Faculty, Please Note!

The first several hundred Faculty Attitudes questionnaires have been flowing into The Daily Collegian office the past three days and bringing with them varied and sundry opinions. These will in due time be tabulated and as carefully analyzed as it is in our poor power to do so. However, of more immediate interest is the manner in which individuals have reacted toward the survey. Perhaps a few clarifications may be timely.

In a sincere effort to bring to light current problems affecting "the other half" on this campus (many of which were drawn to our attention by members of that group) we have attempted to collect the opinions of a large body of people in as simple a manner as possible. Certainly the project may have been handled more professionally, but the point is that it had not been handled at all. We have at least accomplished something. And we have learned something.

Granted, the survey could have been handled more efficiently by the administration, as one of the instructors suggested, but the administration happens to be working twenty-four hours a day on more important things. After all, the poll does not represent a referendum or election as we have previously pointed out. The purpose is to determine general trends of thinking. In addition to the many who have cooperated so splendidly in returning checked sheets, several have rendered constructive criticisms and elaborations on answers.

Others, we regret to say, have viewed the harmless questionnaire with some suspicion and distrust. As originally stated, we are not interested in particular viewpoints. An unfortunate means of distributing the sheets to faculty was inadvertently used but most individuals have trusted our integrity in not referring to the stamped address on the back of the sheet. Still others have easily deleted their names with a few scratches of ink. To those who still wish to submit their opinions we affirm that there is no effort to fool you. We shall make the profound statement that this faculty is not a bunch of dumbheads!

Continued cooperation and good will should serve to make this survey a success. —H. J. Z.

Would The Pilgrims Mind?

The Pilgrims had their first Thanksgiving, President Roosevelt wanted it at least a week earlier, and now Bob Mawhinney suggests it be moved to Friday and Saturday, November 27 and 28, to enable Penn State students to get home for the annual feast.

We think Cabinet made a wise move by appointing Mawhinney and Frank Flynn to investigate the possibilities of shifting the present Thursday holiday to Friday afternoon and Saturday morning of that weekend. With the Thursday vacation, students would either have to remain here or out Friday and Saturday classes to go home. Under the new proposal, students wouldn't jam Thanksgiving Day transportation, but would shift the traffic burden to Friday. —P. L. W.

Not that anyone here gives a darn, but today Pennsylvania is electing a new governor plus a few Congressmen and things. And a retired Army man by the name of Martin will become the Commonwealth's head. But few students of voting age will cast votes this Election Day—because Pennsylvania hasn't gotten around to legalizing absentee voting. It is unfortunate that the second largest state in the Union should be last in making needed reforms.

She Done Him Wrong!

Watts Hall lassies are not snobs; they just act that way. For instance, last week, Ibbey Winter refused to date a certain Sam The Wolfe by telling a whopper about going home for the weekend. That night she and her roommate went on a double blind date. Guess who Ibbey's blind date was? Yep—none other than Sam The Wolfe! Ibbey pleaded headache and retreated.

Collegiate Ambitions

A boy is always prone to choose, And aspires to fill his Poppa's shoes. A Penn State coed tries to go one better She wants to fill her Momma's sweater. And then she aims for things sublime And hopes to get a man sometime.

Operator G-769.5 Reports

Blue Barron's outfit jammed away and the following couples tried to dance at Mil Ball: Gene Von Arx-M. J. Winter... Frank Sullivan-Gloria Moyer... Jack Miller-Violet Nagel... Len Catannosa-Harriet-Breisch... Wes Wagner-Doris Taylor... Lou Bordo-Lucinda O'Boyle... Bob Pennell-Chris Grant... Alby Wilson-Janice... Alice Fox-Bob Schooley.

Things Worth Knowing

The local WCTU informs us that "The Nation Spends Two Billions For Beer" and per capita consumption for 1941 was 13.39 gallons... who in the h-l's been drinking our share?... Why hasn't the LA Council changed the Econ 14 text yet?

Politico Bob Mawhinney is replacing genial George Donovan as UNOFFICIAL SU manager... and Bill Cissel will handle the dances... Ray Zaroda: "Lucille Moyer is a good kid. And did you hear the one about the moron who cut a hole in the rug so he could see the floor show? Then, there was the other moron who strained himself when he tried to walk through the screen door." Robert Louis Stevenson, we are told, got married and went on his honeymoon. It was then that he wrote his "Travels With a Donkey."

STILL THE BEST PROVIDER IN THE WORLD!

We, The Women It's Election Day For Coeds, Too!

Penn State coeds will imitate citizens throughout the country by going to the polls today.

No governors or congressmen will be elected in Old Main lounge, but officers important in their own sphere, women's student government and recreation, will be chosen. Final WSGA elections, with one exception, will be held, and WRA has scheduled primaries for the polls which will be open until 8 o'clock.

In order that new officers will really be the choice of the people, in order that coeds will truly represent all 1,776 coeds, women are urged to turn out 100 per cent for the balloting.

It is important that women express their opinions now, when worldly conditions cause changing programs and accelerated schedules. Cooperation from the coed student body is all that can make for a successful wartime year.

The retiring senior board, like the football coach, has spoken. As new women's editor, we're in the game. We're fresh off the bench... eager, optimistic, but hesitant to play.

It's a chance we've been waiting for, but like the quarterback who has just caught the ball, we're not sure in which direction to run. Our job is obvious. It's been done... and well... by others. Even though our footwork isn't sure-as-yet-and we're likely to make very little yardage on the first few plays, we're determined to roll up a score.

Passes will no doubt be incomplete; running will be slow and uncertain; touchdowns will be few and far between.

At least the goal posts are in plain sight. We see them and we're heading for them —J. H. M.

Collegian Financing Plan Vote Okayed

(Continued from Page One) stated that this rate would have to be flexible depending upon College enrollment and other income factors. They did set down one definite rule stating that at no time would the increase go over the $1.25 mark. They also emphasized that this plan would not mean any increase in staff compensation.

Coy also stated that according to Neil M. Fleming, director of student activity finances, there is a possibility that class dues may be reduced by $.15, thus making the Collegian fee increase only $1.00 over the former amount. However, he pointed out that the dues decrease is in no way connected with the check-off plan.

Other Cabinet business included a report from Robert S. MacNabb '45, chairman of the rural service committee, who stated that over 100 students did volunteer work this weekend. He explained that since practically all crops are now in there will be no more need for student help.
