

Senate Cancels Christmas Dinner 'For The Duration'

WSGA Gives 1 O'Clocks For Thanksgiving Eve

Trumpeters, jesters, plum pudding, and the boar's head will disappear from campus Christmas celebration for the duration of the war, WSGA Senate decided last night when it became evident that present conditions make it impossible to hold the annual Old English Christmas banquet in McAllister Hall.

Necessity for cancellation of the event was attributed to the crowded situation in women's dining rooms, H. Anne Carruthers '44, chairman of the Senate committee for the dinner, announced.

McAllister Hall coeds will celebrate at a candlelight formal dinner Monday, December 14. Tentative plans have been made for decorations, and Patricia McClellan '44, who was to have been chairman of the Old English feast, will help with the substitute affair.

To partially atone for the absence of Thanksgiving vacation this year, Senate moved to grant woman students 1 o'clock permissions for Wednesday, November 25. Accompanying the late-hour privilege was a recommendation by Senate that coeds realize the importance of remaining on campus for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Senate clarified hours for Senior Ball-Junior Prom week-end, stating that freshman coeds may take the 2 o'clock for Friday and the 1 o'clock for Saturday without obtaining written permission from their parents.

The poll taken Tuesday in women's campus dining rooms revealed that the WSGA dance scheduled for Saturday, January 30 will be informal. Although women in town dormitories have not yet been contacted, the large campus majority favoring an informal dance makes it unlikely that the decision will be changed, Miss Ruth M. Storer, WSGA president, said.

Grace L. Judge '44, recently elected chairman of the dance resigned because she will be practicing teaching for the first eight weeks of next semester. Senate has not yet selected a new chairman.

Jones Urges Coeds To Attend Surgical Dressing Classes

"You may mean life or death to someone—perhaps someone you know," Dorothy L. Jones '44, retiring speaker of WSGA House of Representatives, said as she reminded coeds of college defense work at a meeting yesterday.

Two rooms in Home Economics, 112 and 117, have been given to defense-minded coeds who wish to wrap surgical dressings for service men.

Classes have been supported by so few that it is probable that one room will be closed. Interested students need not stay both hours, but some attention should be given to the most important defense activity on the campus, Miss Jones stated.

If either or both of the rooms close, it will not be the fault of the woman instructors; it will be the fault of 1,776 coeds who are "just too busy," the ex-speaker said.

Allen Street Co-op Elects Miller President

Newly-elected Allen Street Co-op officers are president, Catherine L. Miller '45; vice-president, Gerald F. Balsbaugh '44; secretary, Miriam F. Rust '45.

Roswell Johns is bursar, and Charles Hosler heads the membership committee, assisted by Donald Foreman and Ruth Ely.

WSGA House To Sponsor Mass Meeting To Elect Town Representatives

A mass meeting for town coeds will be held in the near future to elect two town representatives to the WSGA House of Representatives, Dorothy L. Jones '44, retiring speaker of the House, announced at the meeting yesterday.

One student will be chosen to represent coeds whose homes are in town and another for women who commute. The time and date of the mass meeting will be announced in Collegian.

The House will sponsor a Christmas drive from December 2 to 9. Contributions will be divided among Mrs. Hetzel's Emergency Loan Fund, Mifflin County Child Welfare Association, and American Women's Ambulance Corps. Miss Nina M. Bentley, assistant to the dean of women, pointed out the need for funds this year, especially for the Ambulance Corps.

Miss Jones urged coeds to attend surgical dressing classes Thursday night lest the project be discontinued for lack of helpers.

Emmons Sleeps During Players' Rehearsal Lulls

Another eccentricity in the make-up of this boy Emmons is that he prays before any stage performance. He claims that it gives him a "mental, moral, spiritual, or some kind of uplift" before he blinks blindly into the glare of stage lights.

He laughingly called himself "the third-act wonder" in "The Beautiful People." It was in this momentous act that Emmons made his first appearance on the Penn State stage in the form of Father Hogan. The part was rather smallish, but it established the ethereal in his current Pastor Manders role in his current Pastor Manders role in "Ghosts."

Sir Anthony Absolute in "The Rivals" was a part that Emmons really enjoyed enacting, and for one main reason. According to Emmons, Sir Anthony acted so much like his father, and made so many cryptic remarks he has heard his father state, that all he had to do was resurrect the "worshipping hero" complex he wore for the first 15 years of his life.

Emmons' part in "The Man Who Came To Dinner" was a natural. All he had to do was act like himself in an "out of the way manner." Otherwise, Emmons declared, it took no acting ability whatsoever.

Now, in "Ghosts," Emmons has returned to his starting point. He started as a priest, and he is ending this semester as a preacher.
