Lion Cagers Nose Tech Team By 35-33 Score

Von Nieda Leads Nittany Scoring

Fouls in the last two minutes of play by VonNieda and Baltimore were sufficient to carry the Nittany Lion cagers to a 35-33 victory over the Carnegie Tech Tartans in Tech gymnasium in Pittsburgh last night.

The game was the first in the series against Pittsburgh teams this weekend. The Lion will meet Pitt's Panther in the Pitt Pavilion tonight.

Other events rounding out the weekend athletically are a swimming meet with Carnegie Tech at Glennland pool at 4:30 this afternoon, and a boxing meet with Western Maryland in Rec Hall at 8 p. m.

In the last six minutes of play with State leading 33-32, Brinn, Tech forward, sunk a foul to tie the score. Then, with two minutes playing time left, VonNieda sunk the winning foul, followed closely by Baltimore, to clinch the game.

VonNieda, high point man for the Nittany men, led the Lions to their victory with 13 points. High scorer for the Plaid was Marck with ten points, all made on long shots. He was followed closely by his teammate, Brinn, with nine, six from field goals, three from fouls.

The game was marked by the high number of fouls, 11 on State men, 19 on Tech. Gent, State forward, Baltimore, State center, and Meyer, Tech center, were removed from the game on fouls.

Jim Lawther, second string guard, did a good job on his replacement in the game, coming up with a field goal and a foul to add to the total score.

The game, close the whole way, started with a scoring spree by both teams with State scoring 10 points to the Tartans' 11 in the first period. Tech moved farther ahead, moving the score to 24-19 in the second quarter.

State returned to the running in the third quarter, scoring nine points to the Plaid's eight and finished in a blaze of glory with seven.

Seek Victories

HOUCK

John Lawther (above), basketball mentor, is looking forward to his second victory in two days at the "Smoky City" when his team tackles Pittsburgh tonight.

Leo Houck (below), will begin his 21st season as Penn. State's boxing coach when his squad takes on Western Maryland in Rec Hall at 8 o'clock this evening.

'Sweetheart Dance' Theme Chosen For Collegian Event

Plans are under way for the Daily Collegian Sweetheart Dance in Rec Hall Saturday night, February 13, according to Philip P. Mitchell '44, business manager.

Admission charge for the dance will be $1.10 or 55 cents with a subscription receipt. The campus orchestra for the affair will be announced at a later date.

In past years dance tickets were attached to subscription blanks and no additional tickets were available. The system has been changed this year to enable students who have not subscribed to the Daily Collegian to attend the Valentine's Day event.

The dance has been an annual All-College affair for a number of years and rumors that there would not be one this year were not justified, Mitchell announced.

Tickets will not be available for at least a week. A definite date will be announced later by the committee in charge.

Application Blanks For Meteorology Projects Available—Galbraith

Applications for the three meteorology programs are once more available, according to an announcement by Robert E. Galbraith, Faculty Advisor on War Service.

Mr. Joseph McCall, consultant for the weather directorate of the Third Service Command, will be present in 121 Sparks at 7 p. m. next Wednesday evening to speak to students interested in the meteorology divisions of the Army Air Corps. Mr. McCall's topic will be "Opportunities in Basic Pre-Meteorology."

Enlisted reservists and other young men who can meet qualifications outlined in a special announcement from the government are eligible to apply for the special training.

Although no qualifying examinations are given, all candidates must be fully qualified by transcript of their scholastic record to receive consideration.

Training is open to civilians, enlisted men of the army and those in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps; V-1, V-5, and V-7 are not eligible.

The three programs open include Basic Pre-meteorology for men between 18 and 21 inclusive, who have two years of high school mathematics, one year of high school science and are high school graduates.

Pre-meteorology or "B" program requirements include men from 18 to 30, inclusive, they being eligible if they have taken one year of college mathematics, including college algebra, trigonometry, and analytic geometry.

The "A" program or Advanced Meteorology requirements are the most stringent. In addition to meeting requirements for the "B" and "C" programs, an applicant must have taken differential and integral calculus, one year of college physics, and completed successfully two years of college.

Completion of the advanced course will enable the candidate to obtain a commission as second lieutenant in the Army or U. S. Air Corps, and placed on active duty for the duration plus six months unless released sooner.

Cabinet Meets Monday

The All-College Cabinet meets Monday, 7 p. m. in the Alumni office. All members are urged to be present.

CAA War Training Service Program Proposed For College; AERC Students Would Qualify For Non-Combat Posts

War Training Service, sponsored by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, may become a possibility to the vast pool of Army Enlisted Reservists and others who are anxious to fly but who are unable to meet the Army's requirements for combat pilots.

