Student Union Board Changes Soph Hop Date

members agreed to give Coleman power to set a deadline for students to call for their unsold books. Should the students not heed the deadline, the books will be held over until the next Book Exchange program and sold, with proceeds going to cover expenses to be incurred in the process.

Meeting of the Cabinet was concluded by the appointment of Dudley D. Callup '45 and Charles F. Hall '45 to the Student Tribunal.

Conflict in the Student Union Board activity schedule necessitated the changing of the Soph Hop date from February 19 to February 26, according to Chairman William M. Briner's report to All-College Cabinet.

At the suggestion of the Board, the Cabinet recommended and approved the plan of having smaller dances, limiting name-band dances to Soph Hop, Junior-Senior Ball, and IF-Panhellenic Ball, and promoting the war effort at each of the social events.

A request by the department of military science and tactics for an April date to hold the Military Ball was considered by Cabinet members who then agreed to ask cancellation of the affair since several large dances have already been scheduled for April.

WAVES Lieutenant Cites Value Of Wartime News

"The world is made of glass bricks as far as news is concerned," said Lieut. Rebecca Gross, WAVES officer and former editor of the Lock Haven Express, when she addressed a journalism class yesterday.

Lieut. Gross, serving in the Office of Naval Public Relations Department in Washington, as a member of the Press Section, stressed the need for intelligent use of one of this war's strongest weapons—information.

"The time is passed when secrecy is possible. We are now living in the midst of the world's greatest news stories. It is the journalist's job to tell a continuing story of this remaking of the world," explained Lieut. Gross.

"The reporter today has a responsibility to the people who are using information for making their own opinions and developing their own attitudes. There is no more need to 'jazz up' the news because readers are opinionating stories themselves."

Referring to this war as a "pen and ink" one as well as a mechanized one, Lieutenant Gross said, "We cannot be too cautious either by retaining too much or telling too much."

"As the men leave for active service women in the Office of Public Relations must be ready to move in without interruption. This department is not a press agent for the Navy, but a channel of information, Lieutenant Gross explained.
