays or Thursdays. Classes will start next week, announced Dorothy L. Jones '44, WSGA vice-president and house speaker.

Sophomores head the list with 130 signed up, while juniors follow with 115. About 51 seniors and 4 graduate and special students have enrolled. Choice of days includes 115 for Tuesday, 96 for Thursday, and 100 for either day. A committee of House of Representatives members will divide the group into two classes and specify which sophomores will be accepted, Miss Jones stated.

"Faithfulness, regularity, and punctuality are among the things which military discipline should develop in CODETS," according to Miss Julia G. Brill, vocational counselor in the Liberal Arts School. Miss Brill reminds coeds that two unexcused absences will be sufficient to drop them from the course.

Match-Makers Play Cupid For Campus Date-Seekers

By M. J. WINTER '44
"Short, brunette, good dancer, and conversationalist."

With a request such as this, a date-seeker puts his order into the Penn State dating bureau. Telephones buzz, files are referred to, arrangements are made, and finally—boy meets coed.

Sponsored jointly by the Penn State Club and IWA, the bureau is developing as it has in other colleges. Started first by the men's group at the College, independent women collaborated with them last Spring to form a larger and more efficient system.

Men who have little or no contact with coeds in classes have found it difficult to make acquaintances of the dateable variety, and coeds, too, often sit home weekends for the same reason, according to Marjorie A. Magargle '44, in charge of the women's part of the bureau.

With office hours for men set from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. Mondays, and 5 to 5:30 p. m. on Wednesdays, applications should be made at the Penn State Club Room, 321 Old Main. Each client's name, age, description, religion, and date preferences are filed on a card. He sets the time for which he wants the date and goes home to wait.