Should the proposed program be approved by the College

Course Numbers To Be Distributed

Distribution of priority numbers, which proved highly successful last year, will again be adopted in the Spring Artists' Course ticket sale, announced Dr. Carl E. Marquardt, chairman of the committee.

Students can obtain priority numbers at the A. A. ticket windows in Old Main, 4 p. m. Tuesday. Faculty, townspeople and others will receive their numbers Wednesday.

Those receiving priority numbers at the above mentioned time will be asked to return the next morning according to a pre-arranged schedule, to select their seats and to complete the sale.

Failure to be in line at the appropriate time will penalize the holder of a number by forcing him to the end of the line.

Holders of any priority number or prospective purchasers who appear after the numbers have been exhausted will be limited to six seats. Faculty members and others desiring to employ students as their proxies must fill proxy forms indicating for whom the tickets are being purchased.

Students are requested to refrain from buying student seats for faculty members, townspeople, or others on the day of the student sale since this would impose a hardship on their fellow students.

Students desiring seats for themselves must appear in line or be represented by another student on the day of the sale. Those students purchasing seats for others these men will be trained at the CAA's expense as instructors, ferry command pilots and other non-combat pilot training, at the local airport.

All men interested in the program are asked to attend a meeting Sparks, 11 o'clock this morning.

The number of the assembly room, not selected at 10:50 p. m. last night will be posted on Professor Robert E. Galbraith's office door, second floor Sparks.

In the advent that the College sanctions the program, which will be offered this morning by C. W. Penny, district CAA representative, men who can pass the CAA's commercial physical examination and screening test will shortly begin primary flight training.

Since the requirements are less strict than the Army Air Corps tests, a new field will be open to men who passed the ACER's mental exam with a 65 but who failed to receive a grade of 80 or better as demanded by the ACER.

The CAA's program would also be open to men who wear glasses which corrects their vision to 20-20.

Indecision and uncertainty still surround the formation of such a project at Penn State.

Mr. Penny, who arrived in State College yesterday, was surprised to find that no CAA program had been inaugurated at the College.

Since there are two airports, the Centre County and Bellefonte, available for training non-combat pilots, Penny said that he would investigate the likelihood of establishing a War Training Service here.

At Bloomsburg, where the airport is slightly larger than the one

LATE NEWS FLASHES!

LONDON—In bold daylight raids yesterday, the RAF and bombers from the RCAF pounded at the Nazi-occupied port of Cherbourg, the enemy submarine base at Orlean, and railroad centers in Northern France. Blazes were started in the dock area of Cherbourg while the Orlean raid continued for an hour and caused much damage, according to London sources. Two fighters were lost in the operations.

DURHAM, N. C.—In an address at Duke University, Wendell L. Willkie underlined the importance of education in the liberal arts as a necessary prerequisite for a complete future civilization.

WASHINGTON—No solution of the Pennsylvania anthracite strike has been reached. The War Labor Board yesterday directed the workers involved to return to work pending a settlement of their difficulties. John L. Lewis, on the other hand, challenged the board's right to change the union dues standard of the workers or the workers' pay rate, and demanded that the men remain out of the mines.

'Hooligan' Knocks Out 'Stuporman' In Rec Hall Before 300 Couples

Approximately 300 couples attended the "Knockout Round," sponsored by IMA, IWA, Penn State Club, and Philotes, in Rec Hall last night, announced Edmund R. Koval '46, publicity chairman.

During the dance intermission, the main bout was held between "Stuporman" and "Horrible Hooligan." Harry Jeffra, Western Maryland's boxing coach, who had been scheduled to introduce his rival team at intermission directly following the bouts, sent word yesterday that he and his boxers would not arrive at the College until today. Leo Houck, College boxing coach, introduced the Lion boxers as previously planned.

According to Koval, "Horrible Hooligan" floored "Stuporman" in the third round of the unrehearsed fight while the comely female referee gave "Stuporman" a fast count. During the heat of the battle, "Hooligan" was discovered to be Charles Aikman and when the blood was wiped off the face of "Stuporman" and his teeth replaced in his mouth, the battered face of William Bonsall was seen.

Open House Program Features Penn State 'Victory Hit Tunes'

"Victory tunes" will be the theme of the Old Main Open House scheduled to be held next Friday night in conjunction with Fred Waring's "Victory Tunes from Penn State" radio program.

The Waring broadcast will be carried over the sound system in Schwab auditorium before the start of the variety stage show and movies, John C. Burford '44 announced last night.

Burford also stated that OMOH has ceased to be a PSCA function and from now on will be an All-College affair. Members of the Open House committee will be representatives from various campus organizations, he added, and all Open House planning will be left up to the new committee.

Collegian Staffs Meet

All staff members and candidates of the Daily Collegian must attend a meeting in the News Room, Carnegie Hall, 4 p. m. Tuesday, Philip P. Mitchell '43, business manager, announced last night.
